STATE ELECTION IN LOUISIANA TO BE HELD TUESDAY

Candidates Place Number Of Issues Before Worried Electorate

ONE U. S. SENATE AND SIX SEATS IN HOUSE ARE OPEN

E. A. Stephens Makes Vigorous Campaign Against Allen Ellender

By Norman Walker

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 5.—(AP)—Candidates campaigning for Louisiana's Democratic primary election next Tuesday have placed before a war-worried electorate issues ranging from the old stump slogan: "Don't change horses in midstream" to one-sided versions, one way or another, regarding present state politics.

Those seeking reelection, including United States Senator Allen Ellender and six of the present eight congressmen, have largely asked to be rechosen on their records, declaring that gravity of the new World war requires seasoned public servants. Congressmen Overton Brooks of the Fourth district and A. Leonard Allen of the Eighth are unopposed.

Pitted against Ellender, former staunch ally of the late state political dictator Huey Long and now a trusted helpmate of the national administration in congress, is E. A. Stephens, tall, friendly, former president of the New Orleans dock board, who has conducted a vigorous statewide campaign.

Never elected to public office, Stephens nevertheless has proved undaunted and has utilized persuasive tactics learned in his profession as a salesman in his 165-speech whirlwind tour. He has attacked Senator Ellender as the "tool in Washington" of Mayor Robert S. Maestri of New Orleans, leader of the presently resurgent Huey Long political clique opposing the state administration of Governor Sam Jones.

Ellender has confined his appeals to comparatively few radio addresses, recalling his work in congress, and Governor Jones—occupied almost up to the eve of the primary with a legislative scrap with Mayor Maestri's re-

HIGGINS PROBE ALMOST AT END

Report On House Investigation Expected Within Two Weeks

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—(AP)—A House subcommittee investigating the cancellation of a contract with Higgins Shipbuilding Corporation of New Orleans for 200 Liberty ships has almost finished its inquiry and is expected to make its report within two weeks.

Chairman Peterson, Democrat, Florida, and his colleagues have inquired into the underlying reasons for the cancellation and into steel warehousing operations.

The main witnesses both in New Orleans and Washington have now been heard, Peterson says. He expects to hold hearings next week but only for the purpose of tying up loose ends and ironing out a few contradictions. The basic work is done.

On the main question, that of cancellation of the contract, the key witness was Rear Admiral Howard L. Vickery of the Maritime Commission. He assumed full responsibility for the decision to cancel, and said he did it because shipyards already in operation could gobble up every ounce of steel allocated to the Maritime Commission for Liberty ships.

In fact, testified Vickery, existing shipyards had so sharply cut the time required to build a Liberty ship that they could build 20 per cent more than they were building if they could get the steel. Therefore he could see no justification for completing an additional shipyard, even though $30,000,-

TWO U. S. AIRMEN GET FIRST BOMBER

LONDON, Sept. 5.—(AP)—United States army headquarters announced today that Second Lieutenants Joseph Shaffer, of Long Beach, Calif., and Elza Shahan, of St. George, W. Va., were the first Americans to shoot down a German aircraft in the European war theater. Both are 24 years old.

They shot down a Focke-Wulf Kurier bomber over Iceland August 14. Previously Second Lieutenant Sam F. Junkin, of Natchez, Miss., had been credited with the first victory, the destruction of a Focke-Wulf 190 over Dieppe.

Shaffer and Shahan were awarded the silver star at their base in Iceland last Thursday.

Next Year Likely To Show Definitely Who Will Be War Winner

Interpretation By

Kirke L. Simpson

(Wide World War Analyst)

Piecing together the military developments and the extraordinary outpouring of official anniversary comment which marked the start of the fourth year of the war, this much seems clear.

In both camps, Axis and Allied, the next twelve months are expected to be decisive. That does not mean that the struggle will end by next September 1. No one in authority has said that, not even Hitler.

Yet the plain meaning of both Hitler's September 1 broadcast from his field headquarters in Russia and the anniversary symposium by United Nations spokesmen is that the 1942-43 war year will prove crucial. It will certainly indicate the ultimate outcome.

There are curious parallels discernible now with these events of August, 1917, when World war I entered its fourth and final year. Then as now it was to the marshalling of vast American resources in manpower, industry and technical skills that Allied statesmen looked to determine the outcome.

Every war anniversary speech or broadcast from the British commonwealth and other United Nations during the last week has reflected that expectation. It is fully backed by American spokesmen, reporting to the American public.

And there is no denial, but rather a tacit admission from Hitler, of the

LABOR DAY WILL BE CELEBRATED

Those Making Wheels Of War Industry Turn To Stay On Jobs

In 1882 the first Labor Day was celebrated by the Knights of Labor who held a parade in New York and began a movement to have the first Monday in September made a legal holiday when all labor would leave its work for a day of frolic.

Tomorrow, 60 years later, another Labor Day rolls around—a legal holiday, true enough, but one which few workingmen will observe. Banks, post offices and some businesses will close, but the men who make the mammoth wheels of war industries turn over will stick to their jobs.

Here in Monroe, although most men will go quietly about their jobs, there will be a semblance of celebration. The characteristic parade has been struck off the program, because the men who could have marched in it are off on military maneuvers or working at defense jobs.

The Central Trades and Labor Council will hold open house at the Labor Temple, 108½ St. John street, with refreshments being served to visitors throughout the day. K. A. Calhoun, president of the council, has announced.

At 6 p.m. a program will be held, also at the Labor Temple, with a national American Federation of Labor representative for the featured speaker. Calhoun will preside; the Reverend L. T. Hastings will offer the invocation; and Mayor H. H. Benoit will make a welcoming address.

The annual Labor Day golf tournament will go into its 11th session today and will last through the holiday tomorrow. Even it, however, will

RICE CROP LOAN OF 85 PER CENT OKAYED

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Wickard announced today President Roosevelt had authorized a commodity credit corporation loan and purchase program for the 1942 rice crop at 85 per cent of parity, with a record crop in sight.

The loan rates for all varieties, grades and milling qualities of rice will average about $1.05 a bushel, which represents 85 per cent of parity as of August 1, the beginning of the crop marketing year.

The loan rate is comparable to $3.78 a barrel, or $2.33 per hundredweight. Premiums and discounts for grade and milling quality will be made.

In California loan values at local stations will be determined on the basis of San Francisco terminal market rate less transportation.

In the southern states, however, following trade custom, no location differentials have been used, since all producing areas are close to the mills.

The loan rates for varieties in the southern states for U. S. grade No. 1 medium, will be as follows: Blue Rose $1.05 per bushel; Rexoro $1.19; Nira, $1.15; Edith, $1.07; Fortuna, $1.04; Lady Wright, $1; Zenith and American Pearl, 92 cents; Early Prolific, 90 cents.

The 1942 production of rice in the United States was indicated August 1 at 74,335,000 bushels, compared with 54,028,000 bushels in 1941, and a ten-year (1930-39) average of 45,673,000 bushels.

ORDER LIMITING WAGES AND FARM PRICES EXPECTED

Roosevelt Warns Sacrifices Must Be Made In Interest Of War

MAY ASK FOR REMOVAL OF CEILING OF FARM PRICES

Makes Remarks In Advance Of Eagerly-Awaited Anti-Inflation Decree

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—(AP)—President Roosevelt, in advance of his eagerly-awaited anti-inflation decree, warned tonight that the nation faced "sacrifices of wage increases, crop price increases, profit increases, bodily comforts."

This indication of the program he will announce Monday in a message to congress and an address to the people was given in a Labor Day statement which said that "All this is little enough for free men to sacrifice in a world where freedom is imperiled."

Government officials who could not be quoted by name reported that the plan contemplated the setting up of an economic administrator to supervise the program and an executive order limiting wages, salaries and farm prices.

In this connection, Senator Brown, Democrat, Michigan, who sponsored the administration's price control law in the senate, said he understood that Mr. Roosevelt would ask congress to remove the act's prohibition against the imposition of ceilings on farm prices below 110 per cent of parity.

Responsible sources who furnished an outline of the president's program indicated that he planned to set aside this prohibition by executive order but Brown said that if he was correctly informed, the president would state in the message that if congress failed to act by Oct. 1, Mr. Roosevelt would proceed under authority granted to him by the second war powers act.

"I commend the vigorous program that the president is expected to outline in his message," Brown told interviewers, "and I believe that congress ought to cooperate with him

IMPORTANT SPY CAUGHT IN CUBA

German Makes Confession Of Aiding In Espionage Activities

HAVANA, Cuba, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Cuban police announced today the arrest of "one of the most important spies yet captured in America" and indicated he would escape the firing squad by becoming a government witness.

Major General Manuel Benitez, of the Cuban national police, announced the arrest of a youthful German who, he said, made a complete confession of participating in widespread espionage activities.

Among things the man admitted—and police said they had proven—was that he sent by short wave radio and by code letters information concerning the arrival and departure in Cuba of ships of Allied and neutral nations.

Police said they learned of the man through letters sent from Cuba. Chemists broke the secrecy of the letters by bringing out messages concealed in invisible ink.

Five crewmen of a Honduran vessel who reported their food cargo was seized by a German submarine have been detained for inquiry, police said. No details were given by officers.

It was believed authoritatively that there was no connection between the five sailors and the spy. However, it was noted that the spy was traveling on a Honduran passport which he said he bought in Germany.

Benitez said the spy told a detailed story of his activities to Captain Marinao Faget, chief of the police counterespionage bureau, and to agents of the United States federal bureau of investigation and to representatives of the British intelligence service.

The spy told a newsman in an interview in prison that he had been told he was coming to America as a "com-

U. S. Air Fighters Make Biggest Raid On Nazi Transports

Rouen Railway Yards And Le Havre Docks In France Are Bombed

By Wes Gallagher

LONDON, Sept. 5.—(AP)—American airmen in Flying Fortresses, Boston bombers and fighter planes, made their biggest assault yet on Hitler's transport system today, the bombers smashing at the Rouen railway yards and the Le Havre docks in France while the fighters escorted the bigger planes and engaged in diversionary sweeps.

An authoritative announcement said there were no American losses but the wide activities cost the allies six fighter planes. Two enemy planes were destroyed.

The attacks followed a night of intensive allied action against Germany. A powerful force of hundreds of R. A. F. planes started big fires in Bremen, while the Rusians scattered bombs on eastern Germany and attacked Budapest for the first time.

A German war bulletin mentioned the Russian raids without naming the cities other than Budapest, but the British radio quoted Scandinavian dispatches from Berlin as saying Vienna in Austria, Koenigsburg in east Prussian and Breslau in German Silesia were among the places hit.

The German high command said the

LABOR DAY WILL NOT HALT WORK

Small Number Of Fatalities Indicates Week-End Travel Light

(By Associated Press)

America at war tended the humming machines of its factories and harvested its ripening crops, little mindful of the tradition that has made Labor Day week-end a holiday.

Only 20 traffic deaths were reported last night since 6 p. m., Friday, a sign that the usual annual Labor Day migration to the highways has been curbed drastically this year. The total number of accident fatalities in the nation stood at 22 as the three-day week-end neared its half way mark. Three persons were killed in train accidents.

Ohio led in fatalities with six, four from auto mishaps and two caused by train accidents. California reported five traffic deaths. Connecticut had four deaths, three in traffic and one resulting from a fall from a train

Louisiana Flier In Group Which Gets 11 Jap Planes

By Clark Lee

ABOARD UNITED STATES AIRCRAFT CARRIER OFF SOLOMON ISLAND, Aug. 7.—(Delayed)—(AP)—Lieutenant J. G. Carlton Starkes, self-styled "army brat" who became a navy flier, shot down three Japanese dive bombers today to lead his squadron mates who broke up a Jap dive bombing attack on our warships and transports between Tulagi and Guadalcanal.

His father is Lieutenant Colonel C. C. Starkes of Fort Gulick, Canal Zone. His wife lives at Memphis.

In this action our fliers shot down eleven of the flight of fifteen Jap planes, without the loss of a United States plane.

Starkes and the other pilots were on combat air patrol over our surface forces shortly after 1 p.m. when they saw a long line of at least eleven dive bombers approaching at 10,000 feet.

"Lieutenant H. M. Jensen of St. Paul, Minn., my section leader, took us over," Starkes related, "and he dived on the enemy planes just as they went into their dive. I pushed over behind one of them and got on his tail in a matter of seconds. I gave him a short burst and flames shot from his cockpit, then spread back and enveloped the entire plane. He fell away, out of control at 8,000 feet

"I kept diving and got on another one and saw my bullets hit. The pilot apparently was killed because the plane went into a spin at 3,000 feet. Hanging on my safety belt, I looked back and saw the plane hit. Both planes had jettisoned their bombs.

"I glanced over to my right and saw three enemy planes trying to get away by skimming the water under 100 feet. I made at least eight passes and finally got one. He had turned into me as if he was going to slug it out, headon."

"That," Starkes continued, "was a mistake.

"I started shooting while we were speeding toward each other like a couple of bats out of hell.

"All of a sudden he blew up and plunged into the water.

"I believe I hit the other two in the wings after chasing them until the ammunition was exhausted."

Lieutenant Jensen, meanwhile, got two planes for himself, hitting the first as it started a dive, and following

Allied Bombers Keep Up Almost Constant Bludgeoning Of Troops

ALLIES SEIZE NUMBER OF NAZI, ITALIAN PRISONERS

New Zealanders Force Withdrawal Over Tank-Strewn Battlefield

CAIRO, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Nazi Marshal Erwin Rommel's Axis forces fell back slowly toward the west tonight under the sharp blows of British tanks and infantrymen and the bludgeonings of Allied bombers flying almost constantly over the western desert battlefield.

New Zealanders forced an Axis withdrawal over a battlefield strewn with wrecked German heavy tanks along the central sector of the El Alamein front and held firmly to their new positions.

South of the Alamein sector, in an area where some of the heaviest fighting of the week-long action has occurred, the combat moved at a slow pace to the west.

Battlefront reports said enemy tanks and their anti-tank guns, while withdrawing farther to the west, still were in the wedge they drove in the British positions at the southern extremity of the El Alamein line.

Rommel's unarmored vehicles, mostly supply trucks, however, were almost entirely west of the line. Widely dispersed, they have taken a terrific beating from air attacks.

United States Middle East headquarters announced that United States medium bombers and fighters continued their support of the R. A. F., attacking concentrated motor transport and making several direct hits. Fires also were started by the United States pilots.

The entire first week of the new fight in the desert appeared to consist mainly of jockeying for position for the real battle for Egypt and the Nile.

Striking southwestward from their central positions into the enemy flank, the New Zealand troops pushed Marshal Erwin Rommel's armored forces back three miles, the second time the Axis commander has given ground since his initial probing thrust against the Allied line began last Monday.

A number of Axis prisoners, about half of them Italians and the other half members of the 90th German light infantry, were taken.

This Allied attack started Thursday night and fairly heavy fighting continued through yesterday when Rommel made three sharp but futile counterattacks in an effort to dislodge the New Zealanders.

The latest flare-up of ground fighting was followed last night by a burst of aerial activity in which Allied

OUACHITA PARISH TO VOTE TUESDAY

15,450 Men And Women Reported Eligible To Cast Ballots

According to figures released by Miss Lillian Collins, registrar of voters, 15,450 men and women in Ouachita parish will be eligible to go to the polls Tuesday to cast their votes in an election which, while minus much of the excitement of previous years, is yet not lacking in a great deal of interest.

They will elect a United States representative from the Fifth Congressional district, a United States senator from the state of Louisiana, two district judges, a district attorney, a state public service commissioner, and city marshalls for both Monroe and West Monroe.

Little mud-slinging or vituperation has been evidenced during the campaign months, with political rallys, as a rule, rather small, and radio speeches comparatively unexciting.

The attention of most voters in this section of the state will be centered upon the election of a Fifth Congressional district congressman from the five contendents. Incumbent Newt V. Mills has devoted much of his campaign to justifying his actions in congress and to parrying accusations slung at him by his opponents.

He is opposed by C. E. McKenzie, Monroe insurance man; Max Broadnax, Bastrop farmer and Morehouse parish tax assessor; Orlin "Speedy" Rhoades, and Nathan L. Ewing, Jonesboro clerk of court of Jackson parish.

ORLEANS ENGINEER KILLED

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Henry Brown, 30, an engineer, of New Orleans, La., was killed early today when he jumped or fell from a sixth-story window of the Hotel Holley.

Police said Brown, employed by the Lykes Steamship company of New Orleans, was registered at the hotel with seven fellow-employes.

Relieved

Colonel Dache M. Reeves (top), commander of the First Air Ground Support command, and Major Lynn Farnol (bottom), the command's public relations officer, have been relieved of their duties at Mitchel Field, N. Y., it was announced September 3. The action followed the release of a story and news photos to newspapers, purporting to expose ground markers made by saboteurs to point the way for enemy airmen to United States war industries and airports. The war department discounted the reports of the markers.

Germans Assert Million Reds In Stalingrad War

BERLIN (From German broadcasts), Sept. 5.—(AP)—More than a million Russian troops, aided by thousands of civilian volunteers, are defending Stalingrad with a bitterness unmatched in this war, German news dispatches stated today.

Military observers said the resistance being put up by the Russians was so desperate that it was impossible to predict how soon the city could be overcome. But they insisted: "The fate of Stalingrad is sealed, and the defenders are no longer in a position to avert it."

The Russians, military quarters said, must surrender or fight to the last man and "they will certainly not capitulate."

The high command said several more modern forts in the defense belt had been carried by storm but the Russians had attacked strongly to the northwest. These attacks were declared to have been turned back.

In the Caucasus, the high command said, Tamanskaya on the Taman peninsula due east of Kerch Straits, had been captured.

The German people, hoping that the bloodiest of battles at Stalingrad would end soon in their triumph, were advised to recall the stubborn defenses of Sevastopol and Rostov.

Stalingrad was repeatedly referred to as a "vast fortress" which the Russians had sworn to turn into a "Red Verdun." It was hit hard by the German air force yesterday, when on one occasion it was attacked by 150 German bombers.

Whole districts of the city were said

RODESSA MAN GETS OTHER WAR MEDALS

SHREVEPORT, La., Sept. 5.—(AP)—Newspapers are replete with announcements of awards made to heroes of the present war, but First Lieutenant Charles Gregory Giles, 46, of Rodessa goes them one better.

Lieutenant Giles recently received two medals for his service in World war I. The silver star for gallantry in action and the purple heart for military merit and wounds received in service, were given him for his part in the offensive battles of Aisne-Marne, Oise-Aise and Meuse Argonne.

He is now employed in a defense industry at Louisiana, Mo.

Soviets Acknowledge Retreat Of Army In Novorossisk Sector

MOSCOW, Sunday, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Soviet Russian soldiers have hurled back German attempts to advance on Stalingrad by violent assaults of infantrymen, tanks and planes and the Russians are holding their lines firmly before the city, the Soviets announced early today.

Masses of planes, tanks and troops were hurled into the battle on the sector southwest of Stalingrad, the midnight communique said, but the "Soviet units firmly met the fresh enemy onslaught.

"Despite considerable numerical superiority Germans failed to advance. Our artillery and trench mortars decimated the enemy ranks."

Thus the Germans were held back for the second straight day both northwest and southwest of the city on the Volga.

The Russians, however, acknowledged that their forces had fallen back on the Novorossisk sector of the northwest Caucasus after the Germans brought up fresh reserves.

The Russians fighting northwest of Stalingrad repulsed attack after attack launched by the Germans and in some sectors took the initiative.

The midnight communique reported that one formation in the past few days has annihilated about 3,000 German officers and men in that area.

The Soviet armies defending the city named after Joseph Stalin in some of the bloodiest fighting of this war took a firm stand deep in the Stalingrad defense system Friday and thus far have not retreated, Russian reports said.

An indication of the ferocity of the battle southwest of Stalingrad was

NAVY ANNOUNCES DESTROYER SUNK

Blue And Small Auxiliary Transport Calhoun Sent To Bottom

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—(AP)—The loss of the United States destroyer Blue and the small auxiliary transport Calhoun by enemy action in the south Pacific was announced by the navy today.

The navy said the sinkings occurred "during the past two weeks" but did not connect them with any specific action.

The destroyer Blue, commissioned in 1937, was a 1,500-ton type vessel and had a normal complement of 175 men. The transport Calhoun was commissioned as a destroyer in 1918, served with the destroyer force in the first world war and was converted to an auxiliary transport in 1940. She would have a normal personnel of about 200 if troops were aboard.

The navy said there were few casualties and that the next of kin would be notified as soon as reports were received.

The losses were announced in navy communique No. 119:

"South Pacific:

"1. The United States destroyer Blue and the small auxiliary transport Calhoun have been sunk during the past two weeks in the south Pacific as a result of enemy action.

"2. There were few casualties and the next of kin of those lost will be notified as soon as reports are received."

The destroyer Blue was built in Norfolk, Va., and was launched May 27, 1937. She was named for Rear Admiral Victor Blue, who died in 1928.

CANDIDATE

Percy Walker, candidate for city marshal of the city of Monroe and Wards 3 and 10, issued the following statement in support of his candidacy:

"I am a native of Louisiana, having been born at Mansfield, DeSoto parish, and have been a resident of Monroe for the past thirty-six years, during more than twenty years of which time I was in the grocery business.

"This is the first time I have sought any public office, and I do so now feeling that I am well qualified to fill the office I seek, and if elected I will administer the duties of the office faithfully, efficiently and impartially.

"I have endeavored to conduct my campaign on a high plane, and am seeking the office on my own merit and not on the demerit of any of my opponents. I have made an effort to personally contact as many of the voters of Wards 3 and 10 as possible, but I have not seen all of them, due to the shortness of time. To those whom I have not seen, I take this means of soliciting your vote on next Tuesday."

KIWANIANS GO TO CONVENTION

Seven From Monroe Attend District Meet In Jackson

Seven local Kiwanians left Monroe this morning to attend the two-day district Kiwanis convention in Jackson, Miss., today and tomorrow. Kiwanians from Louisiana, Mississippi and West Tennessee will attend the 24th annual district convention.

Featured speaker at the conference will be General L. H. Van Oyen, commanding officer of the Royal Netherlands Military Flying school in Jackson, who will speak at the Monday night banquet.

General Van Oyen came to the United States from Australia after the fall of Java, where he was stationed at the capital city, Bandoeng, as commanding officer of the Royal Netherlands Indies Army force. A "fighting general," he was flown out of Java on the last plane to leave that enemy-held island.

Attending the convention from Monroe are A. V. Breard, president of the local group; R. C. Stoker, past president; Ivy Jordan, lieutenant-governor of the north Louisiana district; E. N. Thompson, vice-president; J. V. Russell, vice-president; Alvin Furlow, and the Rabbi and Mrs. F. K. Hirsch.

George A. Meadows, Shreveport, district governor, will preside at the convention.

SECOND FRONT WAITS ON U. S.

Young And Ever-Growing American Army Needed For Land Fighting

LONDON, Sept. 5.—(Wide World)—Allied hopes of opening a second front and dealing Germany a knockout blow in this fourth year of war rest largely on the shoulders of a young and ever-growing American army. That is the combined opinion of qualified military observers—and figures bear them out.

With a population half as large as Germany's, Britain has an air force that now stacks up as equal to or better than the Reich's, and Britain's navy is far superior to anything Hitler can offer. But it is physically impossible to put a British army in the field to match the German war machine.

Britain has drained her manpower and womanpower reserves in the last three years. Military experts usually estimate that a country can mobilize 10 per cent of its population for the fighting forces, a basis which figures 4,000,000,000 fighting men for Britain.

Prime Minister Churchill announced in his last speech in Commons that at least 950,000 soldiers had been sent abroad, and at last accounts another million were in the RAF. No one except the admiralty knows how many are in the navy but there are certainly at least a half million and this does not include the many thousands in the merchant marine.

This leaves about 1,500,000 for the army in the European theater, about half of whom would be needed in behind-the-lines supply services. Many thousands of home guards—over and under-age men—could be mustered for defense against invasion but these would be of slight use in any offensive action.

The general public has had an impression that Colonial fliers, soldiers and sailors are doing most of the fighting, possibly partly because of an RAF rule that, while the exploits of Canadians, Australians, New Zealanders and South Africans may be mentioned freely, no British pilot or crewman should be mentioned by name unless he has been decorated for bravery. A similar rule exists in the navy.

In the army, anyone may be mentioned in the press but it has been the policy to give more details on the exploits of Colonial troops although the British are in the majority, particularly in the Middle East, and India, and also were predominant in Malaya and Singapore.

Any Allied force invading the continent, should number at least 2,000,000 combat troops, in the opinion of military men—and that is why the American army must be called upon for a major role.

That the United Nations' command fully recognizes the situation is shown by the large numbers of American troops which are being poured into the British isles every month in an ever-increasing tide.

The United States army air force also is prepared to shoulder a big burden.

The tide of war forced Britain to concentrate on production of fighters at the outset—for defense. Then, because of the great distance between Britain and Germany, production turned largely to the big four-motored night bombers.

To support an invading army, thousands of light bombers, reconnaissance and ground support aircraft would be needed in addition to the clouds of fighter ships—and these are types in which the United States excell.

Under the division of operations which this indicates, the RAF would deal ponderous blows at the heart of Germany and clear the skies with fighters. The American air force would be called upon for support of the army in daylight operations.

The greater part of the transport job for invasion would necessarily go to the Royal navy. The American task force now in these islands undoubtedly would take part, but British and American authorities agree that the major assignment of the United States sea forces is keeping the Japanese subdued in the Pacific.

Next to the United States and Britain, Canada probably would be the biggest contributor to an invasion force. The Canadians have a well trained commando army which Ottawa announcements have placed at more than 150,000. Exiled governments in London would contribute little more than token forces to a big scale invasion.

NEGRO IS BURNED IN GASOLINE BLAZE

William Davis, negro, was badly burned yesterday afternoon when gasoline which he was siphoning from an automobile caught fire.

Davis was siphoning gasoline from the machine while the motor was running and the gas was accidentally ignited, according to Monroe firemen who were summoned to the scene at Seventh and Catalpa streets when the automobile also caught fire. The negro was taken to the Charity hospital for treatment.

Firemen also extinguished a house fire yesterday at the home of George Fudge, 307 Eighth street.

Inflation Has Many Faces

Already the United States is in the midst of an inflation which is mounting. We are reluctant to recognize the fact, and we find it easier to ignore because Leon Henderson has given us the hypodermic sedative of price ceilings.

For a time price ceilings can protect us, the consuming public, against the effects of inflation. We have an excuse to argue that there is no inflation. We say that if inflation is a situation in which money loses its power to buy goods, then there can be no inflation so long as Washington sits on the price lid and upholds the buying power of money.

Such a viewpoint is about as short-sighted as for a man sitting on a powder keg to say there is no danger because the burning fuse has not yet reached the explosive.

Price ceilings are, at best, a makeshift expedient to delay the explosion of inflation until something more permanently effective can be done. As such they are justified and worth while, unless—as seems possible—they lull us into false belief that we already have been saved.

Inflation itself is very simple. Its effects, once felt, can not be misunderstood. But the masks which inflation wears, as it creeps up on us, are so various as to confuse the layman.

Inflation can come from the existence of too much actual money, in the form of coin and paper. It can come from too much credit, which for buying purposes is just as effective as actual money. It can come from too few commodities available for purchase.

Usually several of these factors enter into the making of inflation, none seeming important enough to worry us, but all together proving too much for us to withstand.

Today we have at work all of the principal factors which can contribute to inflation.

More men and women are employed than ever in our history, and their wages are at an all-time high, so there is more money circulating.

The government is having to borrow more than any government before ever borrowed, so credit is at an all-time peak.

Virtually all of the factories which used to make heavy consumer goods, and many which used to make expendable commodities, have turned to armament and munitions. So the supply of goods is approaching an all-time low for the modern era.

More money, more credit, less purchasable commodities. Can inflation be far behind? The creaking of the price control machinery says No.

BACK TO SCHOOL

In time of war as in times of peace, schools resume sessions at the appointed time, as youngsters flocking back to the class rooms will attest soon. Time was when education was a hit-or-miss affair and little time was devoted to it by youth. School terms were short, and absence from the school room was not frowned upon. Several grades of elementary study comprised the education of the average person.

But life was simple then and simple, uneducated people fitted into normal activities of the world. Today life is much more complicated and more advanced education—at least in the United States—is compulsory. Even the best education boys and girls can obtain today may be inadequate to meet the needs of the more technical and scientific age that will follow the war.

The evolutionary process in education will be accelerated to keep pace with developments that may bring unforeseen trends, but it behooves the pupil of 1942 to concentrate fully upon the task at hand as a solid foundation for the continuing education that is life. Many persons in older generations who did not make the most of similar responsibilities and opportunities now wish they had done so.

School, of course, is not all work—nor should it ever degenerate to the level of drudgery. School years are years of play and fun, too, and often the boy or girl who excels in such ex-curricular activities does unusually well in studies, too.

LABOR DAY HISTORY

The celebration of Labor day has a history extending over fifty-nine years. In 1883 Matthew Maguire, secretary of the New York City Central Labor union, corresponded with various labor organizations, suggesting that a day be set aside as labor's own holiday. The idea became popular, and the New York state legislature recognized Labor day as a holiday in 1887. It became a national holiday in 1894.

When that first move was made in 1883, hours of labor were long and wages, by present standards, low. Labor has made great strides since those days.

The power labor now exercises also brings responsibility. One of them is to shun the strike as a coercive weapon in war time. In the main, labor and capital get along well together. Wage and other disputes that have arisen in recent months have been the result of upheavals brought about by the war.

It is fitting that a day should be set aside to honor labor, which means every man and woman who works, whether or not he or she belongs to a labor union.

JIMMIE FIDLER In Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 5.—I hate to believe that a Skelton separation crisis may be at hand, despite denials by Red and his Mrs. . . . The Franchot Tones are reported babying again; tragedy took their last. . . . Cowboy star Roy Rogers, who is momentarily 3-A, is falling heir to the big pictures Republic had prepared for Sergeant Gene Autry.

I hear MGM is urging Garbo to "get the war spirit"; at least, to do a radio show and donate her salary to a war fund. . . . Five out of eight men who answered Ken Murray's ad for a chauffeur carried Screen Actors Guild cards. . . . Look for an early marriage for short story writer Richard English and local socialite Kay Whitehead, a honey.

Teresa Wright has offered her services, between pictures, to the United States employment agency, as a farm-worker and fruit picker. . . . Wallace Beery, age 53, is angling to become an air corps instructor. . . . Gosh! Frances Langford, long one of our skinniest stars, has put on so much weight that she has to diet.

Mexican news photographers are flooding Hollywood with pictures of Dolores Del Rio meeting Orson Welles at the station when he passed thrugh Mexico City. But they deny a resumption of romance. . . . Make a bet that Walter Huston ends up with the "Mission to Moscow" plum. . . . Mickey Malone, beer poster girl, is getting a Warner Brothers contract.

Joan Valerie will go to Reno for a "second and quicker" divorce because she has new marriage ideas. . . . Shirley Loo, grandniece of Dr. Sun Yat Sen, Chinese liberator, has been long-termed by Warners. . . . Jimmy Walker (the ex-mayor of NY), will probably be technical advisor on the film, "Grand Street Boys"; Jimmy was once one of 'em.

Laugh of the Week: Guy Kibbee tells it. Seems a foreign diplomat, eating his first meal in the United States, went into ecstacies over the "George Washington cake" served for dessert. En route to New York next day, he asked for it in the dining car, but exploded on sighting his order. "I had George Washington cake yesterday and it was white," he protested. "This cake is chocolate!" "What you don' know, boss," retorted the colored waiter lofully, "is that we've had TWO great men named Washington in this country—George and Booker T."

Preview Nights: Pic of the Week: Paramount's "The Major and the Minor" (Ginger Rogers-Ray Milland). A cinematic dish saturated with vitamins F, U and N. . . . For Your Preferred List: Universal's "Between Us Girls" (Diana Barrymore-Robert Cummings). The "Royal Family's" youngest member proves her right to a crown in a fast-moving, frothy farce. . . . Paramount's "The Glass Key" (Brian Donlevy-Veronica Lake-Alan Ladd). A suspenseful whodunit that reflects credit on those who dooed it. . . . RKO's "Here We Go Again" (Fibber McGee and Molly-Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy). Radio's top-flight comics prove again they should be seen as well as heard. . . . So-So: Universal's "There's One Born Every Minute" (Hugh Herbert-Tom Brown-Peggy Moran). Few guffaws but plenty of giggles. . . . Republic's "Shadows On The Sage." Cowboy Bob Steele shoots it out in another horse-opera as routine as the title.

OUR CHILDREN

By Angelo Patri

Offending a child is too easy. No grown up person should be guilty of it, yet there are some teachers who seem unable to avoid stirring up wrath in children's souls. Experienced teachers rarely do this, young teachers in time, become experienced and tread warily the way to children's hearts.

For these young teachers a word of caution might be offered. There are a few things no teacher ever does. The list is short, but its items spell success or failure for the teacher.

Never ask a new pupil his name, before a class. Let him write it for you, and be sure to smile and greet him in courteous fashion as one introduced properly and by right. You see a child's name is for him, the symbol of his inner self, that person unknown to others, but for him, his very being. Respect that privacy.

The little ones who cannot write their names are to whisper them, or speak them softly into your private ear, for the same reasons. Respect this or take the consequences in tears and stubborn silences and non-cooperation. This rule holds from the kindergarten through high school and down to old age. That is why people have cards with their names printed upon them.

Never disparage a child's offering, work, gifts, opinions—for they are the expression of his inner being and must be respected.

Never cast a suspicion of doubt upon his mother's wisdom. No matter how wrong she may appear to your trained mind, bow to her in the presence of her child. There is between a mother and her child an intangible bond that is firmer than life itself and anybody who challenges its presence commits an unpardonable offense in the mind of the child.

Never ridicule a child. Never scourge him with sarcasm. Never dishonor him publicly. The penalty for that offense is the loss of that child's trust and that of all other children who witnessed it.

Respect the child. If you cannot like him respect him. In time respect breeds liking. Once he knows you like him he likes you gratefully. You can do as you will with him then. You can take him aside and suggest that clean nails are a great asset, that a gentle voice wins friends, that chewing gum in school is not done by the best pupils, that tousled hair is nice on boys at play, but well-brushed hair looks well in school and the girls admire it more.

You can even persuade him to wear a tie and polish his shoes and watch his bath schedule, do his homework and hand it in clean enough to file. You can do more. You can coax him into opening his heart to you so that you know how to direct his thought about the gang, about the girl in the next block and the comics he has begun to collect.

Like him first as he is; offer no offense to his inner being; show him your friendliness and after that do with him as your wisdom directs. He is in your hands.

Sunday School Lesson

Sunday School Lesson for Sept. 13
By William E. Gilroy, D. D.
(Editor Of Advance)
Text: Genesis 37:23-36

This lesson and the two following lessons are based on the story of Joseph, and conclude their quarter's study in the Old Testament.

It would seem to me very important that anyone studying or teaching this lesson should first of all ready the entire story of Joseph. It consists of about 10 chapters in the book of Genesis, and it constitutes probably the most brilliant short story ever written. I suppose that I had read it dozens of times, although I never appreciated it to the full until one Sunday afternoon when I heard an able elocutionist deliver it. I was at that time in charge of a men's meeting, and a Baptist minister, well trained in elocution, provided the program for the afternoon. He recited the 10 chapters of this story of Joseph as it is recorded in the Authorized Version, without comment of any kind. I think that the entire company of men felt the thrill of it as, in listening to the story as a whole, they caught the full power of the highlights and contrasts. I suggest that the reader test out what I am saying by reading it all at one sitting, and if it can be read aloud in a family circle or group I think the effect will be very much what I am suggesting.

The story of Joseph is another episode in the life of Jacob. Here we find him as an old man, repentant for his sins and his trickeries as we have seen him in a former lesson, but having visited upon him in his own large family the sins and deceptions of his own earlier life. Joseph, as the youngest of the 12 children, was his favorite. The fact is that Jacob made the favoritism all too apparent, with the result that he aroused the jealousy of Joseph's brethren and resentment against the special favor that the father showed him.

Joseph himself seems to have been unconscious of their hatred, for when his father sent him to see how his brothers were faring as they tended their flocks he seems to have gone without questioning or any sense of danger. There we enter upon the first tragedy of the story, as the brothers plotted to kill him when they saw him coming.

It is not necessary to go into the details of the story here—how they cast him into a pit and then sold him to the Ishmaelites, killed a goat and dipped Joseph's coat of many colors in its blood so that they might go back and assure their father that he had been killed by a wild beast. The brothers little realized what tragedy they were storing up for themselves or the part that they were going to play later when famine came upon the land and the brother, whom they had despised and sold into slavery, had their very lives and destinies in his hand.

The lessons to be drawn from the story stand out very clearly—the unwisdom of parents showing special favoritism, the tragedy of allowing discord and strife to develop within a family, the depth of evil to which envy and jealousy when they are nurtured can drive man, and all the warnings against evil dispositions and acts which man can overcome or avoid, but which once he has given them way soon become his master.

The larvae of the Hessian fly attack the stems of wheat, barley and rye and are extremely destructive to wheat crops.

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

HOW PERU GOT ITS NAME—When the first white sailors left Panama in search of the empire of the Incas, of whose fabulous wealth vague rumors had reached them, they came to the land of the Barbacoa Indians, on the coast of what is today Colombia. Seeing golden ornaments in the ears and on the persons of the Indians, the Spaniards, by sign language, inquired whence the gold came. In answer, the natives pointed to a land to the south of them. Pointing in the same direction, the Spaniards inquired what the name of the golden country was. The Indians, thinking that their white guests were inquiring about the Incuande river, explained that it was a Piru "river" in the Barbacoa language). The sailors returned to Panama with a tale of a rich country to the south called Peru. Pizarro started for the conquest of the great country whose name has been Peru ever since.

IN WASHINGTON

By Peter Edson
(Monroe Morning World Washington Correspondent)

War Production Board Boss Donald M. Nelson has taken hard the kicking around and whipping that merciless Washington gives to its top public men. For the past month or so he hasn't laughed much or been his usual good-natured self.

His week's vacation in northern New York did him a lot of good, however, and shortly after he came back one of his assistants got an old-time Nelson belly laugh out of him. They were talking about the proposed firings of WPB industry branch chiefs for inefficiency. "Heads are going to roll!" said Nelson seriously.

"We might," said the assistant, "make the slogan 'Keep 'Em Rolling.'"

Uncle Donal' threw back his head and roared.

Breaks Silence

Nelson's Labor day speech at Cleveland is his first major address since last June. Last spring he let himself get in for a whole series of public appearances that ended with the whirlwind tour that took him to his alma mater, University of Missouri at Columbia, Mo.; a miners' meeting in Butte, Mont.; a MacArthur-day celebration in Chicago; a Northwestern university dedication in Evanston. A couple of radio talks were thrown in for good measure. After that Chautauqua circuit swing he raised his right hand and swore solemnly there would be no more speechmaking for a long time to come.

Sweet Thought

There are now seven government agencies having some say-so on sugar supply and that leads to complications.

Into this already oversweetened kettle of fish an eighth agency has now stuck its spoon—the Board of Economic Warfare. One subsequent situation developed like this: Although department of commerce agencies have bought and stored practically the entire crop of Cuban sugar to keep the Cuban sugar brokers and mills from going broke, no such favorable arrangements have been made to purchase the crop of Porto Rico.

The Puerto Rican sugar people, anxious to make a deal for themselves as favorable, started negotiating with all the various government agencies as required. They just started, however, when their Washington representatives received a letter from the sugar section of the Board of Economic Warfare. It said, in effect, that BEW had heard about this proposal and it was BEW's opinion that any deal for Puerto Rican sugar should now be made through BEW. The reason, BEW has control of all imports.

'Home' Drive

Next war campaign to be launched among the civilian population will be a two-weeks' drive to get residences, apartment houses and dwellings of all kinds inspected and registered as "V-homes." This will be an Office of Civilian Defense campaign, opening September 15.

By October 1, it is hoped that OCD volunteer workers can visit every home in every sector and zone of the coastal defense areas checking up on black-out provisions, sand buckets, water pumps for use against incendiary bombs, clean attics and general fire prevention.

Spy Story Unmasked

The full story has never been told on why the government was never able to get a full confession or statement out of Theodore Wozniak, the man who is supposed to have started the fire at the Canadian Car and Foundry plant in Kingsland, N. J., January 11, 1917, setting off an explosion that, with the Black Tom disaster, was supposed to be the most effective job of sabotage in the last war. Now that Wozniak is again in custody, the story is out.

Wozniak dropped out of sight after the fire and was not located until 1930 when the Mixed Claims Commission was conducting its investigation into the disaster. Then Wozniak appeared and offered to sell his information.

Not knowing what his information was, no terms could be made, but a supposedly secret meeting was arranged between Wozniak and a member of the commission. Wozniak specified that no one else should be present and that there should be no stenographic record. Just the same a couple of stenographers were stationed in an adjoining room to take down the statement.

Half way through the statement, one of the stenographers sneezed. Wozniak bolted from the door and disappeared. By the time he was next located, the statute of limitations had run out and he was saved from prosecution. But the department of justice has him in custody now just for safe keeping.

C. I. O. Goes Plushy

C. I. O. has moved into new headquarters in Washington, having joined the ranks of the property owners by purchasing a modern five-story building on Lafayette square, just half a block from the entrance to the White House.

Big laugh in Washington is that C. I. O.'s new next-door neighbor is the ultra-conservative Brookings Institution, where research men write theses and monographs to prove that wages are too high and the union shop is a crime.

But that's only the start of it. C. I. O. occupies only the three top floors. As landlord, it rents the two bottom floors to the former building owner, a bank.

I don't want to tell anyone else what to do with his money. This is a note to myself:

What do you mean,
Walking around in Nylons without runs,
When MacArthur needs guns?

You've killed a lot of people, Scherf,
But what have you done
To hustle Adolph under the turf?

Oh! you bought some 10-cent stamps?
Well, well.

An occasional dime
Isn't going to reconstruct a griddle
For Goering's middle.

You'd better fork over to your Uncle Sam,
Or you'll be sitting in the Nazi stables
Writing publicity for Goebbels.

New York Day By Day

By CHARLES B DRISCOLL
Title Reg U S Patent Office

NEW YORK—Diary: Daughter Pat has pneumonia. Of a sudden, the war, the political situation and eating vanish from our consciousness, and there is only one paramount issue in the universe for us: Will she recover? . . . Mother is in Minnesota. We telephone the bad news as gently as possible, and suffer with her as she quickly throws a few things into a small bag and catches the first train. . . . Doctors come and go, grave, sympathetic, noncommittal. . . . The patient lies quiet, feverish but with no impairment of her gentle disposition. When asked how she feels, the answer is always the same, "Fine." . . . Never tell me there are no neighbors in New York. . . . They come in droves, entering quietly, offering sympathy, flowers, delicate tid-bits for the patient and solid provender for the bewildered household. . . . A neighbor who was a hospital nurse and doctor's technician for years, but now is a housewife, walks out on her work and comes to offer her friendly and skilled services. She shows Mary how to make a bed without disturbing the patient, and many little skills that make the work easier. . . . Old school friends sit up with the patient, talk cheerfully with her, drive the car for me because I am too nervous to drive, and offer a thousand kindnesses. . . . Continually the telephone rings, for the news travels fast among friends, and kindly voices offer help and sympathy. . . . Captain Kidd takes up his station beside the bed, and unobtrusively but sadly and anxiously, keeps night-and-day vigil beside his beloved mistress. . . . From clergymen and laymen, congregations and families, comes the heartening assurance, "We are praying for her." . . . Weary, anxious hours and days, but how much worse they might be without friends!

I'm sure the fountain pen business would be a bust if people didn't lose their pens.

The writing tools are so well made these days, due to inventive progress and that free competition which foolish dreamers wish to destroy, that they never wear out. Most of them are lost, and some are discarded because more modern pens are available.

Among my friends, according to answers to important questions I've been asking, the average purchasing rate is one pen a year.

There are two theories, and my friends are about equally divided on them. Number one, buy cheap pens and don't worry when you lose them. Number two, buy the best at high prices and hold on to them.

The late Albert Payson Terhune taught me that when you lend a pen to a friend for momentary use you should always retain the cap.

That prevents loss by inadvertent pocketing of the pen.

The New York newspapers sometimes carry ethics to extremes.

It is common and angry comment everywhere that the subway dimout has been handled in such a way that there is plenty of light reflected upon the advertising cards that circle the upper borders of the cars, but no light by which to read a newspaper.

The public is disturbed about this, and thousands of letters are pouring in on city and subway authorities. Millions of New Yorkers used to do most of their newspaper reading in the subways. Now they can't do it without serious eyestrain.

But one hesitates to say a word about this phase of the problem. It is their belief that such comment might be taken as a selfish effort in connection with a public problem.

Bah, say I, vulgarly. The people are being put upon, and it is the duty of the papers to put modesty aside and make a roar.

Bowling is one of the beneficiaries of the three-and-gas situation in New York.

Because they can't go to the country, many thousands nightly patronize the bowling alleys. Gigantic new ones are opening in all parts of town.

GERMANS EXECUTE 54 CZECH FAMILIES

LONDON, Sept. 5.—(AP)—The Germans have executed 1,568 Czechs, including 54 whole families "regardless of sex or age," in reprisal for the assassination of Gestapo Hangman Reinhard Heydrich, a Czech government spokesman said today.

In July and August alone he said 120 persons were sentenced to death in Bohemia and Moravia.

The total figures, he said, included those killed when Lidice and Lezaky were wiped out by the Nazis.

"The most horrible chapter is the mass murder of whole families without regard to guilt of members or of their sex and age," the spokesman said. "Fifty-four whole families numbering 131 persons fell victims of this Nazi bestiality."

In the senate election is lacking in the contest between Senator Allen Ellender and E. A. Stephens. Both men have made quick campaign tours through the parish, but their comings and goings created barely a ripple.

In the district judgeship race are District Attorney Frank W. Hawthorne, Bastrop; David I. Garrett, present district judge, and Hillyer S. Parker. Two candidates must be voted for. Judge J. T. Shell of Bastrop is retiring, thus creating one vacancy.

George W. Lester, assistant district attorney, is opposed by John F. "Red" McCormick, West Monroe lawyer, for the district attorneyship, vacated by Hawthorne.

Outstripping the other sections in the number of aspirants is the race for Monroe city marshall, with six men vieing for the post. Two resigned from the city police force to enter politics—C. S. Sisson and William Causey. Others in the city marshall election are Floyd Ferrington, former employe at the city barn; B. L. Risher, incumbent; Marcus Kahn, city employe; and Percy E. Walker.

Only two men, R. L. Kilgore, incumbent, and Tom Brown, are contending for the West Monroe city marshall position.

Outside of the city or parish elections is another race, that for state public service commissioner. Voters will be able to take their pick of John S. Patton, Homer, incumbent, J. H. Davis, Shreveport, and Cornelius J. Bolin.

Two men occupying the same position in the Twin Cities will enter upon another term of office uncontested. They are Monroe City Judge W. M. Harper and West Monroe City Judge Jesse Heard.

GERMANS MAKE WOUNDED FIGHT

given in this communique description:

"Mortar gunners of 'N' unit maintained a fierce fire against a large concentration of enemy forces and wiped out 1,200 German men and officers. They destroyed 17 tanks and 70 trucks with enemy infantry."

In the Mozdok area deep in the Caucasus, the communique said, Russian soldiers dislodged the Germans from a populated place, annihilated about a battalion of German infantry and destroyed 13 trucks, six guns, and a pontoon bridge over a river (presumably the Terek).

The Germans in the Mozdok sector are attempting to reach the Grozny oil fields.

On the western front, where the Russians have been on the offensive, the communique said Soviet tanks have inflicted serious losses on the enemy in some sectors.

"Twenty-six anti-tank guns, four machine guns, four anti-tank rifles were destroyed and 103 blockhouses were smashed," it said.

"The enemy lost in killed alone 800 men and officers."

The Germans have been hitting at Leningrad from the air in recent days, the communique indicated. It said 29 Nazi planes have been destroyed and six damaged near Leningrad in the last two days.

Yesterday the Russians reported they had repulsed repeated assaults by perhaps a half-million Germans southwest of the city and had passed to their own counter-attacks northwest of Stalingrad. The Germans had closed in on Stalingrad from the southwest until the Russians by great efforts halted their advance Friday.

All dispatches indicated the defense was growing in power and Red Star, the army newspaper, said the Russians had inflicted such terrible casualties that the enemy was "assembling his last forces," and even making his wounded fight.

As hundreds of tanks and a thousand first line planes beat at the stalwart Russian defenses, the Red army struck boldly in the northwest on the plains between the Volga and Don and penetrated a German position, killing 270 and capturing prisoners and materiel.

The Germans said Stalingrad had been converted into a vast fortress—"a Red Verdun"—that will be difficult to take.

"The Soviets are fighting with their backs to the wall; they are faced with the alternative of either capitulating or fighting to the last man," a high Berlin military informant was quoted. "They will certainly not capitulate." The Germans said they stormed several modern forts and repulsed strong relieving attacks northwest of the city. The capture of Tamanskaya in an advance on the Black sea base of Novorossisk was claimed.

Russian defenses in the Caucasus also were reported checking the German tide and the Red army was declared counterattacking in the center near the Grozny oil fields. Defensive battles were fought northwest of Novorossisk.

The Russian counter offensive in the Rzhev sector 130 miles from Moscow started rolling again with the capture of several populated places. Heavy rains and resultant mud bogs had slowed the Soviet drive.

The fighting at Stalingrad was perhaps the bloodiest in all history. There were hints that the besieging Germans were in difficulty with a wall of Red army fire in front of them and a barren expanse of burned out steppe at their rear. Overhead, the sun beat down relentlessly adding its fiery torture to that of flame throwers, exploding shells and screaming bombs.

The stiffening of the Russian defenses at the city named for Stalin came after three bitter days of withdrawal.

Red Star, the army newspaper, asserted that German officers were forcing wounded men into the frantic attack to capture the city—apparently the main objective of the Germans this year—before winter adds to the Nazi difficulties.

"The enemy is still strong here but his hasty conclusive actions indicate he is assembling his last forces from other sectors and fronts," Red Star declared. "The infuriated enemy is trying desperately to advance. Behind the enemy troops is the burned, devastated and stamped steppe."

With autumn beginning, the time factor was of increasing importance. Every day the defenses of Stalingrad held the bulk of the German armies west of the Volga robbed Hitler of time to start a new push before winter.

The military press said the Russian offensive at Rzhev had outflanked German positions and that the Red armies in the Caucasus were hitting back hard at the enemy trying to advance east through Mozdok and along the Black sea toward Novorossisk. Only in one sector, the latter, was a German gain admitted.

The Germans tried again to bomb Leningrad but the Russians said they were repulsed with the loss of eight planes.

ROMMEL'S AXIS FORCES RETREAT

fighters shot down nine enemy planes, three near Alexandria and five over the desert battle area. Two of the craft bagged in the Alexandria vicinity were Italian Cant bombers.

The aerial operations were hampered somewhat by the weather, but Allied airmen made a determined assault upon Axis vehicles. Reconnaissance pilots brought back reports today that they left the forward area littered with burned out machines.

British armored and mobile forces kept up pressure throughout the day on Rommel's principal concentrations in the Himemat, north of the Qattara depression.

At the week's end, British military sources credited British arms with a limited victory in the sparring which Rommel started in preparation for his all-out campaign aimed at Suez, Alexandria and the valley of the Nile.

Britain tank-bursting 25-pounders and a new 4.5-inch howitzer were credited with inflicting heavy losses upon Axis armor. Military quarters suggested that General Sir Harold Alexander, the British Middle East commander, might press forward with an offensive of his own if, as some sources believed, Rommel's quick withdrawals were prompted by supply difficulties.

Though the big battle is yet to come, front line accounts said that in the last five days Rommel's losses had been considerable. Casualties were said to have been especially heavy among his heavy tanks bumping into British tanks and artillery.

At the start of the Axis operations Rommel sent his 90th light infantry, an elite organization of picked men eastward and slightly north of his tank columns with the apparent intention of cutting through the New Zealanders and joining up with his armor after turning northward behind the New Zealander positions. But they failed to get through the Allied forces.

In the coastal area farther to the north Australians continued their specialty of night raids which Axis prisoners admit are terrifying.

The nature of the operations so far has provided good training for new tank units just out from England and for the United States token force with British tank units.

The caution the enemy is exercising and the inroads already made on his tank strength have dissipated any feeling there might have been that German armor might be invincible.

000 had already been spent on the Higgins project.

Vickery said the Higgins contract was awarded on the basis of steel estimates provided by the WPB.

Aside from the cancellation question, the report is expected to contain a discussion of the methods of certain warehouses—the so-called "Black Market" in steel.

This phase of the inquiry began in New Orleans when Frank Higgins, son of Andrew J. Higgins, testified that the Higgins Shipbuilding Corporation had been buying steel at premium prices from warehouses in larger amounts than permitted by WPB regulations, simply by splitting a purchase—on paper—into several smaller purchases.

Some witnesses called this a "Black Market," and others said the practice was not a "Black Market." Chairman Peterson sought to avoid use of the term, saying it was a play on words.

"Give us the facts," he would instruct each witness.

The WPB sent investigators to New Orleans to ascertain whether warehouses were conforming to WPB rules, and a few days later the WPB said there was no evidence of a "Black Market." Members of the Peterson subcommittee called Hector J. Dowd, chief investigator of the compliance section of the WPB, who said the statement in a WPB press release was based on a preliminary report which he had written, and that his investigation of warehouses was barely beginning. He said that he was convinced there had been warehouse irregularities and was pressing the search for violators.

On the subcommittee besides Peterson and O'Brien are Representatives Bonner, Democrat, North Carolina; Domengeaux, Democrat, Louisiana; Sullivan, Democrat, Missouri, and Van Zandt, Republican, Pennsylvania.

ORDER LIMITING PAY EXPECTED

fully in bringing about these new economic controls.

"I think the president has ample authority to control wages but I am doubtful about the extent of his authority to set aside a provision of an act of congress prohibiting price ceilings on farm products below 110 per cent parity."

This provision permits prices of agricultural products to rise 10 per cent above parity, which is a level calculated to give farmers a purchasing power equal to that of a past period, usually 1909-14.

The president's Labor Day statement tonight said that because the "evil men of west and east" threaten democracy and democracy's labor, farmers and industrialists, "we are certain to be asked for sacrifices."

This, said the president, is a grave hour for labor as it is for "the farmer, the industrialist, the teacher and preacher, the aproned housewife, the smallest child in the cradle."

"All these are the beneficiaries and heirs of the democratic system," he said, "and it is democracy itself that the evil men of west and east hate and seek to destroy."

In many countries free labor is nonexistent, he declared, and in conquered lands workmen "cower beneath the lash of the slave-masters," and their rights and those of free men have vanished.

"They are threatened and besieged everywhere," the chief executive said.

But he added this cheering word:

"Happily, our good right arm is strong and growing stronger. In our own country, in the countries of our brother Allies, the people who live by the sweat of their brows have risen mightily to the challenge of the struggle. * * * Production of war materials here is now the greatest in our history, but it is not yet enough. It will be greater still."

LABOR DAY WILL NOT HALT WORK

Georgia, Kentucky and New York reported two deaths each. Indiana and Iowa had one apiece.

Chicago had a rare 24-hour period without a single traffic death.

The serious-minded observance of the holiday Monday, will be marked by the absence of customary parades in many cities where war industry is centered.

Instead it will be a combination of work and celebration in the shipyards of 27 states as launchings or keel-laying for 150 warships, many of them small vessels, takes place, the navy department announced.

On Monday evening, President Roosevelt has scheduled a broadcast to the people on government plans to check inflation and possibly other matters connected with the war effort.

William Green, leader of the American Federation of Labor, and Philip Murray, president of the Congress of Industrial organizations, also planned addresses on Labor Day. Murray will talk from New Kensington, Pa., and Green will speak at an Omaha rally. Paul V. McNutt, federal security administrator, will talk at Omaha also.

BRODNAX STANDS BEHIND FARMER

Candidate Thinks Removal Of Trade Barriers Would Aid Planters

"I stand behind the farmer—the forgotten man of the nation," Max Broadnax, candidate for congressman from the fifth congressional district, keys his campaign.

The farm-reared Bastrop man has served as tax assessor for the past two terms, and for many years prior to that has been actively interested in politics.

In his opinion, certain trade barriers with foreign nations have done much to harm the status of the farmer, a condition which he proposes to remedy by removing those trade barriers.

Listed on his platform are federal old age pension, bonuses for soldiers upon their discharge and equalization of freight rates.

Quoting from an advertisement paid for by Morehouse parish friends for Max Broadnax.

"Max was elected tax accessor in Morehouse parish for a second term which expires in 1944. During these two terms he has made us one of the very best assessors this parish ever had.

"His patriotism and devotion to his country is unquestionable and we feel that through his broad experience as a business man, farmer and laborer, he could contribute very materially toward ironing out some of the kinks we all know exist in congress.

"If you elect him your next congressman we believe he will exert his entire efforts and abilities for the general improvement of conditions in the fifth district."

He has conducted his campaign on a high level, has refrained from criticising any of his opponents at any time. He solicits your vote and influence wholly on his record as a public servant.

He regrets having to mention the question of white supremacy which has been injected into this campaign, which to his way of thinking is a regrettable affair. He asks the voters this question, "Who is there in the fifth district that does not believe in white supremacy?"

It is impossible due to the time left in this campaign to see all the people of this district. He will appreciate his friends using their influence in his behalf. He also desires to express his appreciation to the many, many friends throughout the district who are actively supporting him.

Sales and deliveries of dehydrated vegetables to the armed forces and any government purchasing agency are now excluded from provisions of the general maximum price regulation in order to encourage development of these products which are of primary importance to the war food program. Louisiana furnishes considerable quantities of dehydrated sweet potatoes, United States Goodman, state OPA director, says.

THOMPSON URGES ELLENDER VOTE

Local Attorney Cites Experience, Contacts Of Junior U. S. Senator

Pointing out that Senator Allen Ellender's membership on important committees, his contacts in Washington and his long legislative experience are invaluable to the state, Wood Thompson, prominent Monroe attorney, in an address Friday night urged the reelection of the junior United States senator.

"In arriving at our selection we should not be influenced by appeals to passion, prejudice or hate," Mr. Thompson said. "We should disregard the mouthings of the slanderous. We should reject all appeals to partianship. We should denounce all who, for selfish or other reasons, depart from the field of reason to carry on a campaign of vilification, slander and abuse. We should be guided solely and only by the training, the experience and the ability of the respective candidates."

Mr. Thompson observed that E. A. Stephens, Senator Ellender's opponent, had had no legislative experience, either in his native state of Virginia or since he came to Louisiana some ten years ago.

Among the important committee posts held by Senator Ellender is that on the Senate Agricultural committee, Mr. Thompson said, and he recalled that in December, 1937, the American Farm Bureau federation at a national meeting in Chicago, recorded its appreciation of the work of Senator Ellender. In April, 1930, he said Norris C. Williamson, of Lake Providence, president of the American Cotton Cooperative association, said: "The farmers who own and control ACCA have won a real victory, largely through the fearless and determined stand taken by Senator Ellender, who did not miss a single session of the committee nor a word of the testimony. Other senators gave him able support, but Senator Ellender was the spearhead of the group who were determined to see all the facts brought to light."

"Senator Ellender has been fair to labor, to big business and to little business," Mr. Thompson said. "Realizing that the man with a small business would suffer financial disaster if some legislative relief was not given, Senator Ellender prepared, introduced and is confident of passage of a bill which will provide for the maintenance of some twenty million automobiles for the duration of the war. This bill will not only permit small tire dealers and independent operators of filling stations to remain in business, but it will prevent nationwide rationing of gasoline. This is only one of the things Senator Ellender has done for the small business man."

The bagpipe, also known as dudelsack and cornemuse, was in popular use throughout Europe in the 15th century.

Monroe Air School Navigator

When Mr. Willard I. Shepherd reported to the Monroe AAF Navigation School a few days ago, the Post got two unique additions.

These were its first bandmaster and its first warrant officer. Both were in the person of Mr. Shepherd.

W. I. Shepherd

As bandmaster, Mr. Shepherd finds himself without a band, although one is being organized speedily through the joint efforts of the new bandmaster and Captain Arthur M. Culpepper, Special Services Officer of the Post.

As a warrant officer, Mr. Shepherd finds himself the only representative on the field of class of military personnel which is a cut above non-commissioned grades and a cut below commissioned grades. He is addressed as "Mister."

Born August 4, 1916, in Toledo, O., Mr. Shepherd entered the service from Emporia, Kan., where he had been graduated from Roosevelt High School and later, in 1939, from Kansas State Teachers College, with a degree of Bachelor of Science in Music. For two years after college he was a supervisor of music in the public schools of Norton, Kan.

Entering the service on July 2, 1941, Mr. Shepherd spent a few months at Camp Wolters, Tex., and then went to the reception center at Fort Bliss, Tex., where he was active in band work. Last June he left Fort Bliss, a corporal, for the Army Music School at Fort Myer, Va. Eight weeks later he emerged a bandmaster, with a warrant officer's appointment, jumping from Corporal Shepherd to Mr. Shepherd in one day.

He came to Monroe via Maxwell Field.

Mr. Shepherd is no novice at the music business.

In 1934, he was national high school champion trombonist.

In 1941, he was director of the Kansas bandmasters clinic at Norton.

He has been pictured in Life Magazine as a singer.

No tyro at stagecraft, he was member of the Gilson Players, a little theater group in Emporia, during his college days and after. In this connection, he has played before a very appreciative William Allen White in the dramatization of Mr. White's book, "A Certain Rich Man." Mr. Shepherd delighted the sage of Emporia with his characterization of General Hendricks in the play, "John Barclay." But that isn't all.

In 1939, Mr. Shepherd won an RKO certificate of merit in Jesse Lasky's "Gateway To Hollywood" acting competition of that year.

The bandmaster's eldest sister, Mary Jane, is leading soprano of the Detroit Civic Opera, and a soloist on the Ford Sunday evening hour.

It's a musical family.

Comment has already been made in this space on the valued services rendered to the dental officers on the field by members of the local medical community.

This picture of medical cooperation is only half complete.

The other half of the picture shows that similar cooperation has characterized the relations of the Monroe medical men with the medical staff on the field.

Major Roland V. DeMichele, the post surgeon, commented the other day that "the physicians of Monroe have been willing to go more than half way" in getting together with the officers of the Medical Corps.

The authorities of both the E. A. Conway Memorial and the St. Francis hospitals have been most kind and cooperative during the period of the construction of the post hospital, it was added.

Specially appreciated was the gesture of the Ouachita Parish Medical Society in inviting members of the post medical staff to the first meeting of the society after the summer recess. The meeting, held last Thursday, was well attended by the post staff. After the reading of two interesting papers, hosts and guests joined in an open discussion the matter presented.

Enlisted men of the Monroe AAF Navigation school who aspire to commissions may now have their applications for Officer Candidate Schools processed right on the field. A board of officers has been created for the express purpose of passing on the mental, moral and physical qualifications of applicants.

This board, one of many functioning on the field now, numbers Captain Charles V. Williams as president, Second Lieutenant William D. Allen as recorder, Captain William G. Forsyth and James O. Finney and First Lieutenant Frederic C. Pew as members. Captain Finney, an officer of the Medical Corps, is the medical member.

CADETS HOLD FIRST REVIEW AT SCHOOL

Graduating navigation cadets, of class 42-17 of the Monroe Pre-Flight school, marched in the first review on the field parade grounds Saturday afternoon, Lieutenant Colonel Thomas V. Webb, commander of the school, newly promoted Major Renfrew S. Allen, and other officers of the staff reviewed the passing cadet squadrons.

The parade was directed by Captain Ashby S. Patterson, commandant of student officers and cadets, and his military training assistants, Captain Charles W. Clark, Jr., and Lieutenant Charles R. Coble.

The Navigation Cadet Military band, under the direction of Warrant Officer Willard I. Shepherd, furnished the background music during the colorful ceremonies. Not dismayed by the hot afternoon sun, the cadets marched with precision and smartly snapped "eyes right" to the reviewing party.

After the entire navigation contingent passed the reviewing stand, they circled back to their original positions on the parade grounds to stand personal inspection.

SERVICE STATIONS TO CLOSE SUNDAY

Monroe and West Monroe service stations cooperating with the Service Station association will remain closed on Sunday's for the duration of the war despite the fact that the state law ordering Sunday closings has been repealed, it was announced yesterday.

The Sunday closing agreement was decided on here Friday at a meeting of service station operators at the courthouse.

The service station men reached their decision with the hope of meeting to some extent the increasing rubber shortage and relieving wartime traffic congestion but also pointed out that it would permit employes an off day to be with their families, additional recreation and an opportunity to attend churches of their choice.

GEORGE W. LESTER

CANDIDATE FOR

DISTRICT ATTORNEY

FOURTH JUDICIAL DISTRICT

OUACHITA AND MOREHOUSE PARISHES

During my campaign, every effort has been made by me to see each voter in person; but this has been an impossible task, and only a few days remain before the Primary Election on September 8th. Therefore, I am taking this means of bringing my candidacy to your attention. As most of you know, I am the present Assistant District Attorney for Ouachita and Morehouse Parishes, and have served in that capacity for the past eight years. This long period of service has not only amply qualified me to fulfill the duties of the office I now seek, but has enabled me to gain much invaluable experience that can be gained in no other way than by actual practice in the criminal courts.

I am now seeking advancement to the office of District Attorney—to which I feel I am justly entitled. During my terms as Assistant District Attorney, I have, at all times, endeavored to administer the affairs of that office fairly and impartially, which, as your District Attorney, I shall continue to do. If you feel my record entitles me to the advancement I seek, you are respectfully solicited to cast your vote and support in my behalf on next Tuesday, September 8th.

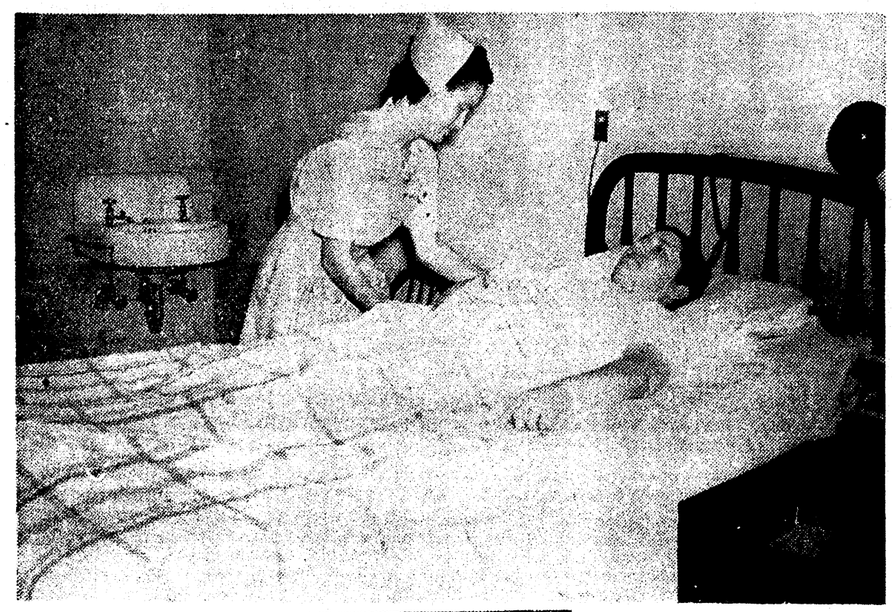
THESE ARE SOME OF THE THINGS A NURSE'S AIDE DOES



The photographer followed Nurse's Aide Mrs. Alfred Hanks, Edgewater Gardens, around one morning at the St. Francis sanitarium to see how she spent her time. Upper right caught her as she signed in, fresh and crisp in her blue pinafore and cap and white shoes and shirt. Left, she makes up a patient's bed, with said patient undisturbed during the proceedings. It was about time for breakfast then, so pretty little Mrs. Hanks journeyed to the kitchen to pick up that tray she's so carefully carrying in the left. In the lower left, she's wheeling a convalescing patient out on the porch for some fresh air.

"Therefore, I, Harvey H. Benoit, mayor of Monroe, La., do hereby join with other cities in designating the week of Sept. 6-12, 1942, as Volunteer Nurse's Aide Week and urge all women to do what they can to help in this worthwhile work."

With this proclamation by the mayor the spotlight is focused upon those bustling, blue-and-white clad women who have invaded the hospitals of the nation to help relieve the shortage of graduate nurses brought on by the war.

Just how does she function? Suppose we let one of Monroe's qualified nurse's aides tell us.

"Goodness, we do any number of things!" laughs Mrs. Paul Thompson, 408 Louisville avenue, designated by Mrs. Travis Oliver, chairman of Ouachita parish nurse's aide corps, as an outstanding member of the first class of volunteer aides.

"Clerical work, take temperatures, arrange flowers, answer telephone calls, bathe and feed patients—I've even run out and bought a pair of socks for one of my small patients out at Charity hospital," she ennumerated.

But why did Mrs. Thompson join the nurse's aide group?

"Oh, you know how it is—every little girl wants to be a nurse, and many women never quite outgrow that desire. It was that plus a desire to do some sort of defense work that made me select the nurse's aide work.

"And I love it! Out at Charity, where I'm giving my services, I've made a number of real friends. And I've received three letters and a pair of pillowcases from some of my patients there."

Before Mrs. Thompson was ready to begin her nurse's aide's duties, she had to take an 80-hour training course at the St. Francis sanitarium under the direction of Miss Mary Gillen, superintendent of nurses. Half of the course consisted of classroom instruction and the other half of application of the theory in actual practice.

When the slender, serene volunteer completed the training course, she embarked upon her 150 hours of duty that she must complete before she will receive her service stripe. Mrs Thompson was assigned to Charity hospital, where she has only a few more hours of service in the pediatric and obstetrics wards before the coveted stripe will be hers.

Daily Mrs. Thompson's husband buttons his wife into her full-shirted blue pinafore-uniform. And daily she moves among her patients spreading cheer and happiness. She works without pay of course, though she insists that the "gratitude of those nurses and the children is pay aplenty."

In speaking of Volunteer Nurse's Aide Week, Chairman Oliver says:

"For women who sincerely want to help in the war, the nurse's aide corps of the American Red Cross offers the highest type of service. This is an opportunity for the women and girls of Monroe to help relieve the acute shortage on the home front, for the local chapter must enroll 100 nurse's aides students this month.

"More than 32,000 nurse's aides are already on duty, but increasing demands for registered nurses by the army and navy make 100,000 more needed this month. The nurse's aide is exactly what her name implies—an efficient help to the graduate nurse, relieving the latter for the vital, life-saving work for which she has been trained."

Mrs. Oliver urged women meeting the requirements for this volunteer service to call or visit the Red Cross chapter office. Nurse's aides must be between the ages of 18 and 50, in good health and having a high school education or its equivalent.

Men who join the American Legion battalion will be regular members of the marine corps for the duration of the war or six months thereafter.

JOHNSON IS AAF AREA ENGINEER

Popular Officer Has Direct Supervision Of Construction Of Post

Captain Otis P. Johnson, Jr., a native of Little Rock, Ark., and a long time resident of Monroe, is the top representative of the Army Corps of Engineers on the field of the Monroe A. A. F. Navigation school.

He holds the title of area engineer. Charged with direct supervision of construction for the entire post, he has one of the toughest assignments in northeast Louisiana.

Despite the weight of this responsibility, Captain Johnson finds or makes time to be accessible to everyone. His office is a welter of blueprints, construction schedules, reports, correspondence, specifications and engineering tables. His office hours are punctuated by calls for last minute changes, reports of temporary breakdowns, requests for redistribution of supplies and consultations on coordination of the various phases of work.

For callers of high and low rank, however, the captain cuts through this barrage. Usually the visitors want something. Usually they get it. And Captain Johnson is one of the most popular officers on the field.

This is an old stamping ground for Captain Johnson.

He knows as much about the Ouachita river as anyone alive, probably, with the possible exception of K. R. Young, the area engineer for the western area of the Vicksburg Engineering district. For more than eight years Captain Johnson worked as assistant area engineer to Mr. Young on the Ouachita river levee system, a project extending some 60-odd miles from the Bastrop hills down to the vicinity of Columbia. Working both in the office and in the field, he was one of the chief architects of Monroe's levee and wall system.

In January, 1941, in response to a call for an engineer to supervise paving and barracks construction at Barksdale field, Mr. Young reluctantly assigned Captain Johnson to the Shreveport field. After fifteen months at Barksdale, Captain Johnson came to Monroe to tackle his present job last spring.

His commission as a captain in the Corps of Engineers on May 8 of this year transferred him from the civilian to the military personnel of that branch.

The captain was born February 1, 1906, in Little Rock. He attended Little Rock High school and studied for two years at Little Rock college. He transferred to the University of Arkansas, where he ended his studies in civil engineering a year and a half later, in 1927.

For three years he won letters in football and track. His present favorite sport is hunting.

In May of 1929, Captain Johnson married the former Miss Agnes Lovaston of Little Rock. The Johnsons have two children.

NEWT V. MILLS STATEMENT

To the People of the Fifth Congressional District

I have conducted my candidacy for re-election to Congress in a manner that is becoming to the dignity of every home.

Every statement made by my opponents against me is untrue and I am surprised that they continue to raise the same questions which I have proven are untrue by the records.

Yes, my Congressional voting record shows my opponents are ill-advised concerning the subjects with which they have undertaken to mislead or cloud the minds of the people.

I believe my opponents should have offered to the people of the 5th Congressional District a constructive platform or advised you what attitude they propose to take concerning many problems of state which effect our very existence; however, they have spent the entirety of their time undertaking to mislead you, but I am happy my record as your National Representative has been one that every citizen is proud to endorse.

Do you honestly know what attitude my opponents will take on any issue? Why, they have not offered one constructive idea or one constructive thought. It is easy to find fault, but in this great international crisis, I believe my opposition should have at least discussed with you what their attitude is concerning the many problems confronting our nation, the many problems confronting our very existence, paramount problems that every home is interested in solving in that we may preserve for posterity our way of life.

BUSINESS

I have represented my people in a constructive manner. Represented business, agriculture, labor, transportation and other vocations on that plane for a greater society. I have been fair to business on all legislation, not forgetting a single instance that our economic front must be maintained if labor is to enjoy healthful conditions. I have consistently helped to persuade capital to locate in the 5th Congressional District. I have helped to bring several defense projects to my section and others are listed to be located in my Congressional District.

LABOR

My labor friends, have you forgotten I am the first man from the South to walk down to the Speaker's desk, 1937, and sign the discharge petition to bring the Wage and Hour bill to the floor of the House?

My heart was not colored against your problems. I have been your friend, a tried and proven friend. My opponents even today are undertaking to mislead you against my record, just as they have undertaken to mislead you on many other propositions.

OUR FIRST TASK IS TO WIN THE WAR

Our first task is to win the war in the shortest possible time. I have voted for every appropriation bill for the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, Air Corps and Coast Guard, which has come before Congress during my approximately 6 years' service, including Guam. 1937, I advocated an air fleet of 50,000 planes and was one of the very first men in public life to do so. I also vigorously urged construction of a two-ocean Navy, the most complete coastal land defenses and strongest fortifications, and the most effective anti-aircraft defenses which science can provide. I have continued, in and out of Congress, to urge these measures for our National Defense. I have given my full support to the war program and shall do so as long as I am a Member of Congress, until we have won this war.

EXPERIENCE IS VALUABLE AND NEEDED

I have now served in Congress for approximately 6 years and acquired training and experience which are valuable to our people and sorely needed in this crisis in our National history. Even in normal times that would be true, for influence in Congress depends upon length of service and seniority on important committees. It is doubly true now. At no time in our history has it been more essential that safe, clear-thinking and experienced men be on duty to chart our course. Our actions in the coming two years will determine our very existence as a free nation and our future national welfare.

The chosen Representatives of the people are always important, but more so now than ever. We must have capable, safe, and experienced men in Congress. We do not have time to train new Members in this grave emergency. A large group of new and inexperienced men in the next Congress might prove our downfall, regardless of how hard they tried to understand and learn and get acquainted and act for our best interest. It requires time and training to develop competent Congressmen. They must learn the hard way—by actual experience and study. There is no known substitute for experience and training. As former Speaker Champ Clark said many years ago:

"A man has to learn to be a Congressman just as he must learn to be a blacksmith, a carpenter, a farmer, an engineer, a lawyer, or a doctor."

STATEMENTS FROM OTHERS

Since my opponents have seen fit to attack me personally, I am sure the voters of the 5th District will be interested to read the letters below from National leaders:

Committee on Appropriations
CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES
House of Representatives

Honorable Newt V. Mills August 12, 1942.
House of Representatives, Washington, D. C.
Dear Mr. Mills:

I had expected to call upon you before leaving Washington to express my appreciation of your warm cooperation and invaluable support of the war program of the administration, and am taking the first opportunity to drop you a line and tell you how much we appreciated the help you gave us on every national defense bill and especially on the authorization and appropriation items requested by the President and the War Department and the Navy Department.

As Chairman of the Committee reporting the bills, it was my duty to keep in touch with the members we could rely upon to get these vital bills through the House and I wanted to tell you how much we appreciated the consistent and unfailing approval and votes you always gave us. You have taken a leading part in the affairs of the House and contributed materially to the success of the administration's war program and I wish to thank you personally for the great help you have rendered us in this critical period of the nation's history.

With appreciation and best wishes.

Sincerely,
CC/ig (Signed) CLARENCE CANNON.

OFFICE OF THE MAJORITY LEADERS
House of Representatives, U. S.
Seventy-fifth Congress,
Washington, D. C.

AGRICULTURE

I have fought for higher prices at all times for agricultural commodities. Recognizing the farmer is the poorest paid employee in the United States, I pledge to the farmer a continued fight that he may receive proper wages for his labor. My interest in your agricultural problems shall ever be paramount.

WAR EFFORT

I supported all legislation for our National Defense and I promise a continued fight to this end—that that little boy of yours, even though a man, your sweetheart, and your husband may come back to you when the veil of this hour has been raised.

My opponents at first claimed I did not support our National Defense Program, but now they admit since Pearl Harbor I have supported our National Defense Program, however, state I did not support our War Effort before Pearl Harbor. I submit below a letter which again proves they are in error as they have been on every other statement.

Honorable Newt V. Mills, June 10, 1938.
House of Representatives.
Dear Newt:

The Seventy-fifth Congress is rapidly drawing to a close. I am writing you this letter to thank you for your fine work as Representative from your District.

I want you to know how personally grateful I am to you for the interest you have shown in the National problems of our country. I have depended on you much and during the short time you have been a member of the House, you have impressed yourself upon its membership in a way that has made you very highly regarded. Your work on the Committees of Insular Affairs, Public Buildings and Grounds and Territories has been of great service. I trust that the people of your District will exercise the good judgment to return you to the House of Representatives where, on account of character and ability, you will gain in power and in influence in the years to come.

With every good wish for you personally, I am
Sincerely yours,
(Signed) SAM RAYBURN.

THE SPEAKER'S ROOM
House of Representatives, U. S.
Washington, D. C.

Hon. Newt V. Mills,
Member of Congress, July 1, 1938.
Monroe, Louisiana.
My dear Newt:

Now that the strenuous labors of the last session of the Seventy-fifth Congress have been ended and our records made, I cannot resist an impulse to write you an expression of my deep appreciation of your cordial cooperation with me in carrying forward our program of legislation.

It has been a very genuine personal satisfaction for me to have served with you in the House and no one is in better position than I to have observed the fidelity, diligence and ability with which you have performed the duties of your office as Representative of your District, and I congratulate you upon the high character of public service you have rendered.

Wishing you a happy and beneficial vacation and with the assurance of my personal esteem and good wishes, I am
Sincerely your friend,
(Signed) WM. B. BANKHEAD

WAR DEPARTMENT HOLDS MY EXPERIENCE NEEDED IN CONGRESS

Had you rather accept my opponents' statements or be guided by the opinion of the War Department? You will note from the below letter the War Department holds I can render a greater service to my country due to experience by remaining in Congress.

WAR DEPARTMENT
Office of the Chief of Staff
Washington, D. C.

Hon. Newt V. Mills June 17, 1942.
House of Representatives
Washington D. C.
Dear Mr. Mills:

I have your letter of June 16 in which you offer your services to the armed forces in any capacity wherever assigned.

The Secretary of War, in a letter to the Speaker of the House of Representatives expressed the opinion that Members of Congress can render greater service to the Nation by continuing to perform their duties as a legislative Representative of the people, in which office they have acquired valuable experience than by serving with the armed forces.

Maintaining the orderly functions of the Government during crises such as this is as important to the Army as officers and men in the field. Therefore, it is believed, that you will render greater service to our Nation by remaining on this important duty than by undertaking active participation in the armed forces.

Your patriotic and generous offer is very much appreciated and I assure you that, if at a later date your services can be utilized to a greater advantage, the War Department will be pleased to call upon you.

Sincerely yours,
(Signed) EDWARD W. SMITH
Lieutenant Colonel, General Staff
Corps, Legislative and Liaison Division, Executive.

ADMITTED TRUTHS

My opponents at first stated I did not vote to fortify the strategic Islands of the Pacific. Now they admit I did vote to fortify the strategic Islands of the Pacific. Second, my opponents stated I did not support the President's National Defense Program. Now they admit I did support the President's National Defense Program.

Too, I am proud my opponents have agreed I have supported all legislation for National Defense, and agreed to their friends I should be returned to Congress in the First Primary.

CONCLUSION

In conclusion, I would appreciate your vote. My record stands on my work for measures intended to improve the conditions and opportunities of my people, and my fights against proposals intended to hurt or curtail their existing rights and privileges; therefore, I hope it has entitled me to the respect of the thousands who gave me this chance to serve them.

The experience I have gained by the continued support of the voters of my district has ripened my original enthusiasm into a steadier ability to accomplish the proper solution of the many problems of the various elements of our citizenship.

The people of the 5th Congressional District have enabled me to gain this experience. I have used and will continue to use it for their benefit. Added experience gives me added prestige with those in Washington who have the power to give and withhold.

The district gains in accomplishment of its needs and desires as I gain in accumulation of experience and service.

For the past expressions of confidence from my friends and neighbors I promise the continued exertion of my entire ability in their behalf. I promise a veteran's fight for a sturdy, progressive people. And I assure you I will continue to represent you on that plane that stands for a greater democracy, on that plane for a greater world, and on that plane that we will successfully win this war.

Sincerely . . . Your Congressman

RHOADES PLEASED WITH PROSPECTS

Candidate Pledges Support Of War Program And The President

After covering all the 14 parishes of the 5th congressional district, Orlin "Speedy" Rhoades, candidate for congress and resident of West Monroe, said he felt confident that the voters of the district will send him to congress.

"The people have been deceived by political tricksters," said Rhoades Saturday, "and while I am not a politician I have offered my services to the people of this district, knowing how they have been fooled in the past. In Washington I will be for the largest army and navy for the winning of this war and in peace time I still believe the good old U. S. A. should have a two-ocean navy that can guarantee us protection against any combination of anti-democratic nations.

"I will back the president in every program that I believe to be right and for the betterment of the nation and the Fifth district of Louisiana."

Rhoades, who was raised on a hill farm, is advocating more benefits for the farmer.

"Every farmer is entitled to an earning capacity of at least $45 per week," said Rhoades "and the laboring man should at least earn a minimum of 75c per hour. With the farmer and laboring man earning a fair wage America will be a still greater, happy and more prosperous country with all the people having an abundance of food, raiment and shelter. That's the kind of America I want to see and when you send me to Washington the representative from the Fifth Louisiana congressional district will be the man to advocate these benefits for our people."

Candidate Rhoades addressed the members of the Central Trades and Labor council Saturday night. Monday he will wind up his campaign in Monroe.

• SERIAL STORY

WHEN A GIRL MARRIES

BY RENE RYERSON MART

COPYRIGHT, 1942, NEA SERVICE, INC.

CHAPTER XVI

It was a break for Phil and Letty, the first real break they'd ever had.

A friend of Phil's who had gone out to California months before had written urging Phil to come out there, too. He had a job for him in an airplane factory, and Phil could go to work as soon as he got there at wages that seemed fabulous to him and Letty.

"Some of the other boys from the shop are going, too," Phil explained.

"Tom?" Enid asked with sudden alertness.

Phil looked at her queerly. "No. Tom enlisted in the army a month ago. Didn't you know?"

Enid's face flushed scarlet. She knew they had all been wondering what had happened between her and Tom.

It was Letty who saved her from further embarrassment, her faded eyes bright and shining, and bubbling over with excited plans.

She was saying eagerly to Mom, "I want you and Pop to come out and visit us just as soon as we get settled."

Mom dabbed at her red eyes. She was trying to be gallant, but the thought of Letty and the children going so far away filled her with panic. She was sure something terrible would happen to them.

Letty paused, struck by a sudden inspiration. "Mom—I just thought! Why couldn't you and Pop go with us now? We're driving. There'd be room in the car."

There was a sudden silence in the Sharon living room, and then slowly but firmly Mom shook her head. She knew her duty.

"I couldn't do that. I couldn't leave Enid here alone."

Enid stopped her. "Nonsense, Mom. I'm old enough to take care of myself. You and Pop are going right along with Letty." A California winter would be fine for Pop, still frail from his recent illness, and Mom could help Letty get settled in her new home. It would be much better than having her mother here at home, worrying her heart out about them.

Of course, it took a lot more talk and persuasion, but that was the way it was finally settled.

Phil and Letty were selling their furniture, and they moved in with the Sharons while that was going on. Enid gave up her bedroom to them and the twins, and slept on the davenport in the living room. Little Ann's crib was in there, too.

Sometimes, waking in the night, Enid would get up to see that the baby was covered, and drop a furtive kiss on the downy soft pink face, and wonder fearfully what she was going to do when they were all gone.

But she didn't have much time to brood over that. There were a hundred things to be done in that short week, and Enid helped with all of them. Clothes to be packed, hampers of food to be prepared, last-minute shopping errands. And at last, the morning when Enid watched them stow the last bit of luggage in the trailer, pack themselves in the sedan, and with tearful smiles and much handwaving drive away.

It wasn't until she came home from work that night that the real impact of her aloneness hit her. The house wasn't home at all without welcoming lights in the living room, and the savory smell of supper cooking in the kitchen. She felt like a castaway on a desert island.

Forlornly she set about getting her own meal, and putting the disordered rooms of the house to rights. Dusting the living room, she came upon Tom's picture, which Mom almost defiantly had kept in its place on the mantel. The sight of his smiling, cheerful face brought another stab of homesickness to Enid.

She wondered now how she could have been unhappy in the old days with Mom and Pop here at home, Letty and the children where she could see them whenever she chose, and Tom coming every night to take her out some place.

As if her wayward thoughts had the magic power of conjuring him in the flesh, she answered the unexpected ring of the doorbell, and there was Tom, bigger and broader-shouldered than ever in uniform, grinning at her.

"Tom—" she gasped, and that was all she could manage for a breathless moment. She motioned him in.

There wasn't any magic in his appearing, after all. He was home on furlough, there was a dance being given for the soldiers at the armory, and he wanted her to go with him. He'd tried to call the house that afternoon but no one had answered, he added.

"No one's here." Enid explained to him. "The family left for California today." She told him about Phil's new job.

"That's swell," Tom said when she had finished. "But say—pretty lonesome for you, isn't it?"

It had been, five minutes before. Now suddenly the world looked brighter. Enid laughed, and reverted to his earlier question. "About the dance, Tom. I'd like to go. That is if you don't mind waiting while I dress."

She made him comfortable with cigarets and the evening paper and dashed upstairs to get ready.

The dance was in the loft of the old National Guard armory. An attempt had been made to brighten the dingy hall by looping colored strips of crepe paper from the rafters to the walls, and covering the electric light bulbs with shades. The softened light flattered Enid in the coral organdy dance frock that had been one of her vacation purchases, and that until tonight she'd had no opportunity to wear. Tom looked at her appreciatively.

It was with evident pride that he piloted her over to a tall, lanky soldier with a pretty black-eyed girl hanging on his arm.

"Enid, I want you to meet my buddy at camp, Bud Armstrong, and his sister, Daisy."

In five minutes Enid knew that Daisy Armstrong was in love with Tom. Well, she reminded herself, she had no right to resent another girl's interest in him now.

And yet she was glad when the evening was over, glad when Tom, apparently oblivious to Daisy's enchantments, refused an invitation to ride along with the Armstrongs, and hailed a taxi for himself and Enid.

It was nice to be alone with him in the intimate darkness of the cab. Nice to feel his hand close over one of hers and press it warmly. But he made no move beyond that gesture. They talked about his life at camp. He asked her to write to him. He said it was darned lonesome so far from home.

He kept the cab waiting while he went to the door with Enid.

"I don't suppose I'll see you again, this trip," he said as she fumbled with her key at the door in the darkness. "I go back to camp early in the morning."

"Oh—what time?"

"We have to be at the station by 7."

He had been careful to keep his distance all evening. Meticulously so, as if mere casual friendliness was an armor put on for his own protection. But, now, his voice changed.

"How about one little kiss—just for old-time's sake?"

She lifted her face to his. He tried to make the caress light and careless, but as his lips touched hers his arms tightened convulsively. He gave a little groan.

Then abruptly he released her. "Sorry." He turned precipitately to leave.

She couldn't let him go like this, without at least seeing him again. She seized upon the only pretext she could think of on the spur of the moment: "Wait a minute—Tom." And when he halted inquiringly, "I'll be at the station to see you off in the morning."

She lay awake for hours, shaken and confused, trying to sort out her emotions and reactions. She knew that Tom still loved her. He had betrayed himself when he kissed her.

And she knew how it hurt to love someone hopelessly.

There was still something that she could do to right things. But it took courage—unselfish courage. She drew a deep breath.

She'd go down to the station in the morning and tell Tom she'd marry him. Marry him the next time he was home on furlough, or go to his camp some week-end and marry him there . . . and then wait for him until the war was over.

CARGO PLANES UP TO ARMS CHIEFS

Somewhat Unfavorable Report On Manufacture Made To Nelson

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—(AP)—WPB Chairman Donald M. Nelson of the War Production Board was reported authoritatively today to have left to army and navy chiefs the final decision on Henry J. Kaiser's proposal to construct a fleet of cargo planes.

A War Production Board spokesman, who withheld use of his name, said a special committee of four aircraft industry men had made a "somewhat unfavorable but not necessarily fatal" report to Nelson on the proposal of the west coast shipbuilder. Shortly after this, friends of Kaiser said Nelson had told them he would be governed by any decision the army and navy officials made at a showdown conference here Wednesday.

Nelson is expected also to confer next week with Kaiser and his associate, Howard Hughes, California aircraft designer.

Nelson was represented as taking the position that while he had the authority to direct that a cargo plane construction program be undertaken, a matter of offensive military strategy was involved in which he did not feel that he should go over the heads of the chiefs of staff.

Beyond that, however, he was said to have assured interested parties that if the military leaders decided Kaiser should be permitted to build a few or many of the mammoth planes he would see to it that necessary materials were made available.

Army and navy officers were represented as reluctant to embark on any program of cargo plane construction which, because of materials and the need for technicians, would interfere with the production of bombers and fighters. They were said to have objected also that the very size of the planes might prevent their use on northern military supply routes because of the icing menace encountered on immense wing spreads.

The special committee which reported to Nelson was composed of Grover Loening, of the WPB aircraft production divisin, Donald Douglas, Glenn L. Martin and John Northrop.

Senator McNary, Republican, Oregon, said in a statement that he was not surprised at the adverse reports because airplane manufacturers "do not want a dynamic constructionist to enter their exclusive field." He said he hoped for a "better report" from the army and navy and Nelson.

6 KILLED IN CRASH OF MEDIUM BOMBER

FORT MYERS, Fla., Sept. 5.—(AP)—Three officers and three enlisted men were killed this afternoon when a medium bomber crashed shortly after taking off at Page Field here.

The bomber had just left the runway and was gaining altitude when it plummeted to the ground, army officers said. The accident took place about 1:30 o'clock.

Army officers said names of those killed were not immediately available.

SOLDIERS LEARN WAR SWIMMING

Taught To Go Through Burning Oil And With Full Equipment

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 5.—(AP)—Amphibious war is turning Uncle Sam's soldiers aquatic.

The army's solution for the problems of combat beyond broad and dangerous seas, often involving landings on defended shores, is an intensive learn-to-swim program.

Experienced Red Cross instructors are in charge, but the swimming they teach has little kinship with the pool paddling of peacetime. Even the splashes have grim purpose.

The course approved by the army has been developed after a study of commando tactics in England by Carroll Bryant, national Red Cross director of water safety, first aid and accident prevention.

Gus Novotny, tank coach at the University of Tennessee, now on leave with the Red Cross, gave a demonstration here at Harding field bomber base with his class—soldiers just completing an intensive two-week course to qualify them as instructors who will spread "fighter" swimming to every man in khaki.

Novotny's student-instructors, few of whom could do much swimming a few days earlier, eased into the camp reservoir and glided without a splash across 100 feet or more, despite heavy clothing and equipment, even to nine-pound "G. I." shoes. Weapons had to be kept dry while they did it.

Next they swam through blazing oil, showing how, by splashing water ahead onto the flames, they could emerge without burns. Fully-equipped troops plunged from a 20-foot diving platform, deck height of the average troop transport, into flaming oil and swam under water to demonstrate how flames and debris can be detoured.

The men are taught to jettison clothing and equipment in the water, when and if that becomes necessary. But this is not encouraged except as a last resort, when clothing and packs have become water-logged and lost the water wings effect that they retain for some minutes.

Novotny made it clear that abandonment of clothing and equipment was definitely a thing to be done only when prospects of saving them were gone, because a soldier "just can't come out of the water naked and start fighting."

He explained the whole program succintly:

"As a wise old navy commander once said: 'A sailor at the bottom of the sea is absolutely useless.' That goes for a soldier too."

DEFENSE SCHOOL FOR NEGROES SCHEDULED

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 5.—(AP)—A four-day defense school for negroes will be held at Baton Rouge beginning Wednesday, according to Roland Cocreham, coordinator of the Louisiana civilian defense council.

The school, with negroes attending from all parts of the state, will train them in all phases of defense work, so that they, in turn, may teach in their respective communities.

Gas defense, fire defense, demolition bombs, and organizational problems will be included in the curriculum.

The school will be held at Southern university, at Scotlandville, six miles from Baton Rouge. Entire cost for the four days, including room and board, will be $4. Registrations close Monday.

Your Vote, Help and Support for a Better District Will Be Appreciated

ORLIN 'SPEEDY' RHOADES

Men 17 to 50 not yet in uniform

How will YOU answer these 10 Navy questions?

1 What are you doing to protect your home, your family, your freedom?

It's your country. It has been pretty good to you. It has given you the right to do what you want to do, go where you want to go, live the kind of life you like. Now your country is at war. It's fighting for your freedom. What are you willing to do to help win this fight? Is there any job that you can do which is more important than the job waiting for you right now in the United States Navy?

2 Are you fed up with taking it—ready to dish it out?

Are you sick and tired of reading about "another U. S. ship torpedoed without warning"? About women and children being cast adrift in lifeboats? Are you through with just talking about what should be done? Okay. Here's your chance to do something—to blast the Nazi subs out of the seas—to kick the Japs off our islands. The Navy is ready to dish it out, and it needs your help to do it.

3 Do you want expert training in a skilled trade?

It's a big job, and to do it right you've got to have the training. The Navy will give you that training—make you an expert electrician, metalsmith, photographer, torpedoman, gunner—any of nearly 50 skilled trades. More than 50% of Navy men hold Petty Officer ratings. You can be one of them!

4 Do you want good pay, quick promotion, responsibility?

You draw pay while you learn in the Navy. You get your first pay increase in approximately two months, upon completion of recruit training. And by the end of your first enlistment, you can earn up to $138 a month, plus liberal allowances for dependents and for special duties. Promotions come rapidly. And each one means more responsibility. In the Navy you play an important part on a team where every man is important.

5 Would you like $133 worth of uniforms and clothing free?

That's what you'll get in the Navy—complete outfits for both winter and summer. Everything you need, everything from cap to shoes, from whites to blues. They're the kind of uniforms you'll be proud to wear. They mark you as a man who is doing a big job for his country.

6 Would you like to build yourself up physically?

You must be in normal good health, but you don't have to be a perfect physical specimen to get in the Navy. After only a few weeks of Navy life you will be in top-notch trim. Figures show that many men become 93% stronger during their preliminary training. That's what Navy physical conditioning does. It makes men. Rugged, husky, fighting men who can take it—and dish it out!

7 Would you like good food—and plenty of it?

You'll get real man-size meals in the Navy. The finest food a fellow could ask for. Three square meals a day, prepared by expert cooks trained in the country's best restaurants and hotels. Wholesome, hearty meals that stick to a fellow's ribs—the kind of meals you need to do a man's job. And all the "seconds" you want!

8 Would you like travel, adventure, action?

In the Navy you go places on the finest ships afloat. You meet people, visit exciting ports most men only read about. And you get action! The kind of action that helped smash the Japs at Midway Island, that knocked them for a loop in the Coral Sea. The kind of action that thrills a he-man right down to his toes!

9 Do you want to step into a well-paid job after the war?

Men make the Navy—and the Navy makes men! Trained men who are doing great things now, who will be ready to step into important positions in civil life when the war is won. You can have no better recommendation than to be able to say, "I have had Navy training."

10 Do you want to choose your service while you can?

Before this war is over, you know you're going to be in it some way. Be fair to yourself and choose your service now before it is too late. If you're 17 to 50 and in normal health, get all the facts you need to help you decide. Ask your nearest Recruiting Officer for "Men Make the Navy"—free, 48-page, illustrated book. There's no obligation.

You know in your heart the right answers. And you can do something about it today. Call, write or phone for "Men Make the Navy" at your nearest Navy Recruiting Station.

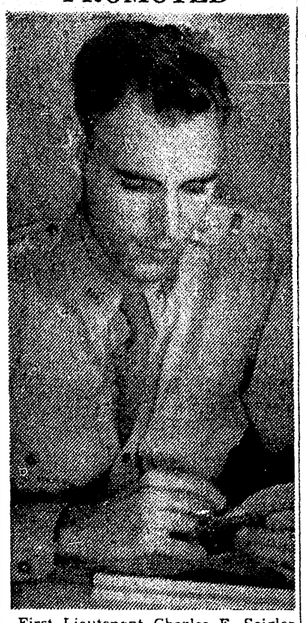
PROMOTED



First Lieutenant Charles E. Seigler of Anderson, S. C., personnel officer of the Army Air Forces Pre-Flight school, received notice Wednesday of his promotion to his newest rank. Recently arriving in Monroe with other officers of the navigation school staff, Lieutenant Seigler began his military career in 1934 at Clemson college. He graduated from Clemson in 1938 as a member of the U. S. Army Reserve, too young at that time to be commissioned an officer.

He was commissioned a second lieutenant in infantry in November, 1938, and in August, 1941, was called to duty at Eglin Field, Florida. Later in the year he joined the Pre-Flight school (Navigator), Maxwell Field, Ala. He was formerly associated with his father in the Anderson Mills at Anderson, S. C.

MILD SHREVEPORT CAMPAIGN ENDING

Lack Of Excitement Attributed To Overshadowing War Influence

By Rupert Peyton

SHREVEPORT, La., Sept. 5.—(AP)—The mildest municipal campaign in many years is drawing to a close in Shreveport, with the primary set for next Tuesday.

Although interest in the primary is not dull, the campaign lacks much of the excitement that has attended most local elections. Much of this is attributed to the overshadowing influence of the war.

Most of the candidates have refrained from vituperous speeches and have indulged mainly in mild radio addresses, small community rallies and personal contacts. So far no general city-wide rally has been held for any candidate.

Mayor Sam Caldwell, seeking his third four-year term, is being opposed by Dolph G. Frantz, former managing editor of the Shreveport Journal, and Dr. B. H. O'Quinn, dentist. Frantz has never held an elective public office except that he has served several times on the Caddo parish Democratic committee, for many years as its chairman. He has recused himself from serving on the committee during the campaign. It is his first time to offer as a candidate for a paid political office.

Dr. O'Quinn, a one-time leader in the share-the-wealth movement, has served by appointment on the Caddo parish school board.

The race is generally conceded as a contest between Caldwell and Frantz.

John McW. Ford, commissioner of finance, is seeking his fourth term to that post and is being opposed by two newcomers to politics, John Henry Fetzer and Thomas G. Roberts. Ford has a record of being six times elected to office with no defeats. He has served as a legislator, and was elected twice as mayor before his election as finance commissioner.

The retirement of Safety Commissioner Jimmie Davis, who has other political aspirations, from the contest for reelection, leaves that contest open to a field of six candidates, the largest for any city office.

In this contest are L. K. Barney, for several years juvenile probation officer, E. E. Norvell, veteran Caddo deputy sheriff; Willie W. Hood, a city patrolman; A. B. Morris, an employe of the streets and parks department; Carl J. Bolinger, a gas company employe, and James L. Worsham, street car motorman and member of the Caddo police jury. Barney was a candidate in the run-off for sheriff at the last election and Worsham is serving his second term as police juror. Norvell, a former chief of police, and the remainder are political newcomers.

An interesting contest is one between James S. Reily, present commissioner of utilities, and Frank Brown, Caddo police juror. Reily was elected to fill an unexpired term and is seeking reelection. Brown is serving his first term as police juror.

Two newcomers are contesting with H. Lane Mitchell, commissioner of streets, who is seeking his third term. They are L. O. Gilliland and R. O. Marks, both contractors.

Perhaps the warmest contest as far as charges and counter charges are concerned in northwest Louisiana is the race between Judge Joe B. Hamiter, circuit judge, and former Judge James G. Palmer, both of Shreveport, for the second supreme court justice seat.

Aided by former Governor Earl K. Long, Judge Palmer is waging a vigorous speaking campaign throughout the district. Their chief charge is that Hamiter is "Sam Jones' candidate" which is denied with equal vigor by Judge Hamiter who declared "I planned to run for the supreme court before Sam Jones was ever governor." He charges that Palmer, who is appealing to the old Huey P. Long element for support, vascillated in his support of Long and even at times opposed the late senator.

"Huey Long repudiated Palmer for an act of disloyalty," Hamiter charges.

Rather acrimonious speeches and circulars are featuring the Hamiter-Palmer contest.

The senate contest between Senator Allen Ellender and E. A. Stephens has failed to create by far the usual interest shown in "imperial Caddo" in senatorial contests. Stephens has held one small rally here. Ellender has not spoken here except by radio.

Safety Commissioner Jimmie Davis, song composer and an occasional film actor, is turning his musical talents to politics again in an effort to win a place on the public service commission. Davis, whose songs, "You Are My Sunshine," and "Nobody's Darling," and other hillbilly compositions, are juke box favorites, is appearing over the district with his recording band of hillbilly musicians. He is opposing John S. Patton, the incumbent. Third man in the race is Cornelius J. Bolin, Shreveport attorney.

In the Fourth Congressional district state board of education contest, Walker Teekell, Shreveport, incumbent, is opposed by Robert H. Curry, Haynesville, utility official.

In parish wide contests, Edwin L. Blewer, first assistant district attorney, is seeking the post to be vacated by District Attorney J. U. Galloway, who is not a candidate for a third term. He is opposed by J. Bennett Johnston, and Bryan E. Bush local attorneys.

THE RIGHT TO VOTE IS THE KEYSTONE OF LIBERTY!

ON TUESDAY the people of the Fifth Congressional District will exercise a right which untold millions in this war-torn world would like to enjoy—the right to vote and choose their own officials. That right is one of the most sacred privileges which we in free America possess. Our ancestors fought and died for it, and now we are engaged in another bloody war to keep it.

IN THE PAST we have been too much inclined to vote for the man who could stage the biggest show, the man who had the most amusing line of ballyhoo, the man who made the tallest promises. But today, in these days of sweat and tears and blood, we have become more serious. We are seeking the really true values of life. We look into the not distant past and shudder at our own foolishness and lack of foresight. We know we have not acted wisely, and now we are paying dearly for our folly.

TODAY AMERICA has buckled down to the deadly serious business of winning this war. We have no use for the brand of politics which has cheapened us in the past. We are examining the records and accomplishments of our candidates. Do they measure up to war-time needs? Do they truly understand what is necessary to win the war? Are they sincere, or are they simply making hypocritical promises which they hope will bring them votes? Are they sincerely interested in trying to do something for the betterment of mankind? In other words, are they men sufficiently strong and able to do the job and do it well?

WITH THOSE THINGS in mind, I ask you to consider the candidates in the race for Congressman. If you think I am the best qualified candidate, I trust you will vote for me. But if you think one of the others is a better man than I, it is your sacred duty to vote for him.

DURING THE PAST several weeks I have tried to carry my message to every man and woman in the 14 parishes in the Fifth Congressional District. I have shaken the hand of thousands on thousands of voters and I have told them of my hopes and ambitions; I have told them of the kind of legislation I shall support and the kind I shall oppose; I have told them of my dreams of a future America in which no man shall be in need and in which every man shall have an equal opportunity to share in the riches which a munificent Almighty has seen fit to bestow upon us.

ALLEN IS MADE MAJOR AT FIELD

Executive Officer At Pre-Flight Navigation School Is Promoted

Major Renfrew S. Allen, New York City, executive officer and director of training of the Navigation Pre-Flight school, received word of his promotion to a majority Friday afternoon at the field.

From an old military family, dating back to Revolutionary days, Major Allen has been a soldier since 1918, when he joined the 71st Regiment, New York National guard. Commissioned 2nd lieutenant in January, 1927, 1st lieutenant in June, 1931, and captain in May, 1938, he attended every summer encampment of the New York National guard from 1919 to 1938 at Camp Smith near Bear Mountain, Peekskill, New York.

Major Allen also served in the maneuvers of the Second Army in northern New York state around Ogdensburg and Plattsburg in 1939 and 1940. He was called to active duty September 16, 1940 at Fort Dix, N. J. Major Allen attended infantry school at Fort Benning, Ga., during January, February and March of last year. One of his instructors at this school was the then Major Thomas V. Webb, now Lieutenant Colonel Webb, commander of the Navigation Pre-Flight school, which was activated at Maxwell Field, Ala., last year. Major Allen served under Colonel Webb as instructor of ground forces, later as director of academic training, and recently was name dexecutive officer and director of training.

For ten years previous to his departure for active duty in 1940, Major Allen was executive in the home office, purchasing and publicity departments of RKO-Radio Pictures, Inc., New York City. For many years previous to his moving picture business career, he was buyer and personnel director for the Bell Telephone laboratories in New York.

Major Allen married the former Ada H. O'Neill of Brooklyn in 1933. They have a daughter, Joan H. Allen. His brother, Lieutenant Colonel John H. Allen is now on duty with the Field Artillery in New Caldonia. His father, the late John Hart Allen, for years a member in the Seventh Regiment, New York National guard, is a direct descendent of John Hart, one of the New Jersey signers of the Declaration of Independence.

STATE ELECTION SET FOR TUESDAY

horts over state finances—has remained on the sidelines, endorsing neither Stephens or anyone else. Jones succeeded in ousting the Long regime in the gubernatorial race in January, 1940, by a slim margin but his opponents have since maintained an almost continuous attack.

In Tuesday's most important election since Governor Jones was inaugurated—vital politically because so many state judiciary and other posts are to be filled—relatively light balloting is expected because of the electorate's preoccupation with the war. Possibly less than half the approximately 540,000 ballots case in the gubernatorial race of 1940 was forecast.

Interest in the Ellender-Stephens senate fight and the campaigns in six congressional districts was almost eclipsed in importance in the eyes of political observers by the closely-watched campaign for a seat on the state supreme court between Joseph B. Hamiter, circuit court jurist and former District and Circuit Court Judge James G. Palmer.

Sixty-six-year-old Judge Palmer, for whom former Governor Earl K. Long and other anti-administration leaders have taken the stump, was centering his campaign in the rural sections of the 11-parish second supreme court district in north Louisiana. Hamiter, only 42 years of age, has directed his appeal as an independent candidate and was expected to find principal support in Shreveport and Caddo parish.

The position of every district judge and district attorney in the state is at stake in the balloting Tuesday, save for those few unopposed. The north Louisiana member of the three-man state public service commission and two members of the state board of education are to be elected.

Retirement of Congressman Vance Plauche of Lake Charles to private law practice attracted seven candidates for his position, though one, state Representative W. J. Dodd of Allen parish, has withdrawn to enter the army. His name, nevertheless, will appear on the ballot in the Seventh congressional district election.

Candidates for Plauche's position are State Conservation Commissioner Joseph L. McHugh, former State Senator Sidney W. Sweeney, former state Senator Henry D. Larcade, Jr., Joseph J. Tritico of Lake Charles and Grover C. Vidrine of Oakdale.

In the First congressinal district, Congressman F. Edward Hebert, former New Orleans newspaperman once allied with Governor Jones but now bearing endorsement of city political forces headed by Mayor Maestri, is opposed by former state Senator A. Sidney Nunez, Frank A. De Latour and John Norris Hanning.

The New Orleans area's Second congressional district, has a close fight between young Congressman Hale Boggs and his conquered foe of two years ago, veteran former Congressman Paul H. Maloney, also bearing the endorsement of Maestri's city forces. A third candidate is Paul E. Bonta of New Orleans.

Usual spirited campaigning in the south Louisiana "Cajun" section, comprising the Third congressional district, pits Congressman James Domengeaux against former Congressman Numa F. Montet, Albert O. Rappielet and Bertrand De Blanc.

The Sixth congressional district campaign has brought from retirement former gubernatorial candidate James H. Morrison, Hammond attorney, against incumbent Congressman J. Y. Sanders, Jr. Morrison and Wade Garner, Amite dairy leader, have conducted spirited stump tours, while Sanders, as have most congressional incumbents, has spoken infrequently.

Five candidates are aspiring for the fifth congressional district post, for which Representative Newt V. Mills is seeking reelection. His opponents are Max Brodnax, Nathan L. Ewing, Charles E. McKenzie and Orlin Rhoades.

Striving for election to the state board of education from the Third congressional district are Bronter L. Thibaut, incumbent, and W. A. Montgomery, and from the Fourth congressional district, Walter W. Teekell, incumbent, and Robert H. Curry.

Opposing John S. Patton's reelection to the public service commission from north Louisiana are Cornelius J. Bolin and Jimmie H. Davis, the latter a member of the Shreveport city council and a radio hill-billy singer.

GERMANS ASSERT RED FORCE LARGE

to be enveloped in fires which raged unchecked for hours. The Russian air force, while still fighting, was said to be unequal to the task of keeping the German planes away from the metropolitan area.

Other German planes were hammering at roads and rail lines over which Stalingrad was still receiving some supplies. The Germans made an effort to smash these routes not only to block the flow of war materials to the city but to cut off, as effectively as possible, all means of escape from the battered city.

On the ground, the operations were a bitter fight for every individual house in Stalingrad's environs. The Germans had to cross great mine fields more elaborate than any heretofore encountered, and overcome heavy concrete bunkers equipped with rotating turrets.

It was pointed out that Stalingrad manufactured vast quantities of war materials, and that with such supplies close at hand the Russians prepared a deep system of thickly-studded fortifications. Into the hazardous task of penetrating such defenses the Germans sent large numbers of sappers, whose chief weapons were hand grenades.

German anti-aircraft artillery was being used extensively to blast pill boxes and the tanks which the Russians had partly buried as emergency bunkers.

SIX YOUTHS HERE PASS MARINE TESTS

Sergeant Jesse A. Williams, officer in charge of marine corps recruiting in Monroe, yesterday announced the names of six youths of this area who successfully passed preliminary examinations for enlistment.

They are Glenward Wallace and Lafaya D. Lynch of Monroe, Lisso O. Guillory and Jed U. Liner of West Monroe, Daniel L. Roach of Choudrant and J. D. Lockwood of Farmerville. The sextet left here Friday for New Orleans where they will take the oath of enlistment.

U. S. FIGHTERS MAKE BIG RAID

Russians also attacked places in Poland.

The daylight raid of the Flying Fortresses was their eighth of the war, and their second on Rouen. Three squadrons, the greatest number to be used so far in one operation, attacked from a dizzy height. They reported many bomb bursts on the target.

For the twin-motored Boston bombers it was the first action since July 4 when they made their first attack across the channel in a raid on Holland.

The escorts in both attacks, included not only American fgihters, but British and Canadian, and other Allied squadrons.

The terrific assaults on the German transport system today and on Nazi industry last night gave more weight to the recent prediction by Lieutenant General H. H. Arnold that the R. A. F. and the Americans would launch attacks which "Germany can neither meet nor survive."

The R. A. F.'s deluge of two-ton bombs and incendiaries on Bremen lasted 30 minutes and was so intense that fires still were burning in the commercial center of the city and on both sides of the Wester river today, the British said.

The air ministry reported that Britain's biggest bombers—Lancasters, Halifoxes and Stirlings—taking part in this, the 99th raid on the big North sea port, crisscrossed the city, the early arrivals starting fires and the later planes dropping their high explosives into the heart of the flames.

Bremen was heavily defended. The Nazi gunners tried to meet the attack by working their fire into cones but the British pressed home the attack with the loss of only 11 bombers which was not regarded as high considering the size of the force engaged.

Axis-allied Hungary ordered a nationwide blackout tonight following the attack on Budapest. The Hungarian news agency said eight persons were killed and 21 wounded and only slight damage was caused in the suburbs of the big industrial center and capital. A Berlin announcement, however, said 15 persons were killed.

There was some speculation at first as to where the planes came from, the possibilities ranging from Malta, 1,850 miles away, English bases, 2,000 miles distant, and Russia. The German radio declared the planes were Russian, and tonight the Moscow radio identified the raiders as Soviet airmen. One plane was lost, the Moscow radio said. It called the bombing of Budapest and Koenigsberg heavy.

Long Scrimmage Staged By Tigers

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 5.—(AP)—For the first time in more than two decades Louisiana's State university gridmen were forced to halt practice because of the heat. Bernie Moore's Bengalmen, who later staged an hour scrimmage session, rested an hour in the shade between the early practice and rough work.

Working with three teams, the varsity gathered 15 first downs as they amassed seven toughdowns against the freshman gridders. Walter Gorinski, senior fullback, plunged over the goal twice to lead the scoring for the afternoon. Sulcer Harris and Steve Van Buren, halfbacks, each hang up a tally.

Joe Giacone, second eleven halfback, ripped off 60 yards on a reverse for a score also. After gathering a pass from Alvin Dark, Jack Fulkerson, second string end, stepped 30 yards for another payoff. Joe Nagata, freshman who practiced with the Varsity, registered the last toughdown after a 20-yard sprint from a reverse.

Freshmen didn't handle the ball at all. Even when the varsity lost the pigskin, Coach Moore gave it back to them.

PELS ENGAGE IN GRID SCRIMMAGE

Session Ends Three Weeks Of Training For Players At L. T. I

After three weeks of intensive training for the coming football season, the Louisiana Training institute's Pelicans yesterday engaged in a regular game-conditioning scrimmage after Coach Kermit Youngblood had divided his squad of 36 candidates into evenly matched "Gold" an "Gray" teams.

The Golds, led by Captain Herbert Joiner, Donald Wagner and Tony Tarvella were victorious by a 19-to-0 score. The Gray outfit, composed chiefly of reserves, was captained by Salvadore Lopiccola, only returning veteran from last year's eleven which was L. T. I.'s best in many years.

Coach Youngblood, who is beginning his third year at the local institution, has an unusually light and inexperienced squad with Lopiccola the only veteran. Lopiccola has been a guard but this year is being moved into the backfield as a halfback.

Coach Youngblood is also having schedule difficulties.

Most of the smaller high schools previously dated by L. T. I. have quit football for the "duration." The Pelicans had dates with Mangham, Lisbon, Dubach, Olla, Clarks, Columbia, Ferriday, and Oak Grove, and tentative appointments with Junction City, Delhi and Davidson of St. Joseph. All of these games except Lisbon, Dubach and Ferriday have been cancelled.

Coach Youngblood said the Class A Lake Providence and Winnsboro teams had been signed in two of the vacated spots and that other games were being sought.

The L. T. I. mentor indicated no assignments as starters had been made but listed candidates for the team as follows:

Ends: Jack Metcalf, Tuner Jensen, Herbert Pickett, David Bradford, Wilson Gaspard and Dan Clayton.

Tackles: Marshall Caddell, Garland Henderson, Forrest Simmons, Gilbert Stelly, Wilford Supree, Willard Graves and Chester Petty.

Guards: Henry Dugas, Pete Laurent, Willie Herring, Eugene Lee, Wiley Marguedant, Frank Saling, W. F. Ashley, Frank Smith and James Richardson.

Centers: Tony Tarvella, Pete Bee and Frank Buras.

NEW YORK GIANTS DEFEAT DODGERS; ST. LOUIS WINNER

Brooklyn's Lead In National League Race Now Only Three Games

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Babe Young's home run with the bases loaded carried the New York Giants to a 7-6 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers today in the opener of a three-game series, setting the National league leaders back a full length in their bid for their second straight pennant.

Coupled with a St. Louis victory over the Cincinnati Reds, the defeat reduced the Dodgers' lead to three games over the threatening Cardinals.

Young's grand slam blow off Whitlow Wyatt brought the Giants from behind in the fifth inning and Mickey Witek, who hit safely in his 14th consecutive game, singled in another in the sixth which proved to be the margin of victory.

Dixie Walker, who drove in three of the first four Dodger tallies, two of them on a home run, blasted another four-master in the eighth inning and Arky Vaughan followed with his first circuit clout of the year, but the rally fell one run shy.

Harry Feldman succeeded Bill McGee on the mound for the Giants in the fourth inning and got credit for the victory, although he gave way to Ace Adams when the Dodgers threatened in the eighth.

Army Gridders And Chicago Pro Eleven Battle In Denver Today

By Loudon Kelly

DENVER, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Like any well-trained military force after an initial setback, the western army All-Stars today shook up their attack formation for their football encounter with the Chicago Cardinals tomorrow.

Kickoff time is 3 p.m., mountain war time, in Denver university stadium, with probably not more than 20, onlookers paying ticket money into the army relief fund.

This is the soldiers' second engagement, following a 25-7 loss to the Washington Redskins last Sunday in a man-killing five-game schedule with National Professional league elevens.

Tomorrow night Major Wallace Wade's army team will hop a train for Detroit and Wednesday night's contest with the Detroit Lions, head back to Milwaukee for a game with the Green Bay Packers September 13, then on to Syracuse and the New York Giants September 19.

Major Wade said it was still doubtful whether John Gimbrough, nursing a rib injury all week, would be able to start at fullback. If not, Private Frank Emmons from Oregon will get the chore.

Aside from Kimbrough, not more than four of the soldiers who started against the Redskins at Los Angeles will answer the opening whistle here. In contrast to last Sunday's all-Dixie breakaway lineup representing four colleges, the one the lean major from Duke read off today showed nine.

Two regulars, Jim Thomason, blocking back, and Guard Leonard Dickey, both from Texas A. and M., were too severely bumped around in the Washington fracas to be used at all tomorrow.

Grayhaired Coach Jimmy Conzelman led his Cardinals off the train today in time for a workout and muttered "we won't reach full stride for another three weeks."

Marshall Goldberg, two-time All-America back from Pittsburgh and the Chicagoans' leading "name" player to mountain country fans, will open at fullback, but "he only joined the team a few days ago and I doubt if he'll play very long," Conzelman said.

Probable lineups:

Chicago	Pos.	Army
Daddio	LE	Ferguson (Fla.)
Duggan	LT	Myers (Texas)
Baker	LG	Fritz (V'derbilt)
Apolskis	C	Kodros (Mich.)
Popovich	RG	Battista (Fla.)

Ivy	RE	Dawson (T.A.&M.)

ARCADIA HORNETS HAVE ONLY 3 LETTERMEN BACK

ARCADIA, La., Sept. 5.—(Special)—A squad of 18 boys, including only three lettermen, reported to Coach W. H. Hinki for football training this week, and while Coach Hinki is trying to whip the squad into some resemblance of former Arcadia High school teams, the Hornets are also faced with the problem of filling a schedule riddled with cancellations.

Four dates have been lost as the result of schools quitting football for the "duration." Games dropped by schools and dates were as follows: Newellton, September 18; Oak Grove, October 9; Lisbon, November 20, and Longansport, November 27.

Arcadia would welcome offers from any teams, especially Class B. elevens, to fill these dates.

The schedule to date, including open dates, is: September 11, Minden at Minden; September 18, open; September 26, Delhi, here; October 2, Ruston at Ruston; October 9, open; October 16, open; October 23, Jonesboro, here; October 30, Winnfield at Winnfield; November 6, Plain Dealing, here; November 13, Oil City, here; and November 20, open.

The only returning lettermen this year are Edmund Driskill, "Micky" McGuire and Gentry James.

MAROONS START SERIOUS GRID WORKOUTS MONDAY

STATE COLLEGE, Miss., Sept. 5.—(AP)—After five days of light work the Mississippi State Maroons will get down to serious business Monday in preparation for their schedule which opens with Union university on the campus September 26.

The varsity squad of 36 men was increased by three when Coach Allyn McKeen moved Freshmen Mike Harris, Birmingham, Bobby Cadenhead, Greenville, and Sonny Jones, Philadelphia, into the varsity ranks. Harris, a guard, and Cadenhead, who works at center, should help strengthen the mid-section of the number 2 line where experienced men are conspicuously absent.

BENEFIT GAMES

WINTER PARK, Fla., Sept. 5.—(AP)—Rollins college will play all of its home football games this year as benefit events for army emergency relief, Hamilton Holt, president, announced today.

CAPTURES FIRST PLACE FOR BILOXI YACHT CLUB

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Thomas C. Kemp, a former Southern Yacht club skipper of New Orleans but sailing today for the Biloxi, Miss., yacht club, took the first race of the 23rd annual Sir Thomas Lipton cup interclub fish class championship series on Lake Pontchartrain. The winner's elapsed time was 2 hours, 44 minutes and 53 seconds.

The second and third races will be sailed Sunday.

Andy Alfonso of the Gulfport, Miss., yacht club was one minute and 20 seconds behind Kemp while Carlos deArmas of the Southern Yacht club, defending champion, was third, one minute and 10 seconds astern of Alfonso.

Finishing next in order were Rutledge Lindsey, Pensacola, Fla., yacht club; J. H. Livingston, St. Petersburg, Fla., yacht club; Norman Jetmundsen, Buccaneer yacht club, Mobile, Ala.; Emmitt McCollister, Pass Christian, Miss., yacht club; B. E. Nodop, Mobile yacht club; Lieut. E. B. Mitchell, U. S. naval air station, Corpus Christi, Tex.; Bill Pope, St. Andrews Bay yacht club, Panama City, Fla.

BARAGUS LEADS WAY IN ARMY INTRASQUAD GAME

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 5.—(AP)—With Corporal Steve Bagarus leading the way, the Whites, or varsity, walloped the Blues, 41 to 0, today in an Eastern all-army intrasquad football game at Yale field.

Bagarus, wingback, raced 70 yards after taking a flat pass from Lieutenant Harvey (Mississippi State) Johnson for one score and later uncorked a 45-yard run through a broken field from where he tossed a lateral to Private Charles (West Virginia, and Cleveland Rams) Seabright, who tallied.

The other touchdowns were made by Lieutenant Len (Tennessee) Coffman, Corporal George (Tennessee and Brooklyn Dodgers) Cafego, Corporal Norman (Stanford and Chicago Bears) Standlee, and Johnson.

SOPH SHINES

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Sept. 5.—(AP)—Minor injuries kept three Alabama gridders out of rough work today as the fine defensive play of Walter Miles, sophomore tackle, continued to stand out.

YANKS, SENATORS DIVIDE 2 GAMES; BROWNS VICTORS

Zuber Holds World Champions To 5 Hits; St. Louis Downs Tribe

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Big Bill Zuber limited the New York Yankees to five hits as Washington turned back the world champions, 1 to 0, in the second game of a twin bill tonight, after the Yankees had taken the opener, 6 to 2, behind Ernie Bonham's steady hurling.

Washington hopped on Marvin Breuer for 10 blows. The Senators scored in the third on Bobby Estalella's walk and singles by Jimmy Vernon and Jake Early. Zeuber, invincible in the pinches, was given fine support. He struck out six and issued four walks.

Zuber, used mainly in relief roles, won his eighth game against as many defeats for the season. The win snapped New York's victory streak after five straight triumphs.

In the opener the Yankees hopped on Dutch Leonard, still limping from a broken ankle suffered in a game last spring, for five hits which they combined with a walk to produce four runs in the first inning. Leonard then settled down and pitched hitless ball until leaving the game for a pinch-hitter after the eighth. Joe Gordon, who took first on an error in the sixth, was the only Yank to reach base against the big Dutchman after the first inning.

SPORTS PROGRAM HALTED BY RATIONING OF TIRES

JACKSON, Miss., Sept. 5.—(AP)—Interschool athletic competition by schools under the jurisdiction of the Hinds county board of education will be discontinued, Superintendent T. H. Naylor said today.

He said the action was necessitated by a rationing board ruling that new or retreaded tires granted school busses must be used only for transporting students to and from classes.

The decision does not affect the Jackson High school, a Big Eight member, which is not under the jurisdiction of the county board.

BOWL TICKETS ON SALE NOVEMBER 1

Fans Can See Orleans Grid Tilt At Old Prices

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 5.—(AP)—The New Orleans Mid-Winter Sports association, proceeding with plans for the usual full Sugar bowl program, announced tonight that tickets for the January 1 football game would go on public sale November 2 at the same prices as last year.

Tickets to the boxing, tennis, track and basketball events will be sold at the same time.

The football price scale is $5.50 for box seats, $4.50 for east and west side stands and $2.75 for end stands, all seats reserved. The announcement contained a warning, however, that if any additional taxes should be levied between now and game time, the association reserved the right to collect the difference at the gate.

"Sale of tickets to out-of-town patrons will be handled by mail, as formerly," said the announcement. "All such persons must send an additional 25 cents to cover the cost of postage, insurance and registered delivery. Only cash, certified check or U. S. mail orders will be accepted."

TECHMEN IN GOOD FORM AFTER ONE WEEK'S WORKOUTS

Coach Aillet Announces He's 'Pretty Well Pleased' With Outfit

RUSTON, Sept. 5.—(Special)—At the end of their first week of practice, the Louisiana Tech football players were rounding into good condition and showing an earnest attitude which caused Coach Joe Aillet to say he was "pretty well pleased" with the whole outfit.

The Techmen—including 28 varsity men and 15 freshmen—are drilling in shorts in the mornings and playing uniforms in the afternoons, the rehearsals being limited to an hour and 45 minutes each. While there was some light contact work Friday afternoon, no general scrimmage will be undertaken before Wednesday, Coach Aillet said.

Among the freshmen mingling with the varsity at Tech are John Hay, a 202-pound center from Bolton high school, Alexandria, who is making a good impression, and Hollis Jones of Haynesville, a 185-pound halfback, rated as an excellent passer and punter.

Vic Cerise of New Orleans, who played guard with the Techsters last year, has been shifted to quarterback, a position that was affected when Walter Ford joined the air corps and

LOCAL BOXERS FACE ARMY MEN HERE MONDAY

MEET LIVINGSTON SQUAD AT LOCAL WRESTLING ARENA

Infantry Outfit Has Several Top-Flight Mittmen To Present Here

Seeking their fourth victory in five meets this year, the Monroe boxing team, featuring the classiest bunch of amateurs of the twin cities, will tangle with beak busters of the 112th infantry of Camp Livingston tomorrow night at the Monroe wrestling arena. The first match is slated to start at 8:30 o'clock.

The show will be sponsored by the Monroe Central Trades and Labor council as part of their Labor Day celebration and the matches will be fought for the benefit of the USO. Thus far boxing has been fairly well received here, but the largest crowd of the season is expected at the wrestling arena tomorrow.

Camp Livingston aggregations thus far have won one meet and lost one to local battlers, but the former teams brought here represented the 628th Tank Destroyers. The present infantry aggregation, however, includes at least one star of the team that came here twice before.

Sergeant Delbert R. Terrill, who will have charge of the visiting scrappers, notified local promoters that Bill Starkel, the classy 150-pounder who holds victories over two Monroe battlers, will be on the Camp Livingston team again.

Starkel, of Flint, Mich., who once whipped Mike Gamaire, 1936 National Golden Gloves champion, soon after the latter won the crown, scored a one round technical knockout over Gilbert Lee on his first trip here and came back two weeks later to earn a decision over Ben Davis, hard fighting Farmerville addition to the local squad.

Sergeant Terrill said his team would also include Tommy Lyga, 175, of Syracuse, N. Y., a former runner-up for a National Golden Gloves title, who may be called upon to meet Vaughan Payne, and a pair of lighter boys with promise as ring attractions, Popeye Pasquesec, 122, and Benny Andy, 147.

The Monroe aggregation Friday night hung a 4-to-3 defeat on the Camp Shelby boxers and appeared in fine condition as they turned the trick.

The local squad includes:

E. B. Pedro, former Neville high school state champion who has won two fights for the locals. Tom King, winner of four successive victories, the former Neville state champion is undefeated as a local amateur. Davis, one of the best scrappers on the team, has lost only to Starkel, won two matches and fought one draw. Vaughan Payne, former L. S. U. athlete with two straight victories until he lost Findley to Sergeant Vic Hutton, Terre Haute, Ind., who was a former N. A. A. U. champion.

Harold Cornett, an ex-Neville battler, has won one and dropped two matches for the locals. Lawrence Hunnicutt of West Monroe, has a record of one victory and two defeats and has looked better in each succeeding fight. Gilbert Lee, Monroe expressman, has been beaten twice and hasn't won a match, but his two outings have been with more experienced scrappers. Miles Roy, another West Monroe boy, with a record of one victory and two defeats, whose losses have been in close battles, and "Shady" Wall, of West Monroe, who won his first and only trip into the ring and then was out of action in the last two meets because of a hand injury.

New additions to the team last week were David Brockett and William Maxwell, stellar Louisiana Tech battlers. Maxwell won his skirmish but Brockett ran into trouble and was beaten by Johnny Morrison of Princeton, Ind., despite a wild, close fracas. Both Maxwell and Brockett are expected back tomorrow.

The Monroe amateurs are being trained at Neville high school under the guidance of "Sad Sam" Jones, former Monroe lightweight scrapper. The local boxers appear on these USO-sponsored cards purely for the love of a good fight and they have never failed to give their best. All proceeds, aside from bare expenses, including the visiting soldiers' traveling expenses, go to the USO recreation fund.

MOBILE PLAYER TOPS S'EASTERN

Phillips Grabs Loop Batting Crown In Tight Battle With Moore

MOBILE, Ala., Sept. 5.—(AP)—A. C. Phillips, Mobile second-baseman, held the Southeastern league's batting crown for 1942 today—a final dividend for hitting safely in 15 of his last 16 games.

Unofficial averages compiled by the Howe News bureau credited Phillips with batting .3481—a fractional margin ahead of Dee Moore, who was batting .34979 when he was sold to the New Orleans Pelicans late in July. Phillips played in 126 games, Moore 97.

Russell Leach of Mobile, who maintained a consistent average during the last month of play, finished third at .341. Phillips climbed steadily from .329 late in June to his final mark of .348, gaining six points in the final week of play.

Bill McGhee of Pensacola, sold to Little Rock late in July, had a .337 mark for fourth place, while Charlie Quimbo of Montgomery, sold to Birmingham August 4, stood fifth at .329.

Joe Bob Mitchell of Anniston had a .346 average, but played in only 83 games.

Mobile and Montgomery players shared all top honors for the season except in triples, where Carl Barnhart of Pensacola led with 10.

Paul Armstrong of Montgomery led the league in runs scored at 111, in hits at 152, and total bases, 265. In addition he shared the lead for doubles with Leach, a team-mate, with 36 each.

Al Simmons of Mobile, who engaged in a late batting spree won home run honors with 18. Hugh Holliday of Montgomery drove in most runs, 113. George Kissell of Mobile was credited with the base-stealing crown, pilfering 32. Johnny Mauer of Montgomery had most sacrifice hits, 17.

Garth "Rock" Mann, right-handed pitcher of the pennant-winning Montgomery Rebels, led the league in effectiveness winning 18 and losing five. Jimmy McClure of Jackson, sold to Memphis late in June and the veteran Goat Walker of Montgomery were the only 20-game winners. McClure's record was 20 and 6, Walker's 20 and 7. McClure led the league in strikeouts at 152 despite absence for more than a month.

Stanley Todd of Meridian was rated the workhorse of the Southeastern, pitching 209 innings, two full games more than his nearest challenger. He won 18 and lost 12.

Montgomery won team batting honors at .296—16 percentage points ahead of second-place Mobile—and set a new league record for double plays with 156.

Jackson finished in front at .970 for the team fielding crown.

WORK HARD

GAINESVILLE, Fla., Sept. 5.—(AP)—Florida's Gators went through a rough and tumble scrimmage here this afternoon as Coach Tom Lieb told his players they would have to work at "breakneck speed" to get ready for the season opener against the naval air station in Jacksonville on Sept. 19.

ONLY TWO VOTES AGAINST PLAYING FROSH PREDICTED

Tulane And Alabama Expected To Oppose Rule Change In Southeastern

ATLANTA, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Extension of varsity athletic eligibility to freshmen in the 12-member Southeastern conference was indicated today with possibility of two negative votes—Tulane and Alabama.

As football coaching staffs headed into the second week of pre-season drills, at least 10 schools reported one or more talented newcomers drilling with the varsity. Opinion generally was that yearlings would be used liberally as reserves.

The conference meets in Atlanta September 18—the eve of the season's first conference game between Georgia and Kentucky—to reconsider earlier rejection of the plan at Birmingham four months ago.

At that time Georgia Tech sponsored amendment of conference rules to permit freshmen to play, but voted against its own proposal after Dr. Rufus Harris of Tulane, president of the conference, argued that action should be delayed until fall. Louisiana State, Alabama, Georgia and Vanderbilt also cast negative votes, resulting in a 6-6 deadlock.

Veteran W. A. Alexander, athletic director of Georgia Tech, said he was confident that eligibility would be extended.

"I don't know why we should delay," he said. "If we don't do so now, we certainly must do it next December, because the present senior class will graduate in January, and the present junior class is to graduate before next September. The United States naval academy at Annapolis announced only the other day that it would use freshmen, and I hardly think we can hold ourselves to be better equipped than the naval academy."

Bernie Moore, head coach at Louisiana State, reversed his previous position this week and advocated freshmen, while Henry Sanders, Vanderbilt coach, has argued since last spring that the Commodores would face a disappointing season unless freshmen are available to bolster reserves.

Observers speculated that the probable lineup September 18 would be, Yes: Auburn, Florida, Georgia, Georgia Tech, Kentucky, Louisiana State, Mississippi State, University of Mississippi, Tennessee and Vanderbilt.

Alabama, with a varsity squad of 55 and much of its Cotton bowl team available for another season, indicated it would not use first-year men, and drilled the yearlings separately. Tulane, where Dr. Harris repeatedly has voiced opposition, likewise refrained from calling on freshmen.

Auburn's Jack Meagher called up two yearlings—Jim Sims, an end, and Jim Bradshaw, a combination center-guard.

Florida reported six freshmen drilling with the varsity, but Coach Lieb withheld names and positions, saying he would make announcement of players September 18.

At Georgia, Coach Wallace Butts openly expressed hope of finding a half-dozen or more players who would help as reserves. He called up two freshmen tackles, 200-pound Emil Papa of Pennsylvania and Ed Arland of Mansfield, Ohio; three ends, James Griffith, George Young and Pete Sasser; and a fullback, spectacular Sonny Lloyd of Blytheville, Ark.

Tech's Coach Alexander watched Clint Castleberry, an All-Southern schoolboy from Tech high, Atlanta, run with the second-string at tailback, and said he might use another freshman, Bill Healy, as a reserve guard.

Four Kentucky frosh drilled with the varsity, including 250-pound Bob Drury of Cleveland Heights, O., and 194-pound Ralph Cole, of Cleveland, at tackles; and Arvel Goodman, Cincinnati, and Bill Albus, Wheeling, W. Va., as blocking backs.

Four freshmen were working with the L. S. U. squad, but Coach Moore, like Florida's Tom Lieb, said he preferred not to discuss the possibility of their eligibility.

Well-equipped Mississippi State, favored to retain its unofficial conference championship, called up three freshmen to work with the varsity. They are Mike Harris of Birmingham, Ala., a guard; Bobby Cadenhead of Greenville, Miss., center; and Walder (Sonny) Jones of Philadelphia, Miss., tailback. None was regarded likely to play better than third team under Coach Allyn McKeen.

At the University of Mississippi, where Harry Mehre has lost heavily in manpower, the varsity squad was bulging with four freshman ends, two tackles, two guards, a center, a blocking back, a tailback, four wingbacks and five fullbacks.

They were listed as Gene Lambert of Pontotoc, H. A. Smith, Hazelhurst; Everett Harper, Moss Point and Nangelo Varallo, Nashville, Tenn., ends; Nate Williamson, Meridian and Doug Hanley, Lake Providence, La., tackles; A. E. Willingham, Fulton, Ky., and Reynolds Craig, Tuscumbia, Ala., guards; Paul Davis, Wesson, center; Oscar Buchanan, Memphis, blocking back; Jack Kesterson, Clarksdale, tailback; Sonny Shelby, Memphis; Tom Majors, Newton, Ervin Thebault, Moorehead, Ray Bell, Madison, all wingbacks; and Bob Peterson, Jonesboro, Ark., Buck Pennell, Memphis, Hollis Darmond, Monticello, Ark., F. Page, Meridian, and Bobby Clark, Drew, all fullbacks.

Tennessee, like Mississippi State a potential power team, reported only six freshmen on the varsity squad. These included Carl Snowden tackle; Ben Huddleston and Dick Russas, ends.

Eight frosh worked out with Vanderbilt's varsity, including Cedric Johnson of Jackson, Tenn., end; John Clark, Memphis, tackle; Dave Mancosh, North Braddock, Pa., guard; Harry Wheeler, Ashland, Ky., guard; Charles Hoover, Jackson, Tenn., center; and Backs Claude Harrison and Oscar Bozeman, both of Baton Rouge, La., and E. W. Cox, Nashville.

Cochrane-Zivic Tussle Is Real 'Grudge Match'

Ten-Round, Non-Title Go At Garden Thursday Night Needs No Press Agent To Ballyhoo Boys' Enmity

By Sid Feder

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—(AP)—It is generally regarded as somewhat "phoney," like a seven-dollar bill, when the ballyhoo boys try to smoke up the "grudge angle" in a fight, but there is a stew cooking for next Thursday night in Madison Square Garden that has a real hot hate hanging over it.

This is the ten-round, non-title teaparty between Freddie The Red Cochrane, who is world welterweight champion, and Fritzie The Peaceful Zivic, who used to be.

It is a brawl for the benefit of the United Service organizations, and Freddie The Red, who is a boatswain's mate in Uncle Sam's navy, came all the way from the San Diego (Calif.) base to get in on it. Freddie won't be going back to San Diego or doing any more fist-fighting for quite a while after this, because he's just been ordered to active sea duty as soon as he fills his date with Fritzie.

The "hate" angle to this shindig began to brew a year ago last July, the night that Zivic took his championship over to Newark, N. J., just for the exercise and a chance to pick up some loose change. This turned out to be a slight mistake, for Fritz-eroo wound up without his championship. Instead of finding Freddie The Red a soft touch, the Pittsburgh kid uncovered a firecracker—and it blew up right among his classic features.

Now, it was no secret that before the match, Zivic had brushed off Cochrane's chances as one of those fantastic things, like a trip to the moon or four brand new tires on your car. And he had trained accordingly, but, as sort of a back-door insurance, he had Cochrane sign a contract that in case such a thing should happen, The Red would meet him in a return title bout in 60 days.

Well, it happened. Then the 60 days stretched to 360 and more, but there was no return. Fritzie stormed up and down the countryside, picking up a buck here and a buck there and muttering about the not-so-nice things men do. Cochrane joined the navy and put the championship in a sailor suit.

So, since it became more and more apparent that he couldn't get a chance to win back his title, Zivic began to plead for an overweight fight, "just so I can go to work on that guy." He finally got it, and he hit town today still steaming, and with the word that "Cochrane is gonna get it good this time."

INDIAN GRIDDERS DISPLAY SPIRIT

However, Malone Says They Still Have A 'Long Way To Go'

At the conclusion of their first week of training the 43 candidates for the Northeast Junior college football team were complimented yesterday afternoon for their "cooperation, hustle and spirit."

Coach James L. Malone, faced with the task of moulding a team from a mass of freshman talent and a minority of lettermen and squadmen from last season, told his charges:

"For the first five days work the cooperation, hustle and spirit shown by you fellows has overshadowed that of any other squads I have coached."

However, the Indian mentor, apparently as a neutralizer, informed the Tribesmen they had a "long way to go yet" before becoming a football team. Football players are plentiful, he said, but it takes teamwork to win games.

A short fundamental scrimmage featured yesterday's work and while it was evident that changes were due in both first and second string lineups, the scrimmage was too short to accurately show where Coach Malone should begin with his adjustments.

The offensive blocking of Bill Edgar and Joe Bob Tyler, both guards, looked impressive, but probably the most outstanding work of the day was turned in by the unherald John Luffey, a blocking back from Neville high school. Luffey, weighing only 152 pounds, handled his assignments almost perfectly and Coach Malone was eyeing him thoughtfully when the day's work was over.

Jay Price, a freshman from Brookhaven, Miss., also looked good, particularly passing and punting.

The two-a-day workouts will be resumed tomorrow and it is probable that a game-conditions scrimmage will be on tap by Wednesday.

HUNTS COACH

TAMPA, Fla., Sept. 5.—(AP)—President James E. Mooney of the University of Tampa, today was football coach hunting again for the third time in 18 months. Joe Justice, varsity coach informed Mooney last night that he had received a commission as ensign in the United States naval reserves and would leave next week for a station at Newport, R. I.

Quebec province, Canada, produced 332,927 fine ounces of gold during the first four months of 1940.

FARMER MACK TO MEET FRALEY IN MAIN MAT EVENT

Maine Potato Grower Returns To Kallio's Wrestling Arena Tuesday

Farmer Mack, the rugged Maine potato grower, returns to Monroe this week to meet Mike Fraley, rowdy Nebraska matman, in the main event of Promoter Gus Kallio's weekly card at the Monroe Wrestling arena Tuesday night.

Mack, who has appeared here three times in the past three months, was well received by Monroe and West Monroe mat followers during previous engagements here, but he won't have to be any too good to be their favorite Tuesday.

Fraley, the villainous Nebraskan, has never been a favorite here because of his mean disposition, but he is a colorful wrestler and whether the crowd is with him or not won't matter because he always provides a good show.

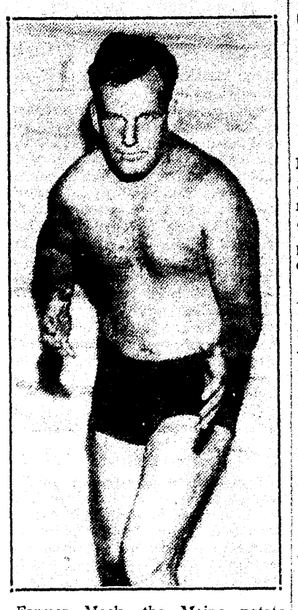
Supporting the Mack-Fraley headliner will be the return of the Masked Shadow, ring mystery man of villainous status, and Les Chapman of Chicago, Ill.

The Shadow and Chapman will appear in the semi-final which will open the show at 8:30 o'clock.

The Shadow-Chapman brawl may rival the feature as far as entertainment go. Both are main event scrappers and about the only difference Tuesday will be the fact that their battle will have a shorter time limit and will o en the program.

The Fraley-Mack riot will have a 90-minute time limit, two falls to win. The semi-final will be a 60-minute time limit affair, also two falls to win.

MACK BACK



Farmer Mack, the Maine potato grower, returns to Monroe Tuesday night when he meets Mike Fraley, rugged wrestler from Omaha, Neb., in the main event on the weekly mat card.

SCHROEDER FACES PARKER FOR TITLE

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Frankie Parker of Los Angeles, and Ted Schroeder, Jr., of Glendale, Calif., fought their way to the final round of the National Amateur tennis championships at Forest Hills today as a crowd of 9,000 roared its approval.

Parker, the 27-year-old battler of Polish extraction who has been trying to win the title for 10 long years, reached the threshold of his ambition as he turned back Pancho Segura of Ecuador, 6-1, 6-1, 2-6, 6-2. It marked the first time Frankie ever had reached the finals.

Schroeder, 21, and the nation's top-ranking amateur player in this war year, survived a furious first set to Eliminate Lieutenant Gardnar Mulloy of Jacksonville, Fla., 9-7, 6-3, 6-3. It also was the first time he had been within shooting distance of the title, though he won the doubles championship last year with Jack Kramer.

Winners of the women's semi-finals were Louise Brough of Beverly Hills, Calif., and Pauline Betz of Los Angeles, giving the coast state a monopoly on the singles play-offs. Miss Brough, after a shaky start, recovered to lick blond Helen Bernhard of New York City, 5-7, 6-4, 6-2. Miss Betz fought off a match point against her in the third set to win out over Margaret Osborne of San Francisco, 6-4, 4-6, 7-5.

The women's final will be played tomorrow, as well as the final in the men's doubles, in which Schroeder and Sidney Wood, Jr., meet Mulloy and William Talbert of Cincinnati. Schroeder and Parker are not scheduled to settle their feud until Monday.

PROPOSE TO FIX SPENDING LIMIT

Would Curb Consumer Purchasing By Making Individual Save

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—(AP)—A simple plan to curb consumer purchasing by imposing an arbitary limitation on the amount an individual might spend out of his income has been suggested by treasury officials to the senate finance committee, it was learned today.

The proposal, offered tentatively by Roy Blough, head of the treasury's tax research bureau, contemplates issuance by the government of a sort of rationing certificate to each taxpayer permitting him to spend a certain proportion of his income, but no more. Income that could not be spent might be expected to gravitate to government bonds.

A man with a $5,000 annual income might be granted sufficient cerificates to spend 80 per cent of it, or $4,000. He could spend this amount in any manner he chose and at any time, but could not spend more.

Low income groups existing on a base subsistence level might be permitted to spend all of their earnings, while those in the higher income levels probably would feel the weight of graduated restrictions.

Senator Vandenberg, Republican, Michigan, hailed the plan as "challenging" and said it easily could be written into the pending tax bill if the scheme was found feasible and the committee wished to give it a trial.

"This plan is challenging in its simplicity and its efficiency," Vandenberg told reporters. "It has the double value of controlling inflationary spending at its source and of providing a large reservoir of savings for bond purchases to help finance the war."

Vandenberg said that as outlined by Blough, the scheme would not involve the imposition of any tax or the withholding of any part of an individual's income for its effectiveness.

This constituted its chief difference from previous treasury proposals for a flat levy of 10 per cent on individual spendings above certain specified restrictions, the collections to be in the form of enforced savings returnable to the taxpayer after the war. The treasury also had proposed a graduated tax ranging from 10 to 75 per cent on what might be defined as "luxury" expenditures.

Blough was reported to have told the committee the treasury believed that drastic action must be taken immediately to counteract a prospective $40,000,000,000 gap between national buying power and the amount of consumer goods to be available for purchase.

Blough was said to have warned the committee that by the last three months of this fiscal year, or April, May and June of 1943, the amount of consumer goods available would not be sufficient to absorb more than $66,000,000,000 in annual spending. He estimated national income, exclusive of taxes, at the rate of $106,000,000,000 at that time.

The inclusion of a rationing formula in the tax bill, Vandenberg remarked, might make unnecessary any complicated plans for enforced savings and permit the committee to adjust the tax schedules on a purely revenue basis.

Because of a temporary shortage of cottonseed hulls in Texas and Oklahoma, mills in Louisiana may have an expanded market for their hulls. Texas and Oklahoma crushing mills may add actual transportation costs incurred as well as a $1 per ton handling charge when buying bulls from Louisiana mills to resell to feeders.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—(Wide World)—Everything was so quiet when the Dodgers got back to Brooklyn yesterday that, as one fan remarked, you could hear a pennant drop. . . . But from here it looks as if them bums could win without too much trouble. . . If the Dodgers win 12 of their 23 games—and those seven with the Phils look mighty good—the Cards will have to play better than .700 ball the rest of the season to catch up. . . . When it was announced in Stockholm that Gunder Haegg was going after the mile record yesterday, they sold out the stadium (20,000 tickets, including 7,000 standing room) in only three hours. . . . Watch out Southern Conference: The Chicago Bears are moving in at the University of Maryland to tune up for their tilts with the Redskins and the army all-stars.

Sound Advice

Al Holder, widely-known Buffalo amateur golfer, dug up this one from an old English book on golf: "If the decision of the match hangs on the last putt, do not have a gloomy face showing Christian resignation, but fill your mind with vacancy, not even allowing yourself the consolation of religion." . . . That "fill your mind with vacancy" may be okay, but most guys we know also fill the air with strong language.

Shorts And Shells

Bill Dudley, who has been turned down as a naval aviation cadet because his weight (190) is too great for his height according to navy standards, won't need much toughening-up if he makes the grade later. Besides having a busted finger, he played 23 minutes of the Philadelphia all-star game with an injured foot and squawked mightily when Bob Zuppke wouldn't let him go back for the second half. . . . Mary Hardwick, the English tennis player, hears from her former Wightman cup teammate, Peggy Scriven, that Peggy's husband was shot down over Germany nine days after their wedding and now is a prisoner. . . . When Nickie Trujilo of Colorado beat Domingo Diaz of Los Angeles in a fight at Denver the other night, he was hailed as "the new featherweight champion of Puerto Rico." . . . Well, if they can play the Rose Bowl game at Durham, N. C., why not?

Today's Guest Star

George R. Farrar, Jr., Woonsocket, R. I., Call: "Perhaps the professors at Fordham university should check their seismographs more carefully. It could be that they have mistaken earth tremors in the south Pacific for the quakes of Manager Leo Durocher as he watches the Cardinals snap their teeth at the heels of his dragging Dodgers."

Service Dept.

The Fort Monmouth, N. J., football team, whose schedule includes games with Columbia and Rutgers, actually will be composed of picked players from three signal corps encampments—Monmouth, Camp Wood and Camp Edison. . . Don Whitmire, Alabama's 230-pound sophomore tackle, figures on losing 20 pounds in a couple of weeks of grid practice but that isn't enough for the marines. Order from marine corps headquarters said to take off 40—and then it could be decided whether his blood presure is too high to enter the marine reserve. . . . Corporal Rene Dussaq, a former tennis champ in Cuba and Switzerland, once was an automobile stunt driver in Hollywood. Now he's at Fort Benning, Ga., trying for a commission in the parachute officers' training school. . . . Apparently he just doesn't give a durn.

BROWNS WIN TWO

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 5.—(AP)—The determined St. Louis Browns went a long way toward assuring themselves of third place, their highest position since 1928, by beating the Cleveland Indians, their nearest challenger, in a second straight doubleheader today.

A four-run rally in the eighth inning gave the Browns the first game, 6 to 2, and they won the second game, 4 to 3, although limited to four hits, by taking advantage of two Cleveland errors.

Al Smith of the Indians and Steve Sundra of the Browns matched each other in a 1-1 pitching duel until the seventh inning of the nightcap, when the Cleveland southpaw's defense cracked.

Lefty Fritz Ostermueller allowed the Indians nine hits in the first game but held them scoreless except in the fifth inning when Ray Mack's single, Gene Desautels' double and a single by Manager Lou Boudreau produced Cleveland's two runs.

The Indians, who came here half a game out of third, now trail the Browns by 4 1-2 games, with another doubleheader between the two teams scheduled for tomorrow.

TECHMEN IN GOOD FORM AFTER WEEK

Bob May played his last year as a senior in 1941. Cerise was put in the quarterback role because of his speed and blocking ability, the coach pointed out.

Although Coach Aillet said he was not yet ready to announce any definite team combinations or playing units, he did give out the names of two lineups expected to figure in the upper strata. Out of 14 linemen in those two lineups 12 are lettermen, one a sophomore and the other a transfer from a junior college. In the backfield, four in those two groups are lettermen.

Here's how they are listed in those two groups:

Right tackles—George Doherty, Canton, Miss., and Max Brown, Camden, Ark.

Right halfbacks—Raymond Peace, Haynesville, and Gene Fleming, Ferriday.

Fullbacks—Eddie Harelson, Baton Rouge, and D. E. Albritton, Farmerville.

BOMBERS DESTROY JAPANESE BARGES

GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia, Sunday, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Allied bombers destroyed a number of landing barges and boats at Buna, Japanese base in southeastern New Guinea, in three destructive attacks, a communique said today.

The communique also said Allied forces continued mopping up remnants of Japanese ground forces who were still holding out in the Milne bay area, in the southeastern tip of New Guinea.

In the Buna raids a number of grounded Japanese aircraft was set on fire.

The Allied planes, after dropping their bombs, heavily strafed the Buna area, which is the main base for the Japanese thrust to Kokoda, only 60 miles across the Owen Stanley mountain range from the Allied base at Port Moresby.

The communique:

"Northwestern sector: Reconnaissance activity only.

"Northeastern sector:

"Buna: Allied fighter and attack bombers carried out three destructive raids on an enemy airdrome and surrounding areas, heavily strafing the area after dropping their bomb loads.

"Grounded aircraft and a fuel dump were set afire; huts, motor vehicles, landing barges and boats were destroyed; an anti-aircraft position was silenced. There was no interception.

"Kokoda: Allied fighters machine-gunned enemy positions in close support of our ground forces; we lost one plane.

"Milne bay: Our ground forces, supported by fighter attacks, were engaged in destroying remnants of enemy guerilla forces."

DEAD HEATS

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Two dead heats were registered yesterday at Aqueduct, Bug Boy and Psychiatrist reaching the wire simultaneously in the fourth race and Hubbub and Highborough deadlocking for second in the seventh. It was the first dead heat for first place at the meeting.

LEAD REBELS

UNIVERSITY, Miss., Sept. 5.—(AP)—A "Rebel" and a "converted Yankee" today were elected captain and alternate for the University of Mississippi's football team. Center Dan Wood of Marianna, Ark., was named captain while Frank Thorsey, an end from Bridgeport, Conn., was picked for alternate captain.

The Colhoun, designed as a destroyer of 1,060 tons, standard displacement, was launched in February, 1918. She was named for Rear Admiral Edmund R. Colhoun, who died in 1897. When she was converted to an auxiliary transport in 1940, her forward fire room was removed to provide space for cargo and troops.

The losses bring to 48 the number of United States navy ships lost since the war started.

theme on which all these Allied summaries of the war outlook were pitched. It was to the effect that while Germany and her Axis accomplices have reached or passed the peak of their power and exhausted the advantage they gained by prolonged plotting and preparation for the attack, the United Nations fellowship is only now beginning to muster its strength.

Is there factual data to support that view as expressed by so many British, American or other officials in war anniversary comment? Who can doubt it? It is written day by day in the deeds of American fighting men afloat on many seas, in the skies over many distant lands and ashore in China, in Australia, in India, in the islands of the far Pacific, in the British isles, in Egypt, even in Belgian Congo by a London report.

Allied striking power is beginning to catch up with the Axis on both sides of the world. Within the next year it will have passed it and be set for offensive action on all chosen fronts. That is what the war anniversary outgivings here and abroad have said in effect, even in words.

How else explain this assurance of Hitler to the German people against ultimate defeat:

"A majority of the millions of the Far East have made a pact with the Axis that will prevent our land from falling before the barbarism of the Bolsheviks or the exploitation of Anglo-Saxon capitalism."

That implies that Japan is to be the savior of Germany. By no stretch of imagination could that expression have come from Hitler's lips a year ago.

LOUISIANA FLIER GETS JAP PLANE

down to 500 feet where the Jap burst into flames and spiralled to the water.

"I saw another running away near the water," Jensen related, "and gave him a long burst. Flames came, then the plane exploded and hit the water."

Ensign Mark (Highpockets) Bright of Anderson, Ind., was credited with two enemy planes downed and two assists in the battle.

"I got one man in a dive," Bright said, "and believe he was hit but I couldn't tell because I was going so fast I passed him. Then I got my guns on a man ahead and gave a burst. The Jap landing gear caught fire and then the whole plane was in flames. The rear seat men was firing at me. I doubt he dropped any bombs.

"I got on another at the bottom of his dive and he was flaming when I passed. I did a wingover and saw him hit the water. Fifteen minutes later I spotted one dive bomber headed for Guadalcana. I attacked with another fighter from dead astern. He went into a 60-degree dive into the beach in a burst of flames. A minute later I saw another dive bomber heading along about 100 feet above the water I attacked with another pilot and the plane burst into flames and plunged into the sea."

The pilots who were credited with assists with Ensign Bright in getting the last two planes were Ensign E. W. Cook of Evanston, Ill., and Ensign J. D. Shoemaker, Lyons, Kansas.

Lieutenant Marion Dufilho of Opelousas, La., who formerly flew as wingman with Lieutenant Commander Edward (Butch) O'Hare, also shot down one plane and assisted in downing one more.

Dufilho remarked after the battle "I caught the first one in a steep turn and got my sights on him. He flamed up and dived to the water in a spectacular crash. I was attacking a third when oil got on my windshield and I had to stick my head out of the cockpit to see. His rear gunner was firing at me and an explosive bullet came through the windshield, missing my head by a half-inch and cutting my face and neck." He was not injured seriously.

In all, eleven of the fifteen enemy planes were downed, without losses to the American fliers.

Ensign Donald Innis of Nevada, Mo., a few minutes before the dive bomber attack had pitched into an enemy flight of high altitude bombers at 10,000 feet.

Innis declared "as I headed for the bombers I saw at least 10 Zeros screaming down in the sun from a great altitude. I pulled up into the group, firing my six guns.

"Hell resulted and I saw tracer bullets from a Zero on my tail. Another Zero was pulling up in a wingover in front of me, and I gave him a long burst. He fell off with many holes in the fuselage. Other Zeros jumped me, and out of ammunition I headed for the clouds."

Innis returned to his carrier with 49 holes in his plane and a large part of his elevators shot away.

Lieutenant H. S. Brown, Jr., of Martin, Ga., was on Innis' right when the Zeros jumped them. He said "I saw one Zero at our level, coming fast. I turned toward him, shooting. He went down. I followed, still shooting. Another came from the side. I pulled over a shot at him. Another came from the other side and I gave him a short burst. Then one came from below and I gave him a burst.

"I pulled up and one must have gotten on my tail. There was a puff of smoke and I felt a bullet hit my leg. I dived, zig-zagging and sliding, and made for the nearest clouds.

"When I emerged I saw a tremendous splash of bombs, missing our transports off Guadalcanal.

"My right leg was pretty numb and the gas was running out pretty rapidly."

MARKET BULLETIN ADS ARE STRANGE

Farmers Advertise For Everything From Companions To Milk Goats

JACKSON, Miss., Sept. 5.—(AP)—If you can take time for some real escape literature, dip into the Mississippi Market Bulletin published by the state department of agriculture.

Read the offers of a snuffbox full of flower seed free with every dozen plants, or 40 pounds of goose feathers and a heart-and-gizzard pattern quilt top to exchange for what have you?

Maybe you'll be inspired to start a fall victory garden. Anyway you should get a first class day dream of farmhouse porches soaked in sun and vine shadows and peace.

Listen to a few of the offers:

"Exchange crocheted table cloth of fine ecru thread for heifer or hogs."

"For sale: Mustard seed, 10 cents per snuff box full. Pomegranite seed, tobacco sack full 40 cents. Watermelon seed, soda box full 30 cents. I do not pay postage."

"I will exchange flowers for crocheting. I'll furnish thread. References exchanged."

"Have 100 mixed blooming size gladiolus bulbs to exchange for one pair guinea pigs, rabbits or pigeons."

You can't smile at all the advertisements. Think of the stories behind these:

"Would like to hear from some one who needs help. I am a widow with three children, ages 17, 10, eight. Reared on a farm."

"Wanted, work for children, four boys and two girls, age up to 14 years. Unable to support them. If interested and if you are good, kind, Christian people, write Mrs. ——."

"Wanted, one milk goat, must be healthy, to raise two babies."

Not all help or job wanted advertisements are desperate.

"Wanted, a person to live in farm home and work with industrious widow. Must be of good character and agreeable. Must wait till fall for most of salary. Will pay according to services rendered. Three in family, all agreeable."

"Wanted, some good, congenial, honest, hard working couple to share my home and property as long as I live with prospects of inheriting same at my death. Am a widow 50 years old. Have 313 acres, 3 colts, 3 mules, 60 head of cattle. No drunkard or slacker need apply."

"Young man 19 years of age, honest and doesn't mind work, desires year around employment on farm. Have a wife who desires work too."

Then there's the four-footed help.

"For sale, pair of spotted hounds. Run anything."

"For sale, nine hybrid puppies. Mother half short haired terrier and half collie. Daddy full blood hybrid terrier."

"For sale, three smooth mouth mules or trade for yearlings, cows, hogs of any breed or corn. These mules are in fair condition and will make a good crop."

"Wanted to know of anyone having black collie pup and white Persian kitten to give away. I don't believe in buying cats and dogs."

If you must look for signs of the times, and of return to a simpler life, you can find them.

"Wanted, used anvil and blower or could use blacksmith shop.

"Wanted, to buy empty glass jars with home raised vegetables. Write for my prices and method of canning."

"Wanted, some wheel weights from an old pan plow."

"Hickory churn dashers 37 cents each made on farm. Late model shuck scrub mop or broom easy to refill with corn shucks."

"Wanted, a plantation bell."

The state OPA office has advised local war price and rationing boards that they should refuse to replace a war ration book when they believe that the information furnished by the applicant is not sufficient to warrant the issuance of a new one. Boards are reminded that they should be certain that the lost, stolen or destroyed ration book is really destroyed or can not be located before issuing a new one.

JAPANESE WILL GO TO COLLEGE

Allowed To Attend Missouri Institution Despite Protests

PARKVILLE, Mo., Sept. 5.—(AP)—The battle of Park college is ended—and seven American-born Japanese will enroll as students this fall over the protests of the mayor, the councilmen, and many of the 675 townspeople.

Loyalty of the Japanese students has been guaranteed by the federal agencies which sponsored their move here from California, Dr. William Lindsay Young, college president, declared.

But his declaration didn't help much when he announced the plan several weeks ago. The tempest was immediate, and in the midst of it the first of the Japanese youths arrived—spending most of their time quietly indoors and off the echoing streets of the town.

Mayor Herbert A. Dyer said the city would take every legal step to remove them. "If the FBI is so sure these Japs are loyal citizens, why doesn't it let them remain on the west coast?" he inquired.

The government had suggested some community official sign a written welcome to show the absence of community hostility. Mayor Dyer refused. So did councilmen. Sheriff Holt Coffey at Platte City finally signed it.

The mayor forecast college trustees would bar the students, and one member of the board commented:

"Park college has sent 45 of its students to war. Why should it take Japs to take some of their places? It doesn't make sense. I don't believe in being that soft."

Yesterday, though, 15 of the 23 trustees met and decided to admit the seven Japanese—five boys and two girls—for the coming scholastic term.

Dr. Young said their enrollment was arranged in cooperation with the FBI, the army, the navy, the United States department of education and the war allocation board.

Henry Masuda, 18, one of the early arrivals, was vice-president of his (Roosevelt) high school student body in Los Angeles. He's the only one who ever saw Japan—he visited there at the age of 2.

Abraham H. Dohi, 18, won a west coast American Legion democracy essay contest in 1940.

All were baffled by the arguments. On the train through Arizona, Masuda said, "A bunch of soldiers rode with us. They treated us swell."

P.-T. A. GROUP HOLDS 1ST MEET

Twin Cities Parent-Teacher Association Council Plans New Year

Twelve of the schools in the Twin Cities' P.-T. A. council were represented by the 47 members who turned out Thursday for the first meeting of the council for the new school session.

Mrs. W. S. Vincent, president, directed the numerous business matters that came before the council at the initial meeting. New P.-T. A. presidents were introduced, as was Mrs. Aimee Cook, new principal of Mitchell school.

Mrs. Vincent asked that schools see at once about making arrangements for needed tonsillectomies by October 1.

Educational survey and democratic citizenship will form the two parts of the national P.-T. A. program, Mrs. Fagan Cox, state president, said in reporting on the national convention at San Antonio, Tex. Local programs were discussed by Mrs. J. Durrett, program chairman of Neville High school. The wartime program of the P.-T. A. is explained in "America Pitches In," an article that every member is urged to read.

The Fifth district director, Mrs. C. C. Lindley, put in a plea for assistance from the council to rural P.-T. A. groups during the coming year. A suggestion that local P.-T. A.'s have exchange study group meetings was offered by Miss Myrtle Rodgers, state character education chairman.

Council scrapbook chairman, Mrs. B. G. Cole, asked that local scrapbook chairmen mail their material to her.

Some of the highly specialized technicians sent to various battlefronts from the plants of American aircraft builders to service United States-built fighters and bombers are so versatile that they can put together an airworthy plane from broken craft of four makes—including R. A. F. parts.

Miss Marie Adelaide Parker Weds Lieut. Thomas Wyatt At Grace Church

Members Of Pioneer Families Are United

Ceremony Performed By Dr. Hayward; Reception Follows At Lotus Club

A wedding of paramount social interest and one reflecting considerable beauty of detail took place Saturday, August 29, at Grace Episcopal church at eight o'clock in the evening when Miss Marie Adelaide Parker, daughter of Mrs. Cecile Parker and Mr. Peyton Parker, became the bride of Lieutenant Thomas Linton Wyatt, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Wyatt.

The impressive ceremony was performed by Dr. Erward F. Hayward, rector of Grace church, in the presence of a large concourse of friends and relatives who filled to capacity the generous proportions of the church.

Fragrant clematis, associated since time immemorial with old southern gardens, trailed its graceful lengths over the chancel rail and choir loft and banked the altar where cathedral tapers were silhouetted against the rich, crimson velvet curtains in the background. Tapers also gleamed in white candlesticks of graduated lengths which formed a semi-circle for the wedding party. In the background were tall white wicker baskets overflowing with white gladioli. Two handsome American flags, one on either side of the altar, created a dramatic dash of color.

While the guests were being escorted to their seats the organist, Cadet David Ryan of Washington, D. C., and now with the A. A. F. navigation school in this city, rendered an impressive concert using Bach's compositions exclusively. He accompained the soloist, Charles Chapman, who sang the favorite songs of the bride, "Because" and "I Love You Truly." During the ceremony Gounod's "Ave Maria" was impressively rendered.

The candles were lighted by two altar boys in black and white vestments. They were the bride's brother, Peyton Parker, Jr., and her cousin, Carl Tidwell.

The maid of honor, Miss Mary Lavinia Inabnet, and the two bridesmaids, Miss Roberta Neel and Miss Dottie White, wore bouffant Nile green chiffon models very full and long as to skirt and with lace trimmed bodices fashioned with square neckline and elbow length sleeves. They wore flaring hats of green lace and carried arm bouquets of cerise colored Gerbera daisies intermingled with English daisies of a lighter shade.

The bridegroom was attended by his father, Mr. J. A. Wyatt, and his two groomsmen were Cadet Russell Simpson and Nelson Abell.

The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. C. R. Tisdwell, wore a diaphanous wedding gown of white illusion over white Duchess satin. The tight-fitting bodice was fashioned with transparent yoke and short puffed sleeves and the skirt, long and full, ended in a billowy train. Her veil of illusion, sweeping far beyond the hemline, was caught to her hair with a chaplet of fresh orange blossoms. An exquisite bouquet of orchids and tube roses was carried. For the traditional "something old" she wore the beautiful, antique pearl bracelet which belonged to her grandmother, Mrs. John Parker.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Lotus club where the wedding party stood with the bride's mother and the bridegroom's parents to receive the guests.

Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Neel, were also members of the receiving party. Mrs. Parker wore a Madelon blue lace and chiffon model and Mrs. Wyatt wore a black crepe model with transparent yoke of camellia pink chiffon. Miss Dorothy Wyatt, also a member of the receiving party, wore a pastel blue lace model.

Beautiful flowers, gladioli and pale pink lilies, were placed with exceeding artistry throughout the reception suite, lounge and library.

The bride's table was developed in white and silver. The distinctive decor featured mirrors on which were placed miniature silver trees adorned with shell-pink lilies. Silver compotes held a variety of wedding mints and other confections.

Before departing on their honeymoon the bride and bridegroom cut their beautifully embossed wedding cake. It was a two-tiered confection with flat surface on which was placed a crystalized cornucopia overflowing with white bride's roses and valley lilies.

Mrs. James A. Noe presided at the punch bowl and Mrs. C. E. McKenzie, Mrs. Gordon Surguine, Mrs. J. Hunter Thatcher and Mrs. W. I. Neel assisted in the courtesies.

The bride changed her wedding raiment for a smart milgrim model of navy blue crepe with crimson accessories and a corsage of orchids. She sent her wedding bouquet to her grandmother, Mrs. John Parker, who was unable to attend the ceremony.

The young couple left for a honeymoon in New Orleans before leaving for San Diego, Calif., where Lieutenant Wyatt is stationed with the marine air corps.

The bride, member of one of Monroe's prominent pioneer families, is a popular member of the younger set. She attended the Louisiana State university, Baton Rouge, and is a member of Delta Delta Delta and Delta Beta Sigma sororities.

Lieutenant Wyatt attended Louisiana Tech, Ruston, and Tulane university, New Orleans. He was graduated from the naval air base at Pensacola, Fla.

The bride's gift from the bridegroom was a beautiful silver bracelet. Her gift from her mother was a diamond ring which she inherited from her maternal grandmother.

Out of town guests attending the wedding were Mrs. George Brown, Mrs. J. C. Newton, Mrs. Felix Pugh and Miss Dorothy Wyatt of Portland, Ark.

'Y' Business Girls Hold Regular Dinner

The Business and Professional Girls of the Y. W. C. A. held their regular dinner meeting at the "Y" with Mary Mulhern presiding. Due to the fact that three of the officers who were elected in the spring have left town, it was necessary to hold a supplemental election for the purpose of selecting a treasurer, reporter and parliamentarian for the coming year. Those elected were: Fay Bell Higginbotham, treasurer, Faye Curry, reporter, and Alyne Newsom, parliamentarian. These officers, in addition to Wista Smith, president; Monique Coates, vice-president; Myrtle Johnson, corresponding secretary, and Christine Henry, recording secretary, will be installed at the next meeting of the club, which will be held on Wednesday, September 16. Miss Bess Sharp, Y. W. C. A. secretary, urged that all club members be present at that time, not only to honor the newly elected officers but also to renew their club fellowship.

Following the business meeting all present joined in group singing of popular songs, with Mrs. Nell Bennett at the piano and Eleona Brinsmade leading. Alice Terry read an amusing story of a soldier in World war I. Members attending this meeting were:

Katherine Averett, Nellie Jo Adcock, Christine Henry, Clovis Creighton, Louise Phillips, Mary Elizabeth Cornett, Marie Thompson, Alice Terry, Eleona Brinsmade, Mrs. Nell Bennett, Mrs. Henry Whitfield, sponsor, Miss Bess Sharp, Faye Curry, Louise Dongieux, Freda Mickel, Olive Lusk, Edith Chambers, and Mary Mulhern.

Miss Phyllis Arceneau Marries James Newburn

A September wedding claiming the sincere interest of friends was that of Miss Phyllis Arceneau, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Arceneau, and James Newburn, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Newburn, September 5, at the First Presbyterian church at eight o'clock in the evening with the pastor Reverend Ernest Holloway officiating, in the presence of a large concourse of friends and relatives.

Cathedral tapers burned in the midst of white gladioli overflowing from pedestral baskets against a background of southern smilax. Woodwardia ferns banked the choir loft and formed an enclosure for the wedding party.

While the guests were assembling the organist, Max Kulcke, rendered a nuptial concert and accompanied the soloist Dallas Goss, who sang "I Love You Truly" and "Because."

The bride's attendant, Mrs. James J. A. Weir, wore an advanced fall ensemble of navy blue with blue accessories and corsage of rose colored asters.

The bridegroom was attended by Mr. Roy Sharman.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a smart fall ensemble of teal blue with draped lines. Her accessories were of navy blue with small hat and veil and lonk white kid gloves. Her corsage was fashioned of white bride's roses, gardenias and valley lilies. For something old she wore her mother's antique locket brought from Scotland many years ago.

The bride is a graduate of Ouachita Parish High school and Northeast Junior college. She is now associated with the Natural Gas company. The bridegroom is a graduate of the Zanesville, Ohio, High school and Northeast Junior college. At the present time he is serving as assistant manager of the Paramount theater this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Newburn are now at home to their friends at 612 South Second street.

INTRODUCING . . .

Miss Jean Carroll, lovely member of the younger set who will guide the destiny of Delta Beta Sigma sorority during the coming year in the capacity of president. Miss Carroll was formally introduced at a banquet in the Mirror room of the Frances hotel Friday night and later claimed the spotlight on the terrace where the D. B. S. annual "farewell to summer" ball was held.

Readers Clique Holds Interesting Meeting

Members of Readers Clique met in the home of Mrs. Wilbur Ross Thursday for the first meeting of the club year. Mrs. Skeeter Morgan gave an interesting report on the subjects the club will study this year, namely; "Problems of Lasting Peace," "Rubber," "Medicine," "Children," "Alaska" and "Latin America." Titles of books selected for this year and a brief synopsis given by Mrs. Wilbur Ross was of paramount interest to all members. She said:

"'Hang My Wreathe,' by Ward Weaver, is a rousing romance of Civil war and civilian life. It is a thrilling exposition of how the armies really lived and what they suffered and whom they loved. Has plenty of action.

"'Drivin' Woman,' by Elizabeth Pickett Chevalier, will give excellent entertainment and a new understanding of the fifty years on which our present day life is based—the fifty years following the Civil war. It is the story of a lively, independent, glamorous, woman, a Virginia belle who falls in love with a river boat gambler. One of our newest and most popular books.

"'Dragons' Teeth,' by Upton Sinclair, is a powerful story of our modern world—the mighty, the famous, the infamous.

"'Sophia,' by John Ervin is a novel that opens with the death of the heroine. Sophia dies at the age of forty-seven and to her surprise finds herself hovering about observing the reaction of her husband and two daughters. She reviews her whole life. Mr. Ervine's spirit and humor make his story an intriguing speculation upon the life after death.

"'The Copper Pot,' by Oliver La Farge, is a novel of youth and art and the approaching present war, with the story taking place in New Orleans.

"Edna Ferber's 'Saratoga Trunk,' has New Orleans and Saratoga as its background in the 1880's. It is the story of Clio Dulaine who is the daughter of a New Orleans aristocrat and his French mistress. Not even "Show Boat" has the color of this glowing novel.

"'The Song of Bernadette,' by Franz Werfel, is a work of beauty that springs from a complete understanding of the infinite variations of the human soul. It would be a radiant novel at any time, but today it has a touch of magic.

"'Until The Day Break,' by Louis Bromfield, is on the occupation of France, one I am sure none of us will want to miss reading.

"'Assignment in Brittany,' by Helen McInnes, is a war story of espionage taking place in England and France.

"'Tap Roots,' our newest by James Street takes place in and around Mississippi. It is basically a story of the slavery hating Southerner."

Mrs. Mike John, president, presided with grace and charm. She named the following committees; scrap book committee; Mrs. O. P. Lowery and Mrs. A. D. Williams and Mrs. E. L. Marchman; banquet committee, Mrs. Fred Hemler, Mrs. Raymond John, and Mrs. Bill Jackson. Mrs. Jack Masur was asked to serve as corresponding secretary.

The following members enjoyed delightful refreshments, Mrs. Skeeter Morgan, Mrs. Jimmie Harbuck, Mrs. Russell Cook, Mrs. Mike John, Mrs. Sidney Gill, Mrs. Raymond John, Mrs. Fred Hemler, Mrs. X. Holt, Mrs. Jack Masur, Mrs. Bill Jackson, Mrs. Burl Hollis and Mrs. Clay Albright.

Miss Lelia Frazier First Here To Join WAVES

West Monroe Girl, Who Won Many Honors At L. S. U., To Go To Northampton

Miss Lelia Dean Frazier, daughter of Mrs. Marie Frazier of West Monroe, claims the distinction of being one of the first group of girls to enlist as officer candidates in the navy's women's auxiliary, the WAVES.

Miss Frazier who is now in New Orleans had the pleasure of hearing her name called out as being one of the successful applicants after physical and mental examinations were held. She will leave next month for Smith college, Northampton, Mass., where she will receive a four-month training course and upon graduation will be sent to any point in continental United States where she can be used to replace men for sea duty. Miss Frazier will emerge from Smith college as an ensign and will receive the same pay as officers in the regular navy.

The aristocratic old Colonial dormitory at Smith college, where the first group of probationary commissioned officers is quartered, no longer has shining parquet floors. It has "decks." Its stairs are "ladders," its second floor story is "topsides" and the girl on duty, who yesterday may have been dean of a woman's college with Ph.D. after her name and 3,000 girls jumping at her stern voice, now is "master of the deck."

The uniforms, designed by Mainbocher, are being made by contract. As a result the WAVES' uniform is much less expensive than that of men officers. A jacket and two skirts without the WAVES insignia (a white anchor entwined with a blue airplane propeller) sell for $32. The complete uniform including a white rayon dress shirt, a blue spun rayon blouse, a cotton blouse of reserve blue, an officer's cap complete with two white covers and reversible raincoat, will be ready September 9. Friends in this city are anticipating the pleasure of seeing Miss Frazier in full uniform before she leaves for Northampton.

Miss Frazier's high school and college career has been an exceedingly interesting one. She evidently "hitched her wagon to a star." Splendid indeed have been her achievements and most flattering have been the honors conferred upon her at L. S. U. where she was regarded as one of the outstanding co-eds. She was selected as Homecoming Queen last year and served as co-ed vice-president of the student body. She was named in "Who's Who of America's College Students" and was a member of the mortar board at L. S. U. One of the most coveted honors was her selection for the role of Princess to represent the state of Louisiana at the Rose Festival in Tyler, Texas, last year.

Only young women with high resolve, intellectual ability, fearless and unafraid and possessing a deep religious faith could possibly be attracted to the kind of life members of the WAVES are seeking. In fact very few women could pass the strict examination and measure up to all the qualifications required for wartime service in Uncle Sam's navy.

The daily schedule that confronts the "brains battalion"—so called because these early WAVES have at least one college degree plus professional distinction qualifying them as leaders to get the training started—would scare the average young woman. They get off for an early start—6:45 a.m. Then there is a bit of setting-up exercises to wake up muscles. From the time they tumble out, flex their muscles, dress and powder their noses, and make up their metal double-deck bunks, they are allowed 45 minutes. And then begins that drilling health building for the navy wants a WAVES in top physical condition.

It doesn't matter if the Waves get seasick; they aren't going on sea duty. The law creating the Women's Naval Reserve says "No," and Captain Herbert Underwood, commanding officer of this first United States Naval Training School for Women, says it isn't the intention to turn out lady admirals.

Miss Marjorie McCrary And A. S. Huffman Wed

Claiming interest today is the announcement of the marriage of Miss Marjorie McCrary, daughter of Mr. John S. McCrary, and Mrs. A. S. Huffman, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Seiler, 809 College avenue, this city, September 3, at five o'clock in the afternoon, with Reverend Ernest Holloway, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, performing the impressive ceremony in the presence of a few intimate friends and relatives.

The ceremony took place in the reception suite against a background of beautiful garden flowers in the autumnal colors.

The bride wore a lovely fall ensemble of turquoise blue with golden brown accessories and a corsage of Orchids.

Following the ceremony an informal reception was held. Courtesies were extended by Mr and Mrs. Seiler.

The bride's table in the dining room, overlaid with handsome lace banquet cloth, had a beautifully embossed wedding cake for the central decor. A variety of delicious confections were served by Mrs. Stanley Wyatt, Mrs. George Lester, Mrs. George Harris and Miss Marness Lester.

Mr. and Mrs. Huffman traveled east where Mr. Huffman is a member of the field staff of the American Red Cross. He is on leave from Northeast Junior college. The bride has been associated with the Imperial Gas and Oil company, this city.

Out-of-town guests attending the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. John McCrary of Simsboro, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. McCrary of Arcadia, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hartman of Evansville, Ind., Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Blakewood the second of Baton Rouge, Mr. and Mrs. T. L. McCrary of Ruston, Mr. and Mrs. V. E. Green of DeRidder and Mrs. Versie Olds of Baton Rouge.

Mary Louise Burch Marries Daniel Burpo

Of interest to friends in this section of the state is the marriage of Miss Mary Louise Burch, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert R. Burch, to Mr. Charles B. Burpo, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel W. Burpo of Lake Providence, La. The Rev. V. E. Grosse performed the double ring ceremony July 25 at the Lutheran church with only intimate friends and members of both families attending.

The bride's attendants, Mrs. Leon R. McMullen and Mrs. Roy B. Gates, wore navy blue crepe models with white accessories and corsages of roses.

The bride wore a becoming poudre blue suit with white accessories and a lovely corsage of white chrysanthemums.

The bridegroom was attended by Mr. Roy B. Gates and Mr. Stanley Passman.

Mrs. Burpo completed her high school education in Franklinton Louisiana and a business course at Monroe Commercial college. She is now an employee of the Passman Equipment company. Mr. Burpo finished high school at Lake Providence, La., and is employed with the M. W. Kellogg company at Sterlington, La.

Mr. and Mrs. Burpo are now at home to their friends at 805 Walnut street, Monroe.

MISS LELIA DEAN FRAZIER . . .

Miss Frazier, daughter of Mrs. Marie Frazier, West Monroe, will become a WAVE in the United States Navy's women's auxiliary and will start training at Smith college, Northampton, Mass., October 6. Miss Frazier took the oath in New Orleans where she was privileged to hear her name called out as being among the successful applicants after physical and mental examinations were held. Miss Frazier was one of the 15 young women selected from 6,000 applicants.

Junior Knitters Hold Brief Business Session

The Junior Knitters held their weekly meeting in the home of Mrs. A. R. Bauerfind. After a brief business session during which knitted garments for the army and navy were turned in, Mrs. R. L. Rhodes presented Mrs. G. J. Brown, who has just arrived in this country from Haifa. She discussed thoroughly present day conditions in Palestine. She was in that country during the first bombing and therefore had many pertinent facts to relate regarding the situation there. Mrs. Brown showed pictures and handiwork of the Arabs and Jews. An Arab man's complete attire was modeled by Mrs. W. O. Webb and this proved a most interesting feature. Mrs. Brown's informal discussion and display was most informative as her perspective is world wide. She has been an active member of the Red Cross in numerous places.

Refreshments were served to the following members: Mesdames W. E. Andrews, A. R. Bauerfind, J. H. Bennett, Arthur Kite, Ralph Norman, Lamar Ratcliff, W. O. Webb, T. F. Wilson, R. L. Rhodes, V. S. Riddick, and Miss Irene Renaud.

Guests: Mrs. G. J. Brown, Mrs. H. V. Fackler, Mrs. Clarence Dubos, Mrs. J. H. Perkins.

The next meeting will be held Wednesday, 9:30 a.m. with Miss Irene Quinn Renaud, 320 Pine street.

Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Cook of this city announce the marriage of their daughter, Vera Mae, to Mr. James Archie Smith of Kelly, La., on August 19.

Mrs. Moore Observes Her 90th Anniversary

Many Friends Call At Home Of Her Daughter, Mrs. John Sholars, For Reception

In Monroe today there is a lovely, ninety-year-old woman, Mrs. J. R. Moore, who remembers well the days long before women demanded and received their rights and recognition. She remembers when family prayers were held daily and women were content to lead quiet, peaceful lives in th bosom of thir family. All this has changed during the twentieth century and Mrs. Moore has moved along with the times and is enjoying life as it is being lived today quite as much as she did in the mid-Victorian era. She keeps abreast of the times and travels back and forth visiting her seven children who reside in three different states. Her hands are never idle. She knits and she sews and is constantly crocheting articles for her daughters, her granddaughters and great granddaughters.

Mrs. Moore's ninetith birthday anniversary was an event of wide-spread interest last week and attracted sixty or more friends to the home of her daughter, Mrs. John Sholars, who kept open house during the afternoon.

The reception suite was literally banked with the beautiful gift flowers received by the celebrant. Gifts of a personal nature were also showered upon her and throughout the day telegrams of a congratulatory nature arrived.

Mrs. Sholars was assisted in receiving the guests and extending courtesies by her two sisters, Mrs. L. D. Smith of Stephens, Ark., and Mrs. Len Williams of Franklinton, La. The celebrant's granddaughter, Miss Frances Williams also assisted.

A variety of delicious confections were served from a lace covered, candlelit table where a beautifully embossed birthday cake was the central decor. Across the flat surface of the cake the words "Happy Birthday Mother" were traced. The cutting of the cake was a charming ceremony performed by the celebrant.

Mrs. Moore's gift from her daughter, Mrs. Williams, was a beautifully bound guest book in which each guest present on this auspicious occasion was requested to register. Guests attending all future birthday anniversaries will be requested to perform similar rites.

Mrs. Sholars was assisted in receiving by Mrs. E. P. Cudd, Mrs. Duncan Smith, Mrs. E. G. Hinkle, Mrs. M. D. Hale, Mrs. Jean Boyce and Miss Evelyn Gannaway.

Monroe Girls Win Awards At Waldemar

Midsummer came to the hill country and with it came ten Monroe girls to vacation at Camp Waldemar, near Kerrville, Tex. Now summer is over and school bells lured these sun-bronzed maidens from his delightful area where campers have dwelt in peace and happiness for a season of sports and merriment. Virtually every camper takes a bit of Waldemar with her, and, in addition to memories of rare times in this wonderful spot, these took all-star medals for high individual achievement, for making the required number of teams, and for holding aloft the ideals of Waldemar.

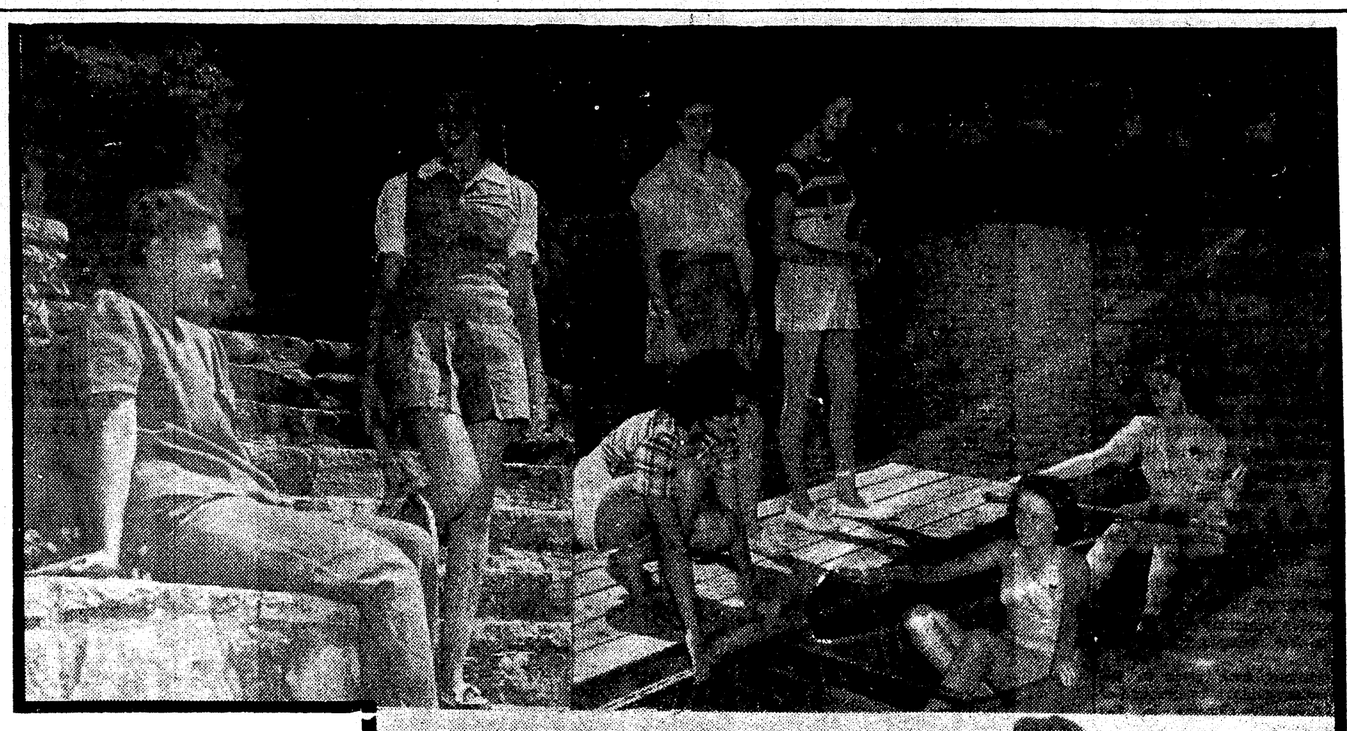
In the presence of hundreds of campers and guests at the final banquet honoring these campers, the award for first year girls went to Louise Tisdale; the silver medals for second year campers were presented to Ann Brown and Ann Humphries; and the gold medals for third year girls were awarded to Jerry and Jo Ann Biedenharn, Betty Sue Jones, Cornelia McHenry, Betty Sue Shotwell, Lee Slagle, and Jessie Lee Touchstone.

The climax of the swimming season for Jerry Biedenharn, Ann Humphries, Betty Sue Jones, Cornelia McHenry, and Betty Sue Shotwell came when they passed the life saving tests for the American Red Cross, threby entitling them to be termed full fledged life savers.

For their brilliant playing on the tennis courts Jessie Lee Touchstone and Betty Sue Jones received gold medals, and for excellent work in canoeing gold medals went to Jerry Biedenharn and Betty Sue Shotwell.

At the horse show on the final day of camp Betty Sue Shotwell took the spotlight with her superb riding and won first place in the senior division of western horseback riding.

The activities in which these girls have been engaged during the past six weeks are too extensive to be adequately reviewed here, for they cover a wide range of courses, with everything from the academic and conservative to the expressionistic roundly represented; a variety of sports and amusement was the governing principle. So, refreshed after a summer under the sun, these girls bade farewell to Waldemar for this season.



Three sun bronzed girls were snapped on their way to the stables to saddle their favorite mounts for a brisk ride up hill and down dale at Camp Waldemar, where they spent six delightful weeks participating in the numerous land and nautical activities. Left to right, Hilda Landers of Bernice, Ann Wood Brown of Monroe and Mary Pharr Latham of Bessemer, Ala., formerly of this city.

Willing hands get ready to beach a canoe on the Gaudalupe river at Camp Waldemar near Kerrville, Texas, where summer gave these girls their chance to be carefree, to enjoy the bracing climate and all the pleasures this unique camp in the hill country of Texas affords. Left to right are Nancy Ross, Jon Ann Biedenharn, Ann Humphries. Seated in the canoe, Louise Tisdale and Lee Slagle.

Following a game of tennis, Cornelia McHenry pauses to talk with one of the camp counsellors, Mrs. Mae Mouk at Camp Waldemar where the golden summer hours slipped by all too rapidly for every one in camp.

Bobashelas Book Club Holds First Meeting

The arrival of September finds almost every woman in the Twin Cities settled in the routine of meetings, luncheons, lectures and Red Cross work that will continue all winter long.

Last week marked the first meeting of the new year for members of literary clubs. Especially interesting was the first meeting of the year of the Bobashelas Book club. The guest speaker, Miss Frances Michie, from the Ouachita Parish public library, brought a refreshing message to club members on the importance of possessing good books. She recommended such books as the Bible, Shakespeare's works, a set of American history books, a world atlas, a good dictionary, a set of encyclopedia, books of reference, books on art and music and novels including the classics. Classical authors recommended by Miss Michie were: Henry Fielding, Sir Walter Scott, Mark Twain, Charles Dickens, Thackery, Conrad, Dumas, Tolsti. Authors of contemporary fiction suggested by Miss Michie were: Edith Wharton, Galsworthy, Sinclair Lewis, Pearl Buck, Heminway and others.

In conclusion Miss Michie said, "The representative books, therefore, will comprise those which you have found worth reading and worth keeping. Many books are read for the moment's enjoyment and relaxation which, like the newspaper, should be as rapidly passed on or discarded. But the books to be retained are those which are like the improvements in the house—they remain for the continuing benefit of the entire family. They are a permanent investment, still good ten years after purchase.

A parliamentary drill conducted by Mrs. Malcolm LeFevre followed Miss Michie's talk.

Mrs. R. G. Taylor and Mrs. H. A. Gentry summarized the news to date in concise and well-selected subjects in papers on current events.

A short business meeting was conducted by the president, Mrs. J. V. Russell. Committees reported and the club business for the year was put in motion.

During the social hour iced drinks, sandwiches and cakes were served by the hostesses, Mrs. W. D. Clark and Mrs. Malcolm LeFevre. Club members present were: Mms. J. V. Russell, George Austin, Delma Carter, Charles Chisholm, W. D. Clark, Robert Coats, C. C. Eby, H. A. Gentry, D. C. Harper, K. D. Hayes, Amos Hood, Malcolm LeFevre, J. O. Miller, J. Y. Pipes, O. N. Reynolds, J. H. Rinehart, R. G. Taylor, L. N. Waddell, Miss Lallage Feazel, and two guests—Miss Frances Michie and Mrs. George Welch.

Margaret Stirling And Cam S. Barrett Wed

Friends throughout this section of the state will be interested in the following article apearing in Morning Advocate, Baton Rouge, Louisiana, August 21, 1942:

"Like all the Stirling brides, blonde Margaret Aline wore the antique brooch which belonged to her great great grandmother, when she was married last evening, at twilight to Cam Smith Barrett, Jr., United States navy, at the First Presbyterian church.

"The Rev. J. M. Gregory performed the ceremony, which took place in a beautiful setting of palms banked against white colonades. Tall urns were filled with white gladioli and asters, and tapers burned in tall candelabra on either side.

"Miss Katherine Landry sang 'Because,' and during the ceremony 'Traumerl' was played. The bridal party entered to the strains of Lohengrin's 'Wedding March.'

"Miss Stirling was distinctive in a quaint wedding gown of white organdy made with large bishop sleeves, and with lace ruffles at the neck and wrists. Her veil of illusion was held with orange blossoms. The bride carried white roses and stephanotis for her wedding boquet.

"Her two attendents wore French blue organdy dresses, old-fashioned frocks, with sweetheart necklines and elbow-length sleeves, worn over ruffled pink taffeta slips. They carried pink amaryllis lillies in crescent shaped boquets finished with tulle bows.

"Ruffin Grey Stirling, Jr., a cousin of the bride, was Mr. Barrett's best man, while Benjamin Leo Spann, Jr., another cousin, was groomsman. The ushers were also cousins of the bride, and they were Delroy Spann, Louis Stirling, William Spann and William Stirling.

"Following the ceremony there was a reception at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Mumford Stirling, 239 North 14th street. The young couple were assisted in receiving by Mrs. Stirling, who wore blue sheer crepe, and Mrs. Barrett, Sr., who wore navy sheer. Both had corsages of mixed asters.

"A handmade lace cloth covered the bride's table which was centered by a four-tiered wedding cake surrounded with clematis.

"Mrs. R. L. Downey presided over the punch bowl, while Miss Camilla Stirling served cake after the bride had cut the first piece with an enameled knife which had been in the family more than 200 years. Assisting in serving also were Misses Eula and Melba Barrett, sisters of the groom; Miss Lettis Guttzeit, Miss Winona Barron, Mrs. Inz Gautreaux, and Miss Carol Stirling.

"Mr and Mrs Barrett left for New Orleans and Norfolk, Virginia. The bride will later be at home with her parents, while Mr. Barrett is on active duty with the navy. Margaret wore as her going away dress a becoming black faille suit with bright off-the-face hat.

"Out-of-town guests here for the ceremony included Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Barrett, West Monroe, Louisiana, the groom's parents, Mrs. Jack Edwards, West Monroe, the groom's sister, Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Fisher, Columbia, Mrs. Fisher is a sister of the groom, and Mrs. James Leake Stirling of Woodhill farm, Wakefield.

"Both the bride and groom attended L. S. U. Mrs. Barrett is a member of Alpha Rho, business girls sorority.

"Plans for this wedding, which was of especial interest here where the Stirling family has long been distinguished, were made hurriedly, because of the groom's navy orders."

Crosby And Astaire In 'Holiday Inn' Here Monday

The self-sure Red Skelton seems just a bit on edge in this romantic scene with Eleanor Powell in "Ship Ahoy," showing today and tomorrow at the Capitol theater. It is one of Skelton's first romantic roles and is a laughfest from start to finish with Bert Lahr, Virginia O'Brien and the famous Tommy Dorsey and his orchestra in the supporting roles.

A joyous jubilee of music comes to the Paramount theater Monday through Wednesday as Bing Crosby and Fred Astaire sing and dance in "Holiday Inn". It has everything, as can be seen in the above scene!

Charles Winninger and Charlie Ruggles are the rival stars in the new comedy romance, "Friendly Enemies," playing Thursday and Friday at the Paramount theater. James Craig, Nancy Kelly and Otto Kruger are in the featured roles in this picture as American as the stars and stripes.

John Carroll and Ruth Hussey are teamed as the lovers in the adventure drama of the Canadian Northwest, "Pierre of the Plains," showing Saturday only at the Paramount theater, with Phil Brown, Reginald Owens and Henry Travers in the supporting roles.

When Ray Milland goes a'whiffling with an old flame, Patricia Morison, Betty Field wants to know "Are Husbands Necessary," the feature playing today only at the Paramount theater. Also in the cast are Eugene Pallette, Richard Haydon, and Philip Terry.

Humphrey Bogart hits a new high in mystery, drama and adventure in the Jap-slapping story sensation, "Across the Pacific," with Mary Astor and Sidney Greenstreet, playing at the Paramount theater's midnight show next Saturday night.

Just another heated argument in a baseball game as Lloyd Nolan and Carole Landis talk things over with the umpire in "It Happened in Flatbush," appearing Thursday only at the Capitol theater.

Hit Picture Opening At Paramount

Songs By Irving Berlin Are Featured In New Musical Romance

DON'T let it bother you that the next holiday is further away than you'd like it to be! There's a slew of holidays, and more fun to go with them than you ever dreamed you could have, headed this way in Irving Berlin's "Holiday Inn," which opens Monday at the Paramount theater.

To judge by advance reports, this Paramount musical has everything! It has eleven new hit tunes written especially for the picture by the greatest song writer of our times—Irving Berlin! It has a cast headed by the most popular male song-and-dance combination Hollywood has yet offered movie fans—Bing Crosby and Fred Astaire! In addition, it has Marjorie Reynolds, Virginia Dale and Walter Abel! It was produced and directed by one of the top movie musical-makers—Mark Sandrich!

And there's a grand story, too. Crosby, Astaire and Virginia are a singing-dancing trio who work in a New York night club. Bing asks Virginia to marry him and retire to his Connecticut farm where they can relax and enjoy every one of the fifteen holidays in a year. But Astaire convinces Virginia that she doesn't really want to bury herself on a farm; that she wants to marry him and keep on dancing.

Bing goes to Connecticut alone and finds that running a farm single-handed doesn't allow any time at all for celebrating holidays. He conceives the brilliant idea of turning his farm into an inn to be open only on holidays, which will give him the balance of the year to rest.

Working with him in the holiday shows is lovely Marjorie Reynolds who has tried for a long time to get a break in show business with her dancing.

The inn opens New Year's eve and in the midst of festivities, Astaire arrives, the worse for drink. Virginia has run off with a Texas millionaire, deserting him at the altar, and, more important, leaving him without a dancing partner.

His efforts to steal Marjorie from Bing, and Bing's determination to keep him from doing so are said to be hilariously funny. Complications become acute when Virginia changes her mind and returns.

Reports have it that Bing does more warbling in this picture than he's ever done before in any one film. The songs represent the best work Irving Berlin has done in all his years of turning out smash hit melodies. "White Christmas" and "Be Carefull, It's My Heart" are only two of the eleven everyone will be singing. Incidentally, there are two old Berlin favorites in the picture, too—"Lazy" and "Easter Parade."

Astaire, too, does more hoofing than ever before. He has eight whirlwind dance routines, dividing them equally between his two lovely new dancing partners—Marjorie Reynolds and Virginia Dale.

Crosby and Astaire together would seem to provide enough entertainment for half a dozen terrific pictures. Casting both of them in "Holiday Inn" to sing and dance to Irving Berlin's grand music, is a triple treat well worth looking forward to by all movie fans.

'Ship Ahoy' Here Today At Capitol

Eleanor Powell And Red Skelton Starred In Rollicking Musical

ELEANOR POWELL keeps up the pace of her inimitable tap dancing with unique new routines in "Ship Ahoy," the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer musical which opens today at the Capitol theater.

The charming Miss Powell, who has been called the world's greatest feminine tap dancer by the Dancing Masters of America, does not carry the burden alone. Red Skelton is in there pitching laughs, and Tommy Dorsey's top-flight band provides scintillating melody.

It was smooth sailing for "Ship Ahoy" with the audience. One favorite after another came up on deck with mirth or music in constant succession. The plot is consistently exciting, but it also manages to keep pitching around in gales of laughter.

Virginia O'Brien proves herself a commedienne of rare ability, as well as a singer of ear-tickling tunes. Bert Lahr, veteran of the Broadway stage, clowns fore and aft, offering a comedy song, "I'll Take Tallulah," which pleased the customers no end. Miss O'Brien sings in the hilarious deadpan style which made her famous.

Skelton, as a wooer of Miss Powell, was never better, even surpassing his initial screen triumph in "Whistling in the Dark," which lifted him to stardom.

Miss Powell's dancing, always a spectacular feature of any picture in which she appears, establishes a new record with five novelty dances, all directed by Bobby Connolly. A chorus of 27 Hollywood beauties lends charm to the numbers.

One of the most remarkable numbers executed by Miss Powell is a literal Morse code dance in which she actually taps out an imoprtant message. There are also a La Torria specialty, in imitation of a bull fighter; a soft shoe dance and a tap in competition, or in harmony, with Buddy Rich, the crack drummer of Dorsey's orchestra. The competent direction was by Eddie Buzzell.

John Wayne and Binnie Barnes are starred in the magnificent, dramatic romance of the wild, devil-may-care empire builders, "In Old California," the picture playing Tuesday and Wednesday at the Capitol theater.

Gene Autry gives out in his most likable style as he and his band sing in his latest hit, "Call of the Canyon," with Smiley Burnette, which plays Saturday at the Capitol theater.

Important Notice! { AUTO OWNERS AND THE GENERAL PUBLIC }

THE SERVICE STATION ASSOCIATION BRINGS YOU THIS IMPORTANT MESSAGE CONCERNING

SUNDAY CLOSING

In keeping with the war effort and the serious labor crisis we, the undersigned Service Station Operators will remain closed on Sunday for the duration, or until further notice. We hereby solicit the hearty and understanding cooperation of the public and the motoring public. This decision was brought about after a general meeting of Service Station Operators held at the Ouachita Parish Courthouse Friday, September 4th. It was agreed that by CLOSING on SUNDAYS would allow our employes to take the day off to be with their families, for recreation and to attend their favorite church. It is believed that with the increasing rubber shortage and war time traffic congestion, this measure will greatly aid our government's "all-out" war effort. We hope that with these circumstances in mind, that the public will take this action in the spirit in which it has been decided upon, and remember, to have their cars serviced by these dependable stations during the week.

SALUTE TO THE WORKING ARMY OF AMERICA!

FIGHTING THE BATTLES OF PRODUCTION

IN ALL the years since Americans first signalized this day, there has never been a Labor Day quite like this one. It is recognized quietly, courageously . . . with fewer picnics, little fanfare . . . without a pause in the wheels of industry. For today, American Labor has gone to war. Men and women in factories, shipyards, mines, railroads, farms . . . have taken up the fight, working with an unconquerable determination that is daily achieving production miracles.

But even as the instruments of destruction roll off our assembly lines, American Labor builds for the greater world of tomorrow. And when peace comes, new ideas and methods—invented to meet the challenge of Victory—will make possible even greater production miracles in the days of peace. We know now that American Labor will not only preserve, but will improve, the standard of living we're fighting for. To the names of our glorious heroes on the field of battle, we add the names of those unsung heroes on the production lines. The record will show that Victory came sooner . . . that peace was more worth winning because of them.

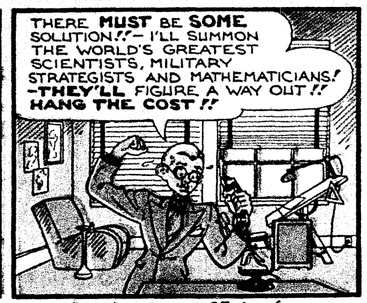
Advice fo' Chillun

CHILLUN WHO ALLUS TEASE THEIR POP, WILL GET IT HARD FROM THE RAZOR STROP... SENT IN BY JON ROBINSON, WESTMOUNT, QUEBEC

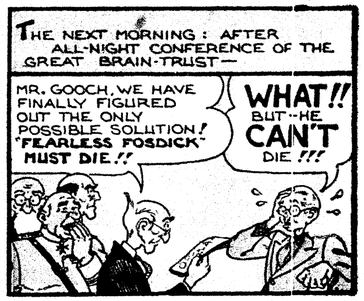
AND SO, FEARLESS FOSDICK, BOUND AND HELPLESS, HURTLES DOWN 10,000 FEET, STRAIGHT TOWARD THE SOLID CONCRETE LANDING FIELD!!
HA!
SEE NEXT SUNDAY'S EPISODE!!

AND NOW—MEET LESTER GOOCH, THE ARTIST WHO DRAWS "FEARLESS FOSDICK"
THE WHOLE WORLD IS WAITING BREATHLESSLY TO SEE HOW "FEARLESS FOSDICK" GETS OUT OF THIS ONE!!

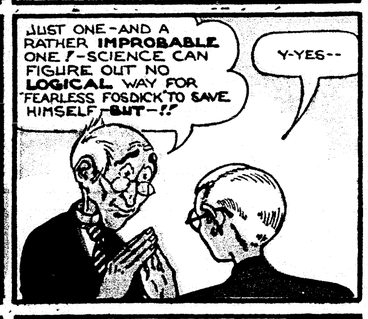
AND (SOB!) MOE, MY "IDEA MAN"—THE MAN WHO WROTE "FEARLESS FOSDICK" INTO THIS HORRIBLE JAM—HAS COMMITTED SUICIDE!!—HE COULDN'T FIGURE ANY WAY TO SAVE "FEARLESS FOSDICK" —SO HE TOOK THE ONLY HONORABLE WAY OUT!!

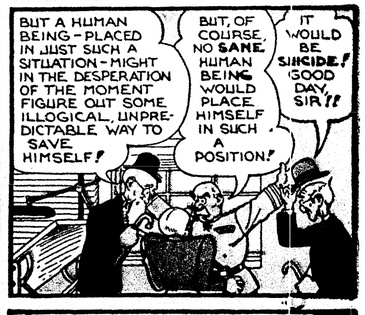


THERE MUST BE SOME SOLUTION!!—I'LL SUMMON THE WORLD'S GREATEST SCIENTISTS, MILITARY STRATEGISTS AND MATHEMATICIANS! —THEY'LL FIGURE A WAY OUT!! HANG THE COST!!

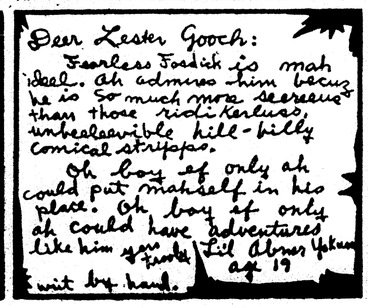


THE NEXT MORNING: AFTER ALL-NIGHT CONFERENCE OF THE GREAT BRAIN-TRUST—
MR. GOOCH, WE HAVE FINALLY FIGURED OUT THE ONLY POSSIBLE SOLUTION! "FEARLESS FOSDICK" MUST DIE!!
WHAT!! BUT—HE CAN'T DIE!!!





BUT A HUMAN BEING—PLACED IN JUST SUCH A SITUATION—MIGHT IN THE DESPERATION OF THE MOMENT FIGURE OUT SOME ILLOGICAL, UNPREDICTABLE WAY TO SAVE HIMSELF!
BUT, OF COURSE, NO SANE HUMAN BEING WOULD PLACE HIMSELF IN SUCH A POSITION!
IT WOULD BE SUICIDE! GOOD DAY, SIR!!



Dear Lester Gooch:
Fearless Fosdick is mah ideal. Ah admire him becuz he is so much more seereous than those ridiKerlus, unbeleevible hill-billy comical strippos.
Oh boy if only ah could put mahself in his place. Oh boy if only ah could have adventures like him you fonk!

Tarzan

by EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS

INVITATION TO DISASTER

SOON THEY CAME TO ANOTHER PART OF THE ISLAND WHERE THE GAP WAS SHORTER, BUT STILL THERE WAS NO WAY TO CROSS. BUT THE OPPOSITE BANK WAS FILLED WITH VINE-STRUNG TREES, AND A TRIBE OF APES WANDERED THERE.

THEN, IGNORING THE STRANGER, THE FICKLE CREATURES RETURNED TO THEIR OWN AFFAIRS. SO TARZAN THREW STONES AND THE BEASTS WERE ENRAGED. "WE KILL MAN-THING!" SHOUTED BONG-TOW, THEIR KING.

NOW, HOWEVER, THE APES WERE SWARMING TO THE GROUND WITH THE HIDEOUS KILL-CRY ON THEIR LIPS. "YOU MUST HIDE," TARZAN URGED JONATHAN. "OR TOO." THE MAN TOR SAID; "YOU WILL BE KILLED." "PERHAPS," TARZAN SMILINGGED, "BUT THERE IS JUST ONE CHANCE——"

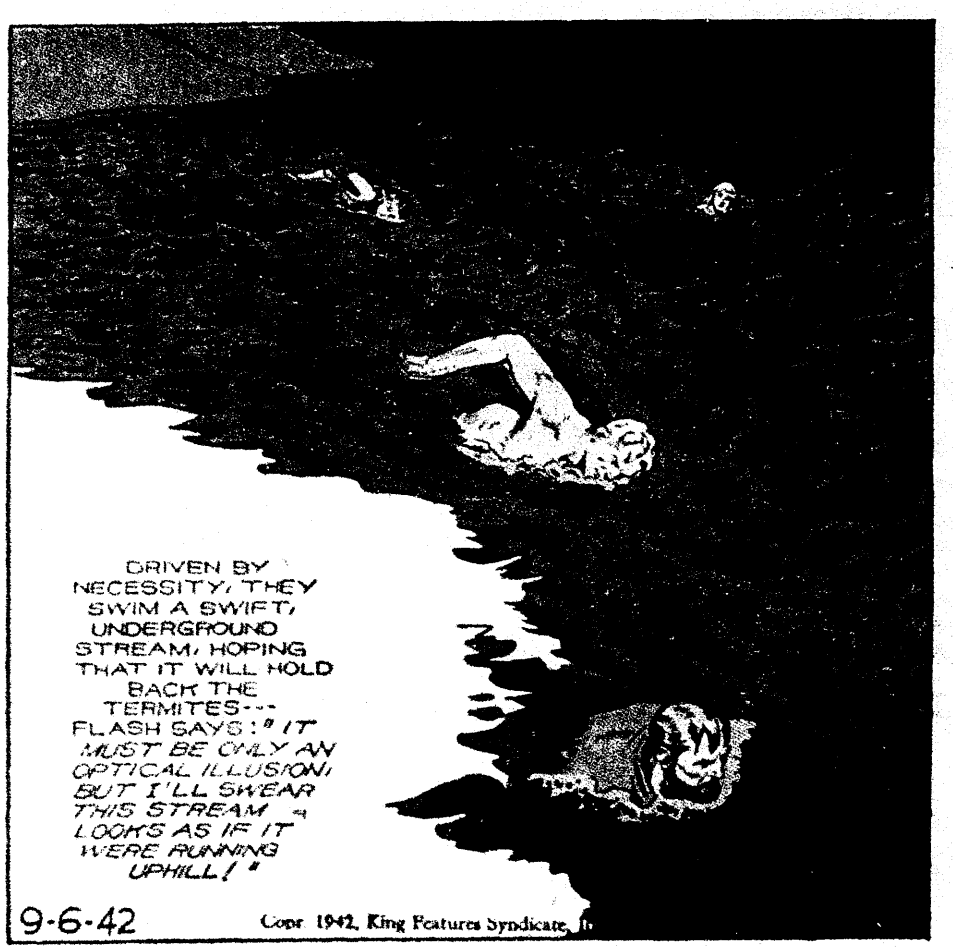
FLASH CLASPS DALE TIGHTLY: "I NEVER EXPECTED TO SEE YOU AGAIN, MY DARLING!"
QUEEN DESIRA SUDDENLY REALIZES HOW FOND OF FLASH SHE HAS BECOME. STERNLY, SHE TELLS HERSELF: "REMEMBER, DESIRA, A QUEEN DOES NOT WEAR HER HEART ON HER SLEEVE!"

AN OMINOUS SOUND INTERRUPTS THE REUNION--- FLASH WHIRLS: "THE ROCK-TERMITES ARE BURROWING TOWARD US THROUGH THE ROCK-BARRIER! WE MUST RUN FOR OUR LIVES!"

FLASH GUARDS THE REAR, SLOWING THE RAVENOUS INSECTS WITH WELL-PLACED RAY-BLASTS. THEIR DESPERATE ATTEMPTS TO FIND A WAY OUT OF THE ROCKY MAZE ONLY LEAD THEM FARTHER UNDERGROUND---



DRIVEN BY NECESSITY, THEY SWIM A SWIFT, UNDERGROUND STREAM, HOPING THAT IT WILL HOLD BACK THE TERMITES--- FLASH SAYS: "IT MUST BE ONLY AN OPTICAL ILLUSION, BUT I'LL SWEAR THIS STREAM LOOKS AS IF IT WERE RUNNING UPHILL!"

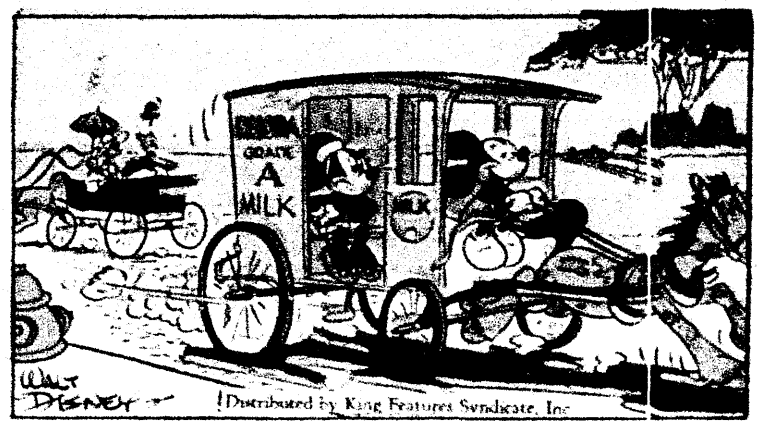
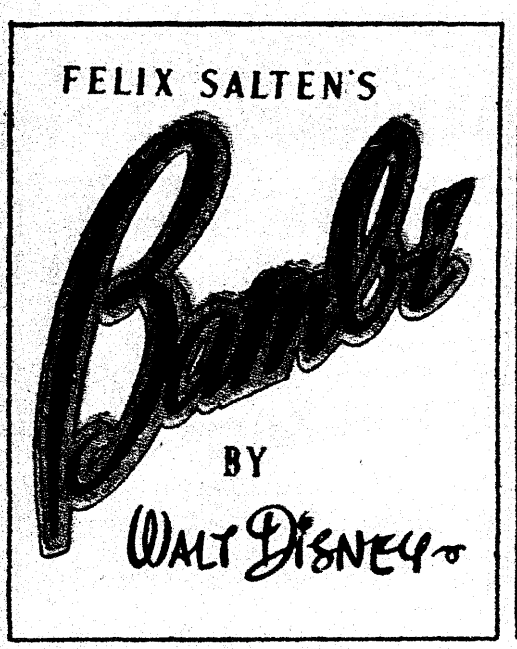
I COULDN'T GET HOLD OF A PHAETON, MINNIE, SO...!
LISTEN TO ME, MICKEY MOUSE... I DON'T CARE IF YOU CAN'T GET A PHAETON! ANY OLD-FASHIONED HORSE AND CARRIAGE WILL DO!





SPRING AND SUMMER HAD COME AND GONE... AND STILL ANOTHER WINTER. FINALLY IT WAS SPRING AGAIN WHEN BAMBI RETURNED TO THE OLD FAMILIAR HAUNTS, WHERE TRAGEDY HAD LEFT HIM MOTHERLESS! BUT NOW HE WAS A STURDY YOUNG STAG, ABLE TO LOOK AFTER HIMSELF.

...WHEN HE LOOKED UP STARTLED AT A LITTLE LAUGH. A BEAUTIFUL DOE WAS WATCHING HIM!
"HELLO, BAMBI," SHE SAID, "REMEMBER WHEN WE USED TO PLAY ON THE MEADOW?"
"WHY... WHY, YOU'RE FALINE!" HE CRIED IN SURPRISE.

THEN, STRANGELY, SOME OF HIS OLD SHYNESS RETURNED. BUT, WITH IT, A NEW FEELING HE HAD NEVER KNOWN BEFORE. HE FELT PUZZLED AT THE CHANGE. "COME ON," TEASED FALINE. "TRY AND CATCH ME!"

AS THEY RACED PLAYFULLY THROUGH THE BUSHES, BAMBI FORGOT EVERYTHING ELSE AND ONLY KNEW THAT HE WAS MADLY HAPPY.

SUDDENLY ANOTHER BUCK, OLDER AND BIGGER, STEPPED FROM A THICKET, MENACINGLY, AND BARRED HIS WAY! BAMBI HESTITATED, NOT SURE OF WHAT HE SHOULD DO.
